STEENE.

Four of our well known fishermen from Carbondale with a large touring car, whipped the trout streams in the vicinity of Dyberry last Tuesday with great success, so much so that on their return late in the evening, when within about 50 rods of the Bobolink's home the hind axle right under where the finny tribe was stored, broke, putting the machine out of commission. The fishermen were wise in having another car to use in case of emergency in which their fish and tackle were stored. The Bobolink and span of colts were called out and in two hours after the accident the machine was stored in the latter's barn while the fishermen with their heavily loaded emergency car started on a slow gate toward Carbondale.

MILANVILLE.

Much is said and done in favor of foreign missions which is all right, but some times there is missionary work very near our door as the following pitiful case, which has recently been brought to light. Several foreigners have been engaged for two years or more cutting acid wood. They are now located near Tyler Hill in Fortnams woods. For many months the only woman in camp has been a victim of consumption contracted by living in a crude cabin unfit for women or children. For three months this woman has been so weak from hemorrhages that she has not been out of her bed. In that time no washing or cleaning has been done and the two very small children have been barefoot, unclad save for a man's undershirt. The husband has prepared what food they had. Two weeks ago Dr. McCray, of Cohecton, was called and preparations were made to send the unfortunate woman to her sister in Chicago.

TO ORGANIZE LOCAL SPORTSMEN ASSOCIATION.

Frank H. Eisele, superintendent of the Honesdale Consolidated Light, Heat and Power company, is endeavoring to organize a branch of the United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania in Wayne county. He has approached the proposition to several Honesdale and Wayne county sportsmen and has met with great encouragement. The members resolve to obey the fish, game and forestry laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to assist in their enforcement. To give active aid in the perpetuation and increase of the fish and game in Pennsylvania. To help in the preservation of the purity of the waters of the Commonwealth and to encourage preservation and increase of the forest areas and to be of assistance to fellow sportsmen.

The purpose and object of the association is stated in the foregoing paragraph and we see no reason why Mr. Eisele could not organize a strong association here. The object is a worthy one and should be given the undivided support of every sportsman in the county. Scranton has an enthusiastic organization as should Wayne county.

VAUDEVILLE AT LYRIC TONIGHT

An unusually strong vaudeville bill is being presented at the Lyric Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, with a matinee on Saturday afternoon, this week. Paul Frederick and Mlle. Venita, direct from the New York Hippodrome are really wonderful gymnastic equilibrist. They are both clever on the wire and show remarkable strength in doing a number of balancing feats suspended by the teeth. Bob Dale has a very pleasing musical act. His playing on the saxophone seems to be appreciated mostly. He is an artist on this particular instrument. The colored team, Sheftell & Mitchell, are without a doubt the best entertainers of the African race that has yet appeared at the Lyric. Their dancing and singing numbers are certainly there with some class. Al Bartell, ventriloquist, is a new act for this town. His work is very deceiving and contains much real good comedy. The added attraction, "Nan and Babe Evans in the Suffragette and the Child" gives tone to the program. This act cannot be easily described. It must be seen to be appreciated. Besides the above acts four reels of new pictures are shown. The subjects are changed daily.

A CARD.

To the Public:

SOME TIME AGO I offered a VALUABLE PREMIUM to the party that visited the NORTH OF BAY COUNTIES EXHIBIT CARS FROM CALIFORNIA and write up a description of their visit, one that the public could read and thoroughly understand, what a wonderful collection this is of the natural products of the land and sea. No one so far has done it. All fall down on the job, especially on the MONSTER SHARK, as all are not students of ZOOLOGY.

This specimen is so large it staggers them. Still we have books that tell of the Basking Shark 68 feet long, twice as long as this one. We all can read of whales, sharks, devil-fish, mammoth tortoises and sea turtles and other denizens of the deep, but OBJECT LESSONS like this go far ahead of reading.

Please remember, ONLY TWO of these MONSTERS have been preserved for public exhibition, this one and one in the private museum of Prof. David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford University, Palo Alto, California.

When we invite you to come and inspect this wonderful collection of curios we know that NONE OF YOU has ever seen such a collection brought right to your door for the small price of admission, 25 cents, and you will appreciate it.

Respectfully,

M. LEAK,

Manager North of Bay Counties Exhibit Cars.

Will Exhibit at Honesdale May 5, 6 and 7, 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. Admission, adults 25c; children, under 15 years, 15 cents.

