

HELD AS BURGLARS

Hazleton Thinks They Have Men Who Menaced City.

GOT "TIP" FROM NEW YORK.

Capture is Made on Advice of Authorities From That City—Will Be Prosecuted For Carrying Burglar Tools—Suspects Are All From Russia.

Hazleton, Pa., April 14.—Efforts are being made by the Hazleton police to determine whether the three men arrested upon their arrival here, at the request of the New York authorities, on a charge of burglary, had anything to do with a series of robberies committed in this city last year.

The suspects gave their names as Thomas Williams and Joseph Stone of New York and Joseph Duliczyk of Jersey City. All are Russians and claim to have come here to seek work.

They carried a satchel containing a complete set of burglar's tools and a flashlight. Williams had a loaded revolver. Stone admitted that he was in Hazleton several months ago.

The police think that numerous burglaries here were the work of an outfit of town gang that came to Hazleton periodically and then slipped out. The bag carried by the three suspects corresponds to one left behind after a local robbery.

Edward Turnbach, chief of police, received a message from the New York department advising him not to hold the suspect any longer on any charges from New York. The trio will be prosecuted by this city for carrying concealed weapons and burglar tools.

According to the chief, New York "tipped off" Hazleton more to prevent possible operations here than on any specific information lodged against the men in New York.

It is understood that the New York detectives have been trailing three men suspected of the $250,000 robbery of the pawnshop of Martin Simons & Sons on the east side a month ago.

FLEECES MANY FARMERS.

Supposed Representative of State Dairy Cleverly Bunkoes Them.

Sharon, Pa., April 14.—Posting as a representative from the state dairy and food department, a slick individual has been fleecing farmers and dairymen in this region out of sums of money ranging from $25 to $50.

His plan is to get samples of milk and in a few days return with the story that the samples did not come up to the requirements in butter fat. For $25 or $50 he would agree not to prosecute the dairyman, nor would he allow it to get into the newspapers. In this way he collected a considerable sum.

Investigation among the justices of the peace convinced the dairymen that they had been cleverly bunkoed.

PAYS $10 FOR TEARING SIGN.

Preacher Rips Measles Card Off Son-in-law's Door.

Lancaster, Pa., April 14.—Believing that the visitation of disease was the Lord's will and that earthly powers had no right to interfere, the Rev. Joseph Boll tore down the board of health placard that had been placed on the home of his son-in-law, Roland Keath of Penn township, whose child had the measles.

Keath refused to allow the authorities to fumigate the house after the child was cured, and he was fined $25 and costs. Later it was learned that his father-in-law had torn down the health notice, and he also was prosecuted. He admitted the charge and paid the fine of $10 and costs.

MISSING GIRL FOUND.

Student Was Working on Farm—Suffers Nervous Breakdown.

Coatesville, Pa., April 14.—Lina S. Richards, nineteen years old, West Chester Normal school student, who was found working on a farm near Oxford after her disappearance five days ago, was brought here by her uncle, A. C. Scraftford. She is suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Miss Richards told of her overstudies and search for work that ended at the farm of J. W. Watt.

"It is true," she said, "that a young man and I at school were friends, but that had nothing to do with my leaving."

TRAIN HITS BUGGY; 2 KILLED.

Occupants Hurlled From Seats, but Carriage Is Undamaged.

Allentown, Pa., April 14.—A team occupied by George Frits, fifty-four years old, and Charles B. Mory, fifty-one, was struck by a local train on the Philadelphia division of the Lehigh Valley Transit company near here.

The train was not speeding, and horse and buggy were not injured. The men, however, were thrown from their seats and landed on their heads. Both suffered a fractured skull and died at the Allentown hospital.

Woman Drinks Wood Alcohol.

Chester, Pa., April 14.—Drinking wood alcohol in mistake for medicine Miss Agnes Keer nearly lost her life.

She was hurried to the Chester hospital, where heroic methods were resorted to to save her life.

CRISIS NEAR FOR POPE PIUS.

Pontiff Suffers Another Relapse—Doubled Guards at Vatican.

London, April 14.—A Rome dispatch to the Daily News says:

"The pope has suffered another relapse, and the silence of Sunday was broken in the streets by newsboys shouting, 'The pope's last hours.'

"I learn on the best authority that every preparation is being made at the Vatican for the end. Cardinal Merry del Val on Saturday ordered the gendarmes on night duty to have a motor car in readiness to summon Cardinal Vannutelli, who is the penitentiary major and must administer the last sacraments and give absolution.

"St. Peter's square was crowded all day, especially by foreign tourists, and the pope's bedroom window is now one of the 'sights' of Rome.

