

MISS GENEVIEVE CLARK.

Daughter of Champ Clark Prominent in Suffragist Movement.

Above is shown a pose of Miss Clark. She jumped into popular favor some time ago when she worked tirelessly in the hope of landing the Democratic presidential nomination for her distinguished father.

TAFT BARS INTERVIEWERS.

Ex-President Claims He is in Augusta For Recreation.

Augusta, Ga., March 10.—Ex-President Taft spent a quiet Sunday. In the morning he went to the First Baptist church with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen and other members of the party attended service at St. Paul's Episcopal church, which was built on the banks of the Savannah river on the site of a revolutionary war fort.

After luncheon Mr. Taft dictated letters to his secretary, W. W. Mischler, and late in the afternoon went driving. This evening Mr. Taft will motor to Bath for an opossum supper at Miss Rosalin Green's place.

Local newspaper men have made efforts to interview the former president, but he has begged to be excused, saying he came here for rest and recreation only.

ISLAND SEEKS ANNEXATION.

American Inhabitants of Isle of Pines Will Petition Wilson.

Pittsburgh, March 10.—Announcement was made by Thomas J. Keenan of this city, president of the American Association of the Isle of Pines, that a petition directed to President Wilson and the senate requesting annexation of the island would be put in circulation in this country and the Isle of Pines.

The petition states that 6,000 Americans who reside or have property in this Isle of Pines wish to have action taken to make the island a permanent possession of the United States. The Isle of Pines, the petition says, has become a distinctively American colony, citizens of the United States owning more than 95 per cent of the land and making up a majority of the population.

TRAMPS BURN SUMMER HOME.

Mrs. Beard's $25,000 House at Glen Cove a Total Loss.

Glen Cove, N. Y., March 10.—The summer home on Red Spring road owned by Mrs. Lavinia Beard of 184 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire. The loss will reach $25,000. It is believed that tramps or others who may have been sleeping in the house set it afire by carelessly throwing a lighted match or cigarette among paper. There was supposed to be no one in the house, and there was neither stove nor electric lights in the building.

William Stemcke, a hotelkeeper, first saw flames coming from the building and turned in an alarm. When the volunteer firemen reached the fire with their apparatus there was little for them to do.

GETS AWAY WITH TOWN'S CASH

German Counting House Was Robbed Through a Simple Ruse.

Berlin, March 10.—A man wearing the uniform of an officer and giving the name of Dr. Gustav von Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, which is the name of the manager of the Krupp works at Essen, entered the Essen municipal counting house and asked leave to examine the town's accounts. This was granted.

After his examination the man declared he had discovered that there were several thousand marks over and above the correct amount and he would take the surplus to the ministry of finance in Berlin. He left the town, and later when the town's authorities communicated with Berlin they found that they had been robbed.

Empress Eugenie is ill. Nice, March 10.—Empress Eugenie has caught a fresh cold and is confined to her house. Her illness is not of a serious nature, but her great age, eighty-seven, and enfeebled condition have caused some anxiety.

NEW EXECUTIVES WELL EQUIPPED

Wilson and Marshall Learned as Governors.

THEY HAVE MANY ADVISERS.

President's Cabinet Keeps Him Informed—Vice President Receives Counsel From Democratic Senators and More Effectively From Senate Clerks. Clark Retains His Power.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 10.—[Special.]—Woodrow Wilson as president and Thomas R. Marshall as vice president seem to fit in with the scheme of things here in Washington, even after the Democrats have been so long out of power. These two former governors know quite a lot about the government business, besides having many able advisers. Mr. Wilson finds these in his cabinet and among the thousand or more patriots who are staying in Washington with hopes that they will be called into the administration in some capacity.

Mr. Marshall is advised by a few Democratic senators, but more particularly by the clerks in front of him, who are among the most skilled parliamentarians of the senate and who know just what a senate presiding officer should do. Our two most prominent citizens seem to have started off all right.

