AWLEY for the past two years has been in a sad way, because it has been band-less. Just think of it, fellow-citizens, a town of the importance of Hawley, and no band that could be called on for purposes constantly arising that demand the inspiring music of horns and drums. Such a condition as that is not to be contemplated with equanimity. At least that is what H. J. Meyers thought, and Mr. Meyers is not a Hawley boy of long residence. either. He was a musician connected with a travelling show of some sort, and in his travels he came to Hawley, and the inevitable happened: He fell in love with a Hawley maiden, married her and cattled down for life as a

He found Hawley without a band.

For many years Hawley had two ands. They were known as the bands. They were known as the German band and the Irish band, and there was always more or less of friendly rivalry between the two institutions. The writer can remem-ber—but, pshaw! What's the use of going into that at this time? Later on, perhaps we will tell more about the musical side of the town's history

When Mr. Meyers saw the bandless condition of the town he went to work to try and set all such matters to rights. The result is that a band of twenty-one members has been organized. It is composed of the following young men, or boys, rather, for the new band.

Readers of the local newspapers have been noting of late the fact that many personal items from Hawley in the future to be able to say to any are in the nature of brief announce-ments of "calls" or "visits" from out-of-town young men. As proof of out-of-town young men. As proof of what is now being written it may be as well to go over this department right now and read for yourselves. This fact, when coupled with the other fact that during the last few years other men from the "regions beyond" have come into Hawley, and finding what desirable young women were here, they did not let Opportunity stand knocking at their Opportunity stand knocking at their doors very long, but invited him inin other words, they took unto them-

The Senior Class Will Hold Commencement Exercises.

The senior class of the Hawley High school will this year hold Commencement exercises instead of the Washington Four, which has been substituted by the two preceding classes. On Sunday evening, June Sth, the baccalaureate sermon will be preached. The clergyman who will preach this sermon has not yet been selected. Monday night, June 9th, will be Class Night, and the exercises will be held in the auditorium of the High School building. Admission will be free to all. On Tuesday even-ing, June 10, the Class Play will be given, which will be followed by a dance that will be conducted by the underclasses. On Wednesday even-ing, June 11, the Commencement exmembers of the class are: Joseph L. Curran, president; Ruth E. Guest, vice-president; John F. Carroll, sec-retary-treasurer; Harriet McAndrew, historian; Sannie Miller, Laura Decker and Margaret Brown.
