HENRY WILSON.

Henry Wilson died at his home in Honesdale March 3, 1913.

So passes one of the foremost citizens of Wayne county, in law, journalism and politics, and the leading spirit in this section among the survivors of the Civil war.

It is appropriate that this journal, for so many years enriched by the product of his facile and informing pen should pay special tribute to his memory. At the request of Hon. C. C. Jadwin he came to Honesdale in 1869 and assumed editorial charge of The Citizen. From that time until his retirement in September, 1898, it is doubtful if any number of this journal appeared which did not contain more or less of his editorial work. In all phases of national politics, both current and historical, he was thoroughly informed, and no journal in the country, outside the large cities, discussed the issues of a presidential campaign or the policies which should control the nation with greater force and sounder logic than did The Citizen through his pen. He was a Republican in politics, not only because he was at the helm of a Republican newspaper, but by reason of deep personal conviction of the soundness and righteousness of the principles of that party. In local political campaigns The Citizen under his guidance was a power for the party, and in questions of local political policy he was always consulted, and his judgment was largely relied upon. He asked for no political preferment for himself and received none, save that in 1876 he received an appointment as Associate Judge of the Wayne county courts and served for a year in that position. Always afterward he was known as "Judge Wilson," and the title fitted him admirably. He had a profound knowledge of the law. In his younger days he studied law with D. N. Lathrop of Carbondale, and was admitted to the bar December 9, 1859. On coming to Honesdale he combined with his journalistic duties the practice of the law, and soon was among the leaders of the bar in this county. As a trial lawyer he was not brilliant, but as a pleader, in presenting the legal aspects of a case to the court, in the application of facts to principles of law, in his wide knowledge and understanding of statutes and precedents he was not excelled. His is one of the names that give lustre to the history of the Wayne County bar.

Another phase of his many-sided character is shown in the deep interest he took to the day of his death in the soldiers of the Civil war. He himself had borne the hardships and endured the privations of a soldier in that war, and he knew how to sympathize with his comrades. For many years prior to his death, as commander of Captain James Ham Post, he was prominent in Grand Army circles. There was never an old comrade who did not honor him and love him. Of the burdens of the Post he bore more than his share, in all the meetings and celebrations he was always the leading spirit, and whenever any of his old comrades in arms were overtaken by trouble or sickness or death, his was always the helping hand, the cheering presence and the comforting word. But those who knew him well, knew that his heart was saddened as he saw the ranks of "the boys in blue" grow thin and thinner with the passing years. His sympathy with the misfortunes of his fellows, his large heartedness, and his kindly interest in others, were traits of character that lasted through his life. He himself had seen much sorrow. On May 28, 1877, his only daughter, Claribee, died at the age of twelve years. She had been the idol of his heart. He could not quite reconcile himself to her absence. And later on, Oct. 3, 1893, his only son, Bruce, died at the age of nineteen years. A bright, brave, lovable boy, his death again stirred the parental nature to its depths. He loved little children and they recognized in him a real friend.

After the death of his wife, Sept. 30, 1910, he began to age rapidly. Not that among his fellows he lost his cheerful spirit, not that he loved any less the story or the departed; but he gradually withdrew himself from the activities of life. His step became more slow and feeble. He seemed to feel that he was nearing the end, but he approached it bravely like the soldier that he was, calmly, cheerfully, with face to the front, ready for his final discharge. In one matter only his interest never flagged, his work never ceased. To the very end his old comrades in arms were in his mind and on his heart, and for them his last work was done and his last wish given.

"As man may, he fought his fight. Proved his truth by his endeavor; Let him sleep in solemn night, Sleep forever and forever. Lay him low, lay him low, In the clover or the snow, What care he? he cannot know, Lay him low!"

STRENUOUS TIME AHEAD.

A record crowd attended the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson. The National Capitol had never been more beautifully or elaborately decorated, nor greater enthusiasm and warmer welcome extended to a President than was extended here. In the East, where Mr. Wilson, has resided so long, he is the favorite son of the hour. In the South, where he was born and reared, he is the favorite son because of that fact. In the West, pride in him springs from his conversion to Bryanism. And as even New England was stirred by his candidacy, the North feels warmly toward him, too. All four sections contributed to the multitude which witnessed his taking the oath of office. The occasion was not partisan. Such occasions never are partisan. When the polls close in our quadrennial contests and the result is announced, everybody becomes the well wisher of the winner, and is willing to assist in one way or another in installing him in office with ceremonies befitting the honor conferred. Opposed politically, Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson are good friends. Mr. Taft has toasted Mr. Wilson in public as "an able, distinguished and patriotic gentleman," and Mr. Wilson in conversation has expressed his appreciation of the courtesy. No two men have ever ridden together from the White House to the Capitol—the one to lay down and the other to take up the burden of office—whose personal relations were warmer than those established between Mr. Taft and his designated successor.