Mr. Marshall is advised by a few Democratic senators, but more particularly by the clerks in front of him, who are among the most skilled parliamentarians of the senate and who know just what a senate presiding officer should do. Our two most prominent citizens seem to have started off all right.

Strictly speaking, it is ex-speaker Clark now, although it will again be Speaker Clark when the new congress meets. The ex-speaker continues to hold his office in the capitol. He is going along just as if the office continued, and to all intents and purposes it does continue. Though there was talk a long time ago about a candidate against Clark, it died out, and Champ will be re-elected by a unanimous vote of the Democrats.

Making Committees. Besides making tariff bills, the ways and means committee must make the house committees under the scheme adopted two years ago. Taken altogether, the system has not worked very satisfactorily. In fact, depriving the speaker of power of appointment of committees has been a failure to a large extent.

The Old Warfare. We will probably witness a revival of the old warfare between the senate and house over the tariff bills. It is evident now that the senate will greatly modify the different measures, which the house sends over. That will again raise the question of prerogatives. The house claims the right over revenue and appropriation bills. The senate claims the right of amendment and makes many changes in all such measures. There is still a great deal of bitterness over the differences which developed over the appropriation bills in the closing days of the last session.

At times the different members showed considerable mettle. But all such differences finally were compromised. The hottest fight of this character ever known was when the Democrats last took control of the nation's affairs. The contest between the two houses over the Wilson tariff bill lasted for months, and the house finally swallowed every senate amendment.

It had not been for Senator Borah there would have been no child labor bureau, and if it had not been for the same senator there would have been no department of labor bill. His persistence put both of these measures through. Borah was once heralded as an anti-labor man because he helped to prosecute the men charged with killing the governor of Idaho, but he has proved a good friend of labor during his six years in the senate.

The question which each Democrat asks of his fellow partisan is, "Have you got yours?" or something like it. They are wondering, that army of patriots, whether there is really going to be very much doing in the way of distributing offices. Senators have their hands full keeping off the importuning crowds. The members of the house are more fortunate. Most of them have fled from Washington, at least all who know they can't get anything, while the others are in hot water.

The senate might have seemed to be unusually busy in the closing days of the late session, yet it was not so busy that it did not take several hours on the Saturday afternoon and night before the adjournment to deliver eulogies over dead senators and members of the house. The visitors in Washington were greatly entertained, for many of them stayed until late at night to listen to these tributes to dead statesmen. The speeches were not very thrilling, but they bulged with pathos and poetry.

Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts is what some of the western men say is "not in his ways," particularly in regard to expositions. He is against them all and against all appropriations for government exhibits at such expositions.

DYNAMITE'S WORK.

Wireless Room of Jason After Explosion in Baltimore Harbor.

Builders of the collier Jason are uniting with the underwriters of insurance and the British consul in an attempt to fix the responsibility of the dynamite explosion in Baltimore harbor in which fifty lives were lost. Above is shown the wreck of the wireless room on the Jason.

MADE IT EASY FOR HARRY THAW

Sulzer Makes Public Charges Against Superintendent of Prisons Scott.

Albany, N. Y., March 10.—Governor Sulzer made public the report of the commission of inquiry concerning the administration of state prisons under Superintendent Joseph F. Scott. Ten charges are made by the commission, which in its opinion "require explanation and if possible justification by the superintendent of state prisons." No recommendation is made, but the commission submits its conclusions to Governor Sulzer for his "careful consideration" and for such action as he "may deem for the best interests of the state."

The principal charge made by the commission against the superintendent is that he permitted Frederick H. Mills to remain in the office of prison sales agent after a report was made to the governor by John D. McMahon in September, 1912, that John D. Mills was drawing a salary from the state and conducting a private business of his own at the same time. This, the commission says, continued under a private understanding with the superintendent of prisons.

