NO NEW TRIAL FOR MURDERERS OF ERE POLICE.

New York.—Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker last week, in Hackensack, N. J., denied the motions for new trials for Constantine and Antonio Cella and Antonio Mancini, three of the Edgewater coal dock strikers recently convicted of murder in the second degree, who were sentenced to serve terms of ten to thirty years.

IF YOU Want a Cook ADVERTISE

AN EASTER OFFERING

By Dorothy Douglas

REV. MILTON Davis entered his study after having eaten a lonesome Easter breakfast and threw himself into a big chair by the window for a few moments of quiet before beginning his strenuous day. He heaved a sigh as he glanced at the empty chair on the opposite side—empty save for the mind picture of the young minister who would draw on occasions when the world would seem well lost for the possession of one particular woman. But that woman had not, as yet, appeared upon the ecclesiastical heartstone of Rev. Mr. Davis.

There were many fair parishioners who would gladly have been that fortunate maid; their inclinations, however, were restricted to the gifts which constantly found their way to the rectory. The wide couch in the rector's study was a heterogeneous collection of sofa pillows; the walls were lined with biblical subjects, evidently considered the only art appropriate for ministerial eyes. Rev. Mr. Davis had been the recipient of eighteen pairs of slippers and three house coats.

In his turn, he sought diligently among his flock for the girl who might do; she apparently sunned herself in another fold, for she certainly did not thrive in his pasture. The choir, which weekly occupied four seats facing the pulpit, gave forth to the little church such quartet music as it felt equal to. It was comprised entirely of village talent. Jimmie Langhorn, the tenor, considered the world and all its machinations a joke; if the soprano felt a jolt in her side when sustaining a high G it was nothing more nor less than Jimmie's elbow prodding her along. The contralto was a small maiden to whom the tenor made love during the darkness of the sermon; the bass singer was also the choir-master.

The soprano, a young matron, and Jimmie Langhorn were fast friends, and many a plot against ministerial bachelorhood was hatched between them. It seemed to them a shame that so good-looking a minister should remain a bachelor. So it happened that as Rev. Mr. Davis bemoaned the singleness of his own state and others bemoaned it for him, the god of love entered his study. His buxom housekeeper was the literal bearer, and she offered it to him as a package, labeled and wrapped in much tissue paper. Upon being unwrapped the Easter gift proved to be a small marble statue of Cupid.

"And which of your lambs is it this time?" she asked with motherly interest, and noticing surprise on the rector's face. The minister read the card: "From the soprano, Easter greetings." "And her a married woman!" sniffed Mrs. Mallory. "It's a wonder some of them don't offer themselves as housekeepers!" She made her exit with high scorn for the susceptible sex of which she was an humble member. "It certainly seems odd," reflected Rev. Mr. Davis, casting a quizzical glance at the small god of love. "I had not suspected Mrs. Wade of a secret attachment—for me—but you represent a subtle hint of some kind." He smiled.

He called up Mrs. Wade. No; she had not sent it. Her voice, over the phone, sounded more or less indignant at the idea. Rev. Mr. Davis prepared for his Easter service and dismissed the thought of the mysterious gift. The door leading to the chancel faced the choir. As the minister entered, his eyes lifted a moment and met those of a girl who occupied the soprano's usual place in the choir, and for a moment he had apprehensions. Was it possible that the Easter music, after all the careful preparation, was to be sung by the substitute—a stranger? Where was Mrs. Wade?

Heaved a Sigh as He Glanced at the Empty Chair.

But as the service progressed the minister realized that his fears were groundless. And that was not all—he was keenly conscious of the presence of the new soprano. After service, while he stood shaking hands with his departing parishioners, according to his usual custom, he anticipated with unusual pleasure his meeting with the girl who had so graciously assisted the choir. He was anxious to congratulate her and thank her. "Doctor Davis," said the voice of Jimmie Langhorn at his side, "I want to present you to this sister of mine. Muriel, our rector, Doctor Davis," he said turning to the girl. "She cried to be allowed to sing in our choir, so we had to let her. Mrs. Wade has a cold, you know, and was glad of an opportunity to be excused. Sis, here, has just returned from Germany and was anxious to try her wings." Jimmie Langhorn joked even with the minister.