No greater problems and issues confronted any President since the days of Lincoln than those which face Wilson. Tariff and trust legislation, currency changes and the spirit of unrest over the high cost of living, the Mexican problem, forest conservation and other issues. Mr. Wilson has strenuous times ahead.

A STATE FAIR? SURE! WHY NOT?

That the Keystone State is to have an agricultural fair all of its own is almost a certainty, as more than two-thirds of the various county and local fair associations have endorsed the plan. Governor Tener approves of the plan and is very positive as to the benefit it will be to the State. The Governor says: "State fairs are a potent factor in fostering agriculture interests which industry ever will be the most important in this state and nation. The proposed State fair has as its object and purpose the permanent exhibition of all agricultural progress, live stock, poultry and horticultural. There should be at this exhibition a model truck and flower garden and a display which would show scientific farming.

"I predict that the State fair will do more to increase the efficiency in farming, as well as the comforts of farm life than any other thing that could be done by the State.

"Pennsylvania should encourage farming and the administration is more interested in this feature of life than any other activity. Good roads and State fairs bespeak a happier future for the farmer and a more prosperous era for Pennsylvania.

Honesdale Business News

A Weekly Advertising Excursion Among Honesdale Business Houses "Personally Conducted" by F. P. Woodward

EVER heard of that other word for a d v e r t i s i n g, p e r h a p s. Well, the word is "APPEAL." The merchant's advertisement is his appeal to the public to purchase his goods. The first time I ever thought of it in that way, (that is to use the word "appeal" in that connection), was a few years ago, when a snappy grocer in Battle Creek, Michigan, a man who understood every side of the business in which he was engaged, said of an advertisement that was submitted to him for his approval.

"That advertisement may strike you all right, but it doesn't APPEAL to me." Appeal! Appeal! When you are hungry—awfully hungry—and you go where they are broiling beefsteak, cooking coffee and frying sausage or ham, then you have a realizing sense of what that word "appeal" really means. Every one of those delicious odors calls right out to you. They ADVERTISE their goodness. They do more than that, for they "appeal" to you to sample them, to use them, and to act quickly.

Your advertisement, Mr. Merchant, is the odor of your business. If it doesn't APPEAL to the hungry public that is buying, ever buying, and yet is ever hungry, then there is something radically wrong with it. You know what would appeal to you. What would appeal to you will surely appeal to others. More "appeal" in your publicity will answer to your satisfaction the question, "Does advertising pay?" It will speedily convince you that appealing publicity is one of the very best assets of your business, and you will fully appreciate that what it costs you to advertise is one of your very best investments.

"Keeping Time, Time, Time In a Sort of Runic Rhyme!"

Runic means "mystery," and poor watches are always a mystery to those who own and carry them. They cause you to miss trains, to fall in keeping appointments, and such "mysteries" are expensive. Rowland, Honesdale's popular jeweler, doesn't sell "Runic" time pieces. He is selling a seven jewel watch for $9, and a fifteen jewel watch for $12, and they are just splendid watches in every way.

NOTE—Another consignment of "Big Ben" alarm clocks on the way.

THE DAY OF DEDICATION.

We quote five words from President Wilson's inaugural: "We shall restore, not destroy." This is the promise, the pledge, the platform. The rest is eloquent surplusage. If the promise is kept, the pledge redeemed, the platform obeyed, the Administration now beginning with the good will and good wishes and best hopes and reserved judgment of all of Woodrow Wilson's fellow citizens will be in the truest sense progressive and in the truest sense conservative; and what more could any patriotic American desire?—New York Sun.

HOW RIELLY BILL AFFECTS HONESDALE POST OFFICE.

The Rieley eight-hour law went into effect on Tuesday of this week. It provides that all employees in the civil service shall not work longer than eight hours or give eight hours work in ten hours' time. In the local post office the clerks and letter carriers are working up on the following schedule:

Clerks Begin. End.
E. P. Keen 6:15 a. m. 4:15 p. m.
M. Griffin 8:30 a. m. 6:30 p. m.
H. Hiller 10:30 a. m. 8:30 p. m.
Lestrangle 10:20 a. m. 8:20 p. m.
Carriers. Begin. End.
W. Burkhardt 5:40 a. m. 3:40 p. m.
P. Weir 6:00 a. m. 4:00 p. m.
H. Wagner 6:00 a. m. 4:00 p. m.

SPORTING NOTES.

Eddie Murphy, of White Mills, has certainly made a hit with Connie Mack of the ex-world's champions. He is now playing at third base as an understudy to "Home Run" Baker, and the press dispatches say that he is covering this position like a veteran.

The first and second basket ball teams of the G. C. club journeyed to White Mills on Monday night and played the first and second teams of that place. The first team won their game in the last few minutes by the close score of 21 to 23. The second G. C. club team, however, was easily defeated by a score of 27 to 12.

LOOKOUT.

Harris Hill, Mrs. J. G. Hill and Evelyn Lane attended the funeral of Mr. Lowe at Honesdale on Tuesday. Mrs. Lewis Hill entertained Miss Eva Silsby, Miss Alice Turnberger and Evelyn Lane on Sunday. Jackson Branning and James Matthews spent Friday and Saturday at Fred Brannings'.

Fred Branning attended the sale and purchased the farm of Grace Edsall.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson and son Kenneth spent Sunday at G. T. Kellam's.

A little son came to gladden the home of Alex Steven and wife on Feb. 27.

The last lot didn't last ten days. That's what advertising does.

It will be impossible to miss the "broadside" that several merchants of Honesdale are firing this week in the form of a page of offerings they are making Wayne county people. In order that everybody may be reached by these announcements, in addition to our large regular circulation we are sending a goodly quantity of sample copies, for we want everybody not only to understand what fine things the merchants are offering, but, if not already patrons of this paper, to learn what a good thing they miss if they do not read The Citizen every time it is issued.

That New Easter Suit.

For several days new Spring clothing has been arriving at Rickert's clothing store, and now he is ready to show you the very latest in fashion and the very best in tailoring. Some of the new ideas in seasonable goods are shown in his windows, but, bless your heart, his windows can't begin to show what he has in stock. Rickert wants to show you. Call and see him soon.

Everything Nice and Tasty For the Easter Holiday.

That is the condition of things at Menger & Co.'s great stores, the stores where you get the best and nicest in the dry goods line. Already they are showing the new Spring styles, and on Saturday, March 8th, when you come to Honesdale to help maintain the Wayne County Trade Day, you will find this store right to the front with a stock as choice and prices for standard goods equally as low as can be found anywhere in this part of the State.

Don't forget that they sell at Menger & Co.'s groceries of quality, the real choice kinds, the kinds that it is economical to purchase.

On Trade Days, Or On Any Other Days.

When Wayne county people are hunting after necessary tools and machinery for farming and gardening, or if they want the dependable kind of seeds for field or garden, they will go straight to Erk Brothers when in Honesdale and find exactly what they desire.

They are pushing poultry supplies of all kinds at that store, and their window exhibit of articles along the poultry line continues to attract interested crowds daily.

If you are in Honesdale on Saturday, March 8th, make it a point to call at that store and look over their Spring offerings. You'll be glad if you call.

EARN'S DESERVING PROMOTION.

Dwight P. Bone, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bone, of Binghamton, formerly of Honesdale, who has been manager of the New York Telephone company in the Parlor City, has been transferred to Elmira. The Lester-shire-Endicott Record says: The transfer is in recognition of Mr. Bone's good work during the year he has been with the company. Mr. Bone will be in direct charge of the Elmira office, and the Corning, Bath and Hornell offices will report to him. At Binghamton, W. W. Doolittle, now salesman, has been made chief clerk. C. B. Burch, who has for some time been manager for the company at Elmira, has been appointed sublicense agent on the staff of the division sublicense manager, with headquarters at Elmira.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"Stomach Misery ALL GONE"

"My! How I Did Suffer But Now I'm Happy All Day Long and Sleep Fine."

That's what a woman said just a few months ago. She said more and here it is. "I wish it lay within my power to persuade every woman sufferer from dyspepsia or indigestion (or whatever they may think their stomach trouble is) to give MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets one week's fair trial. I am sure that every one of them would thank me from the bottom of her heart."

"I am well and happy for the first time in years and I do not hesitate to give MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets all the credit." Follow this advice. Give MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets a week's trial; if they do not benefit, Peil, the druggist, will return the cost—50 cents.