Another allegation is that under Colonel Scott's administration Harry K. Thaw received unusual liberties in Matteawan State hospital; that he was permitted to receive callers frequently and to retain in his possession large amounts of money. The commission severely criticizes Colonel Scott for failing to order a prosecution after Dr. John W. Russell, who was superintendent of the Matteawan hospital, reported to him that John N. Anhalt had offered him a bribe of $20,000 to release Thaw. Other charges involve complaints made by Democratic leaders of Clinton county in relation to the management of Clinton prison at Dannemora.

GALLANT LA FOLLETTE.

Carries a Satchel For Overburdened Man Who Doesn't Know Him.

Caldwell, N. J., March 10.—When James S. Throckmorton, cashier of the Citizens' National bank of Caldwell, accompanied by Mrs. Throckmorton and her sister, Mrs. Mary J. White of New York, went to the Union station at Washington to board a train for home he was lugging two heavy suit cases.

Burdened as he was, Mr. Throckmorton couldn't help his wife and her sister board the train. Just then there came along an unpretentious looking man with a pleasant face and, observing Mr. Throckmorton's predicament, performed the act gallant. Mr. Throckmorton, to show his gratitude, offered the stranger a cigar. The latter, still smiling, remarked that he never smoked and declined the cigar. "Well, sir," replied the Caldwell man, "if I knew your name perhaps I would be better able to thank you." "Oh," smilingly replied the other, "here is my card." It read, "Robert M. La Follette" and in the corner "United States Senate."

TALE OF THE WEATHER.

STERLING.

Sterling, March 10. We often wonder how much "town gossip" people care to read or the editor cares to publish. To mention every one that goes to the store, post office, calls on a friend, takes dinner, sells a dozen eggs to a huckster or stubs his toe and falls down may be very interesting personal affairs—but do they interest the public? We have been told by a number that the first thing they do when they receive the paper is to look for the "home news" and when they do not find it they are quite disappointed. Hence, we presume, is the reason why the editor publishes so many trivial items. But when things don't happen, what's a fellow to do? The editor says write at least once a week.

Last Sunday Rev. W. E. Webster officiated at the funeral of Jacob Shiffler of Greentown. It often seems providential that a number very considerably expire just in time to accommodate the minister to officiate on the Lord's day.

Rev. Webster took in the ministerial meeting at Scranton and also heard Rev. Sunday preach at Wilkes-Barre.

We have had zero weather on several mornings this week and so far but little syrup has been made.

Miss A. M. Noble heard that her sister, Mrs. Amanda Cliff, was ill in Philadelphia. She left for there last Saturday and her sister expired soon after her arrival. She was about 85 years old. She is survived by one son Burton, and two sisters, Miss Adalade M. and Mrs. Emma Howe; also two daughters, Mrs. Emma Kitchen and Miss Gennett, at home. Mrs. Cliff was well known in this section by all the older residents, having resided here for many years.

On the 12th the Ladies' Aid will meet for dinner at the parsonage. At times J. G. Gilpin does not have good control of himself and recently he fell on a stone and quite badly bruised his face. Mrs. G. I. Gilpin has also been quite poorly.

Wm. Bachelor, our accommodating mail carrier, is moving into the A. C. Megargill mansion.

Jacob Gillner is digging a trench at the parsonage and in due time a toilet room will be installed. So far the water works have been a success. J. E. Cross has had a Mr. Collins, and helper, from Ariel working for him this week.

Notwithstanding the number of cows that are kept in this section for several weeks past butter has been decidedly scarce, but perhaps one reason is the creamery gets nearly all of the milk.

The school tax is the largest tax we pay and yet how many are interested enough to visit the schools—except on some extraordinary occasion—and see what kind of work the teachers and pupils are doing. Since school began we have spent enough time at the High school building to say that we think the teachers are all doing excellent work.

PAUPACK.

Miss Frances Killam, of Wyoming Seminary, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Killam. Miss B. M. Fowler spent the past week with Mrs. R. G. Phillips at Hawley.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Bennett is not recovering very fast from her illness. Edith E. Gumble and Edna K. Singer were callers in Hawley Saturday.