Muriel cast an indignant glance at her brother as her hand met that of the minister. "It isn't so, Doctor Davis," she said with mounting color, for the young minister's gray eyes had not once left her face. "He and Mrs. Wade made dire threats until I consented." "For which they deserve a gold medal," affirmed the dominie. "Don't!" exclaimed Jimmie. "She is conceited enough now, between her voice and her collection of statuary!" "Statuary!" inquired the minister. "Then perhaps I can thank you, Miss

"Yes," Returned the Girl. Langhorn, for the dainty bit I received this morning?" Jimmie became suddenly interested in the arrangement of the music for the evening service. "I'm sorry," laughed Muriel, "but I happen not to be the guitar party." "Some one sent me Easter greetings in the form of a little marble god of love; and I have already insulded Mrs. Wade by accusing her of sending it." "And me! An absolute stranger—I like that!" Muriel spoke with some asperity and her manner, the minister noted, was much like her brother's. "Oh, please, Miss Langhorn," begged the minister contritely. "I'm really awfully sorry."

"Well—I'll think about it." She cast him one glance and turned to Jimmie. "Come, brother mine, or we won't get any dinner." She turned again to Doctor Davis, "Can't you take dinner with us?" "Under the condition that you will all come and eat cold turkey with me after the service tonight. I have a housekeeper who must be appeased." Since Muriel expected to be in Lee only a month before going to the city to start a concert career, Rev. Dr. Davis lost no time in laying siege to her heart. The minister's decisive chin denoted that when he wanted what he wanted he went straight for it.

Luckily, they lived in a healthy, cheerful community where calls upon the world-weary were not necessary and the dominie robbed no one in the time devoted to courting. Since it was nearing the end of the opera season, he took Muriel frequently to that realm of wonderful music. When she sang at concerts in the city, he was always there to escort her home and carry her floral tributes. These flowers invariably lent their sweetness to some humble dwelling in the village.

"Isn't it wonderful to be blessed with the power to help our fellow men?" Rev. Mr. Davis voiced this sentiment one evening as they walked home through the lanes after having called to see old Mrs. Gabel, who didn't get to church often on account of the distance. Muriel had sung some of the familiar old hymns for her until the dear old soul had wept from sheer happiness. "Yes," returned the girl with tears not far from her own eyes. "I have wondered lately if all the applause of a great, clapping audience will ever bring me one-tenth of the joy that the tears in Mrs. Gabel's eyes brought?" She looked out over the broad country. "Anyway, I shall often look out over the footlights and see—not a swarm of faces—but this!" Muriel's gesture swept in the starry heavens, the moonlit road and the great arch of trees.

Suddenly the dominie turned and took her in his arms. "You are not going on any stage! It would take you too far from me. You may do all the concert work—all the church singing you like—but always I will come for you when night falls. Your Brother Jim sent me the god of love and I am going to hold on to it! What do you think about it, dear?" "Evidently I am not to be allowed to think," murmured Muriel, but with finality in her resignation. (Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For Hair Health

If Rexall "93" Hair Tonic does not improve the health of your scalp and hair, we will pay for what you use during the trial.

We would not so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic if it did not do all we claim. Should it not prove entirely satisfactory our customers would lose faith in us, we would lose their patronage, and our business would suffer.

If your hair is falling out or you suffer any scalp trouble, we believe Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do more to eradicate the dandruff, give health to the scalp, stimulate new hair growth and prevent premature baldness than any other human agency.

We want you to make us prove this. We ask you to risk no money whatever. Buy a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, use it according to directions for thirty days; then if you are not entirely satisfied, come and let us and we will promptly hand back the money you paid us for it.

We won't ask you to sign anything, nor even to bring the bottle back. We won't obligate you in any way. We will take your mere word. Could anything be more fair? Could we do anything more to prove our belief in Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and our honesty of purpose in recommending it to you?

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as spring water and has but a faint, pleasing odor. It comes in two sizes of bottles, 50c and $1.00. You can buy Rexall "93" Hair Tonic in this community only at our store:
