Noonday Fire at the Wangum Cut Glass Works.

At noon on Monday there was considerable excitement at the Wangum Cut Glass establishment on River street. In the acid room an oll stove that is used for melting parafine which covers those parts of glass that are not to be etched, was left unattended while the opera-tives went to lunch. The usual octives went to lunch. currence occurred on schedule time. That stove began to act up and "cut " peculiar to such contrap-The first thing the squad of young men who were eating lunch in another part of the building knew there was a smell of smoke in the air and an alarm of fire was quickly sounded. The flames were speedly subdued. The amount of damage was slight, consisting mainly in burning the paper off the studding about the room to which it had been nailed. But for the presence of the lunchers there would be a different story to tell to-day.

St. Patrick's Day Event At Odd Fellows Hall.

St. Philomena's choir and the St. Als. Cadets are preparing for a de-lightful entertainment on the night of St. Patrick's day, in Odd Fellows hall. A New Enterprise For The Big Water Power Town.

The garage building formerly oc cupied by Plum's livery stables will soon be whizzing with the sounds of a new enterprise for Hawley in the form of a manufactory of shawls and scarfs. The new enterprise will begin operation, we are told, about the middle of March. The building is about 40x100 feet, and the new enterprise will take on several opera-

Tragedy on Church Street Results in Lady's Death.

Miss Mary Watterson conducts a store on Church street near the Erie crossing. She resides in the same building. With her also resided her Miss Isabel Watterson. On Monday evening, February 17, Miss Mary went from the kitchen in the rear of the building to the store to attend to the wants of some customers. She was gone about twenty minutes. When she returned to the kitchen she found the room filled with smoke and fire burning on the floor and running up the door that opens into an outer storage depart-ment. She hastily began throwing water on the fire, and soon extin-guished the flames. The smoke was so thick she could not see objects, and she stepped on some thing that thought was carpeting, or a roll of clothing. At the same moment she threw some water on the wall and it splashed back towards her, drenching the floor, from whence came the voice of her sister, Isabel, who was lying there at her feet. The was frightfully burned Physicians were hastily summoned and every effort was made to give the unfortunate girl relief and save her life, but on Tuesday night of this week she died. The theory of the occurrence is that Miss Isabel entered the room and went to the sink. While there she was seized with a fainting spell to which she has been subject ever since she suffered a broken leg by falling on the icy street several years ago. In falling she overturned an oil heater that was burning with a flame turned low, and thus her clothing caught fire. There was no explosion, and nobody heard the fall or knew anything about the occurrence until the unfortunate victim's sister entered the smoke-filled Miss Isabel Watterson would have been 44 years of age in April. The funeral will be held on Friday from St. Mary's R. C. church, near Ledgedale.

Little Items Picked Up On the Streets of Hawley.

He left Old Wayne when the gravity was abandoned, and took up his residence in the Electric City. Mr. Sheldon was at various times a valued correspondent of the various papers of Wayne county, including The Citizen. From Hawley on Wednesday he went to Honesdale on a business trip, returning to his home via the D. & H.

Recent Death of Aged Lady of Paupack.

When death claimed Mrs. Utt, of Uswick, in Paupack township, on the 7th of February, a remarkable woman passed away. She was remarkable in many ways. A little story of her life is worthy of publication.

Eleanor Ann Bennett was born in Purdyville on January 22, 1825, and she was therefor in her 88th year at the time of her death. Her parents were Rufus and Amanda (Van Vleit) Bennett, who were among Wayne County's early pioneers. At the age of 20, in 1845, she married William Utt, and the young couple began housekeeping at Wilsonville, more commonly called Shouse's, because the writer heard Mrs. Utt recount some of her varied experiences in the early days of her married life, those days that Shakespeare de-scribes as the period of "love's young dream." She told of how they began their bousekeeping, what furniture they had, what it cost, and how just-ly proud they were of their home and

As there was but one store what is now Hawley, (for Hawley had not appeared on the map in those days), and that store only catered to the canal trade, it became neces-sary to go to Honesdale to do some necessary trading. She walked all the way to Honesdale, bought the materials for a new bonnet, some other necessary purchases, and rode back on a canal boat. Her sonin-law, ex-Sheriff R. W. Murphy, can make the trip with his car easily incide half an hour. Mrs. Utt had a good long ride of at least three

The Utts remained at Wilsonville for several years, and by good man-agement saved $500. With their money they bought the farm on the Lakeville road that is now known as the Ainsley estate. They did not move on their new possession at once, however, but Mr. Utt continued at his avocation as a sawyer, working in the Budd Cole mill, down where they bored a 2,000 feet hole in search of oil many years later. The Budd Cole mill has disappeared, lo! these many years, but a part of its foundation still remains to show In 1855 the Utts where it stood. moved on their own farm, and in building the barn, which is still standing and in a good state of preservation, Mr. Utt fell to the ground and was so seriously injured that he was not able to work for many about her head, right side, down her body, and on her arms and hands. It is farm was subsequently traded for one owned by Mr. Utt's c. W. Fulkerson of Carbon father, now the property of Mr. Oliver Locklin. Of Mr. Utt it may be said that he was a farmer and lum-berman. He ran rafts on the Delaware river for about ten years. Much of his lumber was bought on the stump from Mr. R. R. Purdy, sympathy of the community. who in those years was one of Wayne County's extensive land and lumber owners. Mr. Utt died in Oct., 1901.