Henry Vetterlein, who spent the past three months at State College returned home March 1. Fred Haussmann returned to his home in Tafton. He has been assisting Mr. Vetterlein with his work this winter.

Fred Singer, Lloyd and Pete Gumble are working at Gouldsboro. William Brown, of Swamp Brook, spent Sunday at this place.

Lyle Berlyn is spending a short time at Henry Gumbles. Eri Trivelpiece and family moved to Swamp Brook last Tuesday. We are sorry to lose our good neighbors.

Mrs. E. D. Killam was a business caller at Hawley Tuesday. We are glad to hear that Miss Isabel Williams has recovered from her recent illness.

BETHANY.

Stanley Smith celebrated his ninth birthday on February 28th and gave a party to eight of his boy friends from 4 to 6. The afternoon was spent in playing games and a delicious supper was served by Mrs. Smith. Those present were: Samuel and Robert Blake, Donald Ballou, Charles Faatz, Robert and Charles Paynter, Edwin Pritchard and Carl Yerkes.

Many from here attended the dinner at Mrs. W. J. Ogden's on Wednesday and had a very enjoyable time. About fifty took dinner and the amount realized was $13.50.

Mr. and Mrs. James Johns spent Thursday in Forest City. Rev. E. S. Bierly spent part of last week in Wilkes-Barre attending the "Sunday" meetings.

Mrs. J. V. Starnes and Stella Dudley have been spending the past week in Honesdale at the Noyes home. Mrs. Isaac Hawker has been entertaining a cousin from Port Jervis. Mrs. D. W. Manning is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Allan Lawrence, in Scranton. Helen Manning returned to New York Thursday.

SIKO.

T. H. Ridd has purchased another horse. He now has a pair. Mrs. Phebe Bolcom is spending a few days with Honesdale relatives. The Pleasant Valley Grangers are preparing to hold an oyster supper in their hall at Dyberry on Friday evening, March 14.

On being asked why the family scramble was for the Citizen instead of the Wayne Independent as formerly, I replied "Not that they loved the Independent less but the Citizen more."

A. W. Bunting has remodeled and enlarged his dwelling house. The Smith house in which Siko postoffice was kept for twenty-nine years, is now empty.

Woodward hears Billy Sunday and tells all about it in Friday's Citizen. Don't miss it.

Harder Builds the Best Silo. Spruce, Hemlock, Pine or Cypress. Harder Patent or Empire Doors. Why not have the best? Murray Company, Honesdale, Pa.

HAWLEY. Myron, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Shalbely, died Tuesday of last week. Funeral services were held at the house. Rev. Lucas officiated. Mr. and Mrs. William Everly, of Lakeville, were here on Wednesday. F. J. Crockenberg, of Scranton, was a business caller here on Wednesday. Miss Esther Killam, of Paupack, was a visitor here on Tuesday. Mrs. Henry Rose, of Spring street, who has been seriously ill, is improving. John Welsh, of Dunmore, was a business caller here last Wednesday. Morris Freeman, of Honesdale, called on friends here Wednesday. E. Ray Carr, of Scranton, was a business caller here on Wednesday. Solomon Miller, Albert Bishop and William Schadt returned to their homes Tuesday evening, after spending several days at Honesdale, as grand jurors.

FOREST CITY. Mrs. Banbury, of Scranton, is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Braur. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph left on Saturday for an extended visit to New York city, Philadelphia and Connecticut. Henry Brain, of Scranton, is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Brain. T. P. McCormick attended the inauguration of President Wilson. John, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Kovesky, is ill with pneumonia. Mary, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Valouluska, is suffering from diphtheria. Mrs. M. J. Walsh is ill at her home on Depot street. Master David Parry is confined to his home suffering from measles. Miss Loretta and Anna Eagen, of Green Ridge, have returned home after visiting friends in town last week. Leon, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bloxham, is ill at his home on Grand avenue.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