"Cardinals, prelates and diplomats were calling continually at the Vatican and anxiously asking for news.

"Disappointed pilgrims with tear stained faces were aimlessly wandering among the crowd and occasionally entered the churches to pray for the pope's recovery.

"So far no public prayers have been ordered in the churches."

Rome, April 14.—Pope Pius X. maintained his strength fairly well throughout the day yesterday, but late at night it was reported that he was becoming weaker. Respiration was more difficult, and he was showing signs of great exhaustion. His temperature changed frequently.

Early this morning the general feeling was that it would be a miracle if he survived the present attack. The anxiety of his attendants is increasing.

The feeling prevails among medical men that the pope's end will come somewhat like Mr. Morgan's, through a general breakup of the whole system. It is asserted that in his case his mental faculties will be affected by delirium.

The guards have been doubled about the Vatican and will be kept on guard constantly. Nobody will be allowed to enter the Vatican unless he is able to prove that he has urgent business there.

DRAG RIVER FOR MARTIN'S BODY

London Police Think Wealthy American Was Murdered and Robbed.

London, April 14.—Satisfied that Joseph Wilberforce Martin of Memphis, Tenn., was robbed and then thrown over the Hungerford bridge into the Thames river, the London police are dragging the river with the hope that his body will be found. For several days they had been scouting the theory advanced by friends of the wealthy American that he had met with foul play, but the finding of his pocketbook and opera hat in the muddy Thames river embankment has removed the impression that the American had suffered from a lapse of memory and had become lost.

His friends had insisted since he was first missed ten days ago that there was something suspicious, but in the absence of anything substantial on which to base their fears Scotland Yard has accepted the disappearance as that of a man who had merely strayed away.

A cablegram received from Hill Martin, a brother, states that he will leave New York city tomorrow for London to assist in the search, and he has authorized the offering of a reward of $2,500 for information of his whereabouts.

Mr. Martin had been in London three months, having come to dispose of options on Arkansas lands worth $1,000,000, and it is believed he had completed his mission. He was an honorary member of the Royal Automobile club, and it was while on his way from the club to his home in Park place, St. James', that he disappeared. He would have to cross the Hungerford bridge to reach his apartments, and the belief now prevails that while on the bridge he was held up, robbed and then thrown into the river. It was known he had much money that night.

TO TRIM CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

Washington, April 14.—Democratic senators intend to weed out of the classified service employees who have made false affidavits as to their legal residences.

When Senator O'Gorman's resolution calling for a list of the names and residences of all civil service employees was brought up Mr. Overman said he had received an anticipatory protest from Chairman Black of the civil service commission.

Chairman Black said it would cost $29,000 to print the names of the 297,000 employees called for and require a large force of clerks to compile it. Senator Overman said that was 10 cents a name, but he did not care what the cost was. "The classified service is thick with people claiming to come from states in which they have never set foot," he said.

WILSON REWARDS EX-GUARD.

President Makes Captain Bill McDonald U. S. Marshal in Texas.

Washington, April 14.—Among the nominations just sent to the senate by President Wilson was that of William J. McDonald to be United States marshal for the northern district of Texas.

Captain Bill McDonald, as he has been known, acted as volunteer guard to Mr. Wilson during the entire campaign. He is the man of whom it has been said he "would charge hell with a bucket of water."

WILSON CONTROLS HIS PARTY WELL

His Influence Is Apparent In Many Things.

DEMOCRATS ARE LOYAL.

They Want to Go Along With President as Far as Possible—Wouldn't Fancy Being Classed as "Reactionaries"—Underwood Scores on Tariff. Several "Minority Leaders."

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 14.—[Special.]—Few presidents have been in as complete control of their party in congress as President Wilson. That his influence and suggestion can be traced all through the tariff bill there can be little doubt, that he has been able to shape the most important and closely contested schedules to his liking is true, and that the tariff will be considered in the shape and on the lines he suggests is also a fact.

Most of this influence had been exerted before congress met in extra session, so the power which the president exercises cannot be traced to his visits to the capitol or the fact that his first message was delivered in person.

The truth is that the Democrats, whether of one faction or another, want to go along with the president just as far as they can. There are no Democrats who want to be classed as "reactionaries," or at least leave themselves open to the charge or having it proved if made. And the Democrat who opposes President Wilson is apt to be so classed.

Underwood Scored First.

By introducing his tariff bill on the first day of the session Underwood scored first, beating President Wilson to it, so to speak. As Wilson's message was all about the tariff and Underwood's bill was all tariff there can be no question of first blood for the young man from Alabama.

Minority Leaders.

"Majority Leader Underwood after a conference with Minority Leader Mann and Minority Leader Murdock," etc., as a recent paragraph read, shows that there is surplus of minority leaders in the house.

