Reynolds and Lem B. Parker. It will be seen for the first time in this place at the Lyric on Thursday, April 3. It tells a beautiful story of the Ozark mountains, a story that holds the auditor by its rills from the beginning to the end. It is unique in character-drawing, giving to the stage a somewhat new atmosphere. The beauty of the Ozark mountain region lends itself to some very effective stage pictures, and Gaskill and MacVitty, the producers, are said to have given the play an exceptionally beautiful mounting.

The assassinations in Dunmore late, in which the Black Hand is alleged to be the foundation, is all the more disturbing because of the escape of the murderers. In the last killing, however, it would appear as if the death of one, Cataldo Mariscola, rids the community of an undesirable citizen, as a search of his effects, disclosed in his trunk, thirteen sticks of dynamite, a coil of wire, revolvers, concussion caps, and masks, all of which lead to the conclusion that Mariscola was a dangerous man to be at large. The proposition is that the man was a Black Hand and was killed in revenge by some of his victims. It could be an interesting situation if the Black Hand was to be suppressed and routed by some of their ownetics in striking fear into their vicins of extortion by slaying them secretly.

The "Baby Mine" company played at the Lyric Monday afternoon and evening and both performances were greeted by large houses. The presentation offered much fun and genuine amusement to the large audience. The parts were well taken and the performers were all artists in their special lines. The play was amusing and full of ready wit and humor and the audience was not allowed one dull moment during the entire play.

An effort was made some time ago by the people of that locality to have a line run through there but it is said that not enough users of the power could be obtained to make the lines profitable.

At the Lyric Monday evening, March 31, under the auspices of the Honesdale High school, Edward Reno, expert illusionist. For thirty-three years Edward Reno has been a magician and in that time he has traveled all over the world, including India, Syria and Egypt. Reno is constantly inventing new things in magic and illusions, also in foreign lands he picked up many things not known to many professionals. Magic, like everything else, has progressed with rapid strides during the past few years. Never was there a better demand for up-to-date illusions and sleight of hand than now, but there is no room nowadays for anyone who does not keep strictly abreast of the profession. One of his performances that never fails to amaze his audiences is known as the "dove trick." He burns a piece of common paper, and a dove rises phoenix-like from the ashes. He apparently tears the dove in two, only to find that he has two doves in his hands. He throws a glass of water into the air, and it changes into a dove and flies away.

of greeting. Where had Braman been? Don't you know? Why, he had been making a trip out to the Hawkeye State after a fresh lot of Iowa horses. That's all! Then you stop him on the street and coax him to tell you about conditions, climate, crops and people out where he has been; and as you go on your way, after a few moments of brisk conversation you are glad you met him, and you hope that he was glad he met you. Yes, yes!

Who should walk into The Citizen office the other day but A. D. Dean, one of the very bright attorneys of the city of Scranton. Lawyer Dean is a brother of Dr. G. Edgar Dean, an eye specialist of that city, and who was the Coroner of Lackawanna county succeeding the late Dr. N. G. Leet. The Deans were among the early pioneers of the Lackawanna valley, and some of the Heermans branch came over into Old Wayne county, finding residence in Salem township. In their early holdings of lands in the vicinity of Scranton they had title to real estate that covered valuable coal beds. In transferring some titles of these lands the father of the Deans mentioned above left open some legal gap that was later taken advantage of, resulting in a famous suit in the Lackawanna courts that covered a period of twenty years. And, boys, that's a pretty long lawsuit. The Deans won the suit two years ago, the result being that about $100,000 were ordered to be distributed among the claimants. And,—but that's the story.

The other evening when the writer was on an E. & W. V. train bound for Hoadleys he was pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Baker of Dunmore, board the train from the branch train when it arrived at West Sterling. They were just coming home from a seven weeks' tour through Florida, and, while wearied by the journey, yet were enthusiastic over their experiences and observations while down in the land of sunshine and oranges. Mr. Baker said that while it had been many years since he lived in Wayne county, one of his earliest and happiest recollections was of the welcome visit of The Citizen in his father's home near Waymart every week. He said that when the paper came from the office it was read from first to last column, and was a joy that could not easily be forgotten.