Mrs. Utt told many interesting reminiscences of her early life. Every year she for a long time made a horseback trip to Stroudsburg to see her grandmother. She told of her school days and mentioned the names of her teachers. Two or three of her teachers came from Mount Pleasant. One of them was a Mr.

With a smiling face and bright, flashing eyes she quoted an old-time school rhyme as follows:

"Multiplication is a vexation, Division is as bad,

The Rule of Three puzzles me And Fractions make me mad.'

No better-natured, bright-dispositioned person ever lived in Old Wayne than Mrs. Utt. She was the very soul of hospitality, and with grief eating away at the very centre of her heart she had a smile and a cherry word for her friends. vest, 892.
As stated in the beginning of this Helen Ferris, Maplewood, Harvest, sketch, she closed her weary eyes to the lights and shadows of the earthly on February 7, and her peaceful hands that had always labored lovingly to make those about her better satisfied with their environments, laid down the burdens of life forever She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ellen Utt, of Jermyn, Pa., a brother, Aretas Bennett, of Douglas, Mich., and by the following daughters: Mrs. C. E. Webster, of Sterling; Mrs. R. W. Murphy of Hawley, and Mrs. F. E. Baisley, of Scranton. Several grandchildren also survive. Many Hawley Ladies at Honesdale on February 22.

It Was Only An Auto From Over Scranton Way.

It came into town with as grand a flourish as the wonderful cavalcade of an April circus. "It" was a big auto from over Scranton way, and 444444444444444444444444 it was loaded with merchandise. Now our dealers over this way don't like the looks of such stunts as that, and a clerk for grocer P. Corcoran, is sick instead of feeling circussy and goodat his Marble Hill home, and unable natured about it, to tell the simple truth, they didn't, but they didn't let on that they wished the blamed thing had staid home. None of us ever do, you know. Well, that auto didn't have so good a time, after all. After unloading its stock of merchandise it started for home, and then its troubles began. It followed up the old gravity loaded track un-til it struck the Lakeville road. It got stuck so frequently in the newly drifted snow that the "stuck" condition more than doubled the "go" condition. Finally, at about 2 o'clock in the morning the chains on the wheels broke and the machine became hopelessly stalled right in front of the home of the writer of these lines. There were three young men in charge of the car. One of them crawled under some burlaps and spent the night, and the other wo footed it to Honesdale after re-It was high noon on the sec-Hef. ond day after leaving Scranton be-fore the car left Hoadleys for Honesdale, and by this time it has probably reached home. In the mean-time Hawley people smile and are quoting some sort of an old saying about "virtue bringing its own re-ward." Yes, they are smiling and ward." Yes, they are smiling and looking wise over the incursion into our town's business rights.

In the Meantime Suffragettes Are Singing the Old-Time Song, "Pray On! Press On! We're Gaining Ground! Oh, Glory Halellujah."

Harrisburg, Feb. 27 .- March 18th will be the next crucial day in the movement for Equal Suffrage in Pennsylvania. Senator McIlhenny, chairman of the Senate Judiciary General Committee, to which the constitutional amendment resolution was referred, has set that date for a hearing. The suffragists hoped for an earlier date but Senator McIl-henny, who is said to be opposed to the measure, is apparently doing all he can to prevent the people from having a chance to act upon this question. Though he says he has an open mind, his attitude is so partial that he is willing to have the measure unnecessarily delayed.

Optimistic Outlook is Claimed By the Lady Warriors,

In the meantime the friends of the resolution will keep up a vigorous ampaign in its favor, and if they continue to gain ground as rapidly as they did last week there will not be much left of the opposition by the time the resolution is reported to the Senate.

Where Penrose and Guthrie Standards Are Located.

Both Senator Penrose and Demo cratic State Chairman Guthrie came out strongly for the resolution last week, Senator Penrose in an interview which was widely printed said, "The people should have a chance to vote on this matter. That is logical and reasonable." The The Sena tor also expressed the hope that reports to the effect that some Sena tors are against the resolution are not true.

State Chairman Guthrie sent to each Democratic Senator a personal letter calling his attention to the fact that the Democratic party in its plat-form is pledged to submit the question of equal suffrage to a vote of the people and asking him to vote for the resolution no matter what his views may be on the direct question votes for women.

Senators are hearing from home are making the position of those who are opposed to the resolution some what uncomfortable. Popular opinion uncomfortable. here is decidedly against the opposition Senators. Over and over again it is pointed out that the resolution merely provides for submitting the question to the people. Time after time attention is called to the fact that such a step has the endorsement of all the political parties. now and then it is diplomatically intimated to Senators suspected Herrman, Honesdale, tion that they are taking rather a serious view of their own importance in the general scheme of things governmental in this commonwealth when these facts are taken into consideration. Newspapers Make "Bad" Members Of the House Feel Sorry.

The outspoken way in which newspapers throughout the State scored members of the House who voted against the resolution for their presumption in trying to prevent the people from voting on the suffrage issue is another thing that is having a pronounced effect upon the Senators. Many newspapers of all shades of pothe voters to decide the question for themselves. In his letter to the Democratic members of the THE NEXT CRISIS DAY WILL BE branch, State Chairman Guthrie said he has received letters from all parts of the State criticising most unfavorably the action of the Democratic Representatives who, in the face of a specific platform declara-"voted against a referendum to the people on the question of women Republican have been as freely and as generally