And why shouldn't Hal Cooper of Wisconsin get into the minority leader game? He received the votes of four men for speaker—four who were too progressive to vote for Jim Mann and not progressive enough to vote for Vic Murdock. Lenroot of Wisconsin and Anderson of Minnesota wouldn't vote for Mann two years ago, but they thought he was good enough to support this time.

Don't Need to Sacrifice.

"I have accepted the office at a great personal sacrifice," said a man who recently took a place under the new administration. The statement caused groans by those Democratic patriots who have been waiting around Washington for more than a month for jobs. "My goodness!" exclaimed one. "He takes the place at a personal sacrifice. He doesn't need to do that. There's a lot of us willing to take any of these jobs."

"Who's Chandler?" They Asked.

On the opening day a young man appeared for the first time in the house and nominated Victor Murdock for speaker. His name was Chandler, and he was credited to New York in the printed list of members. But before five minutes had elapsed the people were asking, "Who's this fellow Chandler?"

He talked too much, in the estimation of those who gauge oratory. He threatened too much, in the judgment of those who have heard oratorical thunderings before. But after he had gone the gamut of Progressive outpourings his Irish came out, and as the words flowed in easy blarney liquid everybody came to the conclusion that he had "gone across." Chandler had made good. He was the real thing as an orator, and although he had been somewhat flowery and the old timer would have put much of his stuff under the title of "slush," yet upon the whole he made a good cleanup. Mr. Chandler represents the Nineteenth New York district.

Clerk Tackled It.

The name of the delegate from Hawaii is Jonah Kalanialoale. It takes an expert to pronounce the name, and it is pronounced only once in two years—when the clerk has to read it among the names of those elected to congress. The clerk who has to do the reading went up against the name for the first time when congress assembled, but he hesitated only long enough to let everybody know that he had a hard proposition to tackle and went to it. What he said no one will ever know, for his efforts were drowned in the gale of laughter that swept over the house. You can't trifle with a name like that and get away with it.

Are They Liars?

An irate individual asked, "Which of these departments contains the most liars?" He was trying to get something and found that he was delayed or put off, as many another man is in these times, when there is such a great demand upon the time of cabinet officers.

Naturally promises to see men at certain times cannot be fulfilled. Naturally the time of cabinet men is occupied beyond their anticipation. Politicians are not all liars. They have to handle situations as they develop.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Reading on April Topic.

"What can be done to help enforce the laws concerning Sunday observance and the selling of cigarettes to minors?"

I know of no other or better way than to get necessary evidence to convict, then prosecute, trusting and praying that the judge will be true to his trust and do his duty conscientiously and humanely.

The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. The Webb bill, prohibiting the shipment of intoxicating liquors from wet to dry states, was passed over President Taft's veto.

Our new President, Woodrow Wilson, and family are opposed to the use of liquor, but the fact that the licenses remonstrated against in our own county were not granted, fills us on to do more and better work. No one can tell how much misery and woe has been averted by the judge's decision for from what we saw and heard in license court on March 13, we know that all boys of any age (if in size they might pass for men) can get alcoholic drinks from any of the licensed places and generally on Sunday as well as any other day. Some years ago I knew of a case where the boy was too small to make even a show of deceiving so the beer was simply handed to a man with the remark, "You may give it to him but I can't," just a form to avoid the penalties of the law.

Through many years I have noticed that where the mothers accepted the drinking of the father and brothers as a matter of course, and voiced no murmur of protest, the children for many generations filled drunkard's graves; but where the wife, mother and sister resolutely fought the habit, and taught the children the horror and eternal woe of it, the children were total abstainers. Mark this in your mind. Oh, mothers! and all, especially those who have children in your care, we implore you to help us in every way that lies in your power to down this monster evil that threatens to destroy our best and all.

Is it nothing to you that your boy goes down

'Neath the waves of an angry sea, Drawn out to its depths by the undertow

To endless misery?

Is it nothing to you that the snare is laid

For his feet by the fowler grim, To wholly entrap by its subtle ruse

And draw him completely in?

Is it nothing to you that the boy, the man

To be, as the life unfolds, With hand to the helm of the ship of state,

To guide it 'mid numerous shoals,

That he be the kind that its builders were

And not the reckless freak With powers dethroned and manhood lost

The inevitable wage of drink? It is something to you, 'twere strange

If 'twere not

O parent, citizen, friend! Then toll at the spring that gives birth to the stream

Make the boy what you want him as man

Shield him full from the filth that befoils the whole stream,

Break the traps that are set for his feet,

Cut out the drink evil that lurks in his path,

Cut it out ere 'tis said, "'Tis too late!"