BURGESS McCARTY'S ADDRESS

to greater and more persistent efforts, not only to retrieve our lost fortunes but to place our town upon a higher industrial plane than it held at any time. "And Honesdale used its own dead self as stepping stones to higher things."

The pioneers of our early industries merit the highest praise for their indomitable courage and persistence under difficulties, their indefatigable and untiring efforts to wrest success from most unfavorable conditions and their determination to place Honesdale upon the map.

There are names so closely interwoven with this industrial struggle that if mentioned here, would evoke your loud applause, but the list would be too long to name them all, and we could not discriminate by mentioning any number less than the whole. In the past how well they have succeeded, this celebration is the crowning and conclusive proof.

Creative and constructive genius have from time to time through all the ages manifested itself in works more or less enduring, symbols of the age in which they were produced and the conditions which made them possible. The pyramids and obelisks of Egypt display in their conception and construction a knowledge of artistic and mechanical skill which is the marvel of all succeeding ages, but no benefit has accrued to humanity by reason of their existence, excepting to arouse our curiosity or possibly our admiration. To the present age, they convey little meaning and touches no chord of human sympathy.

The Coliseum and Amphitheatres of Ancient Rome are marvels of architectural beauty and construction but they were debased to the use of gladiatorial combats to furnish a holiday to the aristocracy of Ancient Rome, and to use as a place for Christian martyrdom, but the race was not made better or happier by their existence.

Genius has been exhausted in the construction and erection of monuments to perpetuate the ambitions and victory of petty conquerors and statesmen while the people are under the pressure of misused power.

And yet, neither the monument in Trafalgar Square which commemorates the victories of Nelson on the Sea, nor the column vendome to perpetuate the victories of Napoleon on land, ever fed or clothed a child, but let such monuments stand through all time as evidences of the different uses which may be made of genius when used in the different ages of the world.

The nineteenth and twentieth centuries are not wanting in monuments, but instead of preserving within their walls the dead bones of departed greatness and antique souvenirs of ages past, you may see there, thousands of happy faces of skilled artisans, mechanics and laborers operating and guarding marvelously constructed machinery in the production of articles which make this world a better and happier place in which to live, and at the same time giving these inmates an equal chance with the most fortunate to profit by their own efforts, and it is to celebrate one of these modern monuments, the Gurney Electric Elevator Works that we are assembled here. Her industries are the most valued asset of a town such as this, they are not only an asset of the town, but a part of the town, and that part from which all the material wealth comes. Honesdale then welcomes this new and most extensive industry to our town and as part and parcel of the town and offers her official greeting to those whose efforts are the cause of the good fortune of having such an improvement to our wealth and the wealth of our people.

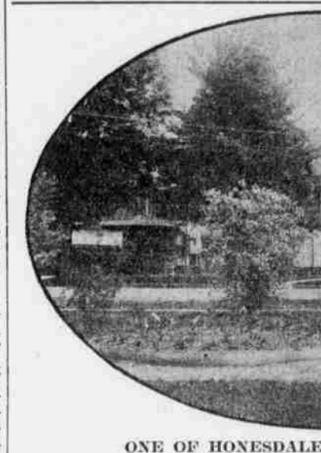

However, much we would like to speak in abstract and in generalities the occasion calls for some brief sketch at least of the monument which we are here to celebrate. The Gurney Electric Elevator Works is not without a pedigree, reaching back over long years of time and several generations of people. The evolutions, vicissitudes and changes through which this institution passed until it has reached its crowning time now, year after year, changing its products as occasion required, always ready to adopt itself to the requirements of its times, it tolled on, passing in time from one management to another, growing and expanding as it passed down through good reports and evil reports, through prosperous times and times of depression. The names were changed to the National Elevator Works, and finally to the Gurney Electric Elevator Works, its present name; then quietly, noiselessly, without a ripple on the surface, under the guidance of a Master mind and a Master hand, the product of this company reached perfection and were shipped to cities remote and far from home. By and by the plant was found too small to fill the orders which came in and the management was confronted with the necessity of a new and larger plant. The question then presented itself as to the possible location within the limits of the town and one of two things had to occur, the plant had to have larger quarters or it should move to other and more inviting fields. Then there came forward an organization which had been vigilant for some time regarding the welfare of the peoples interests, and known as "The Greater Honesdale Board of Trade." This organization had adopted as a motto, "Watch Honesdale Grow" and now the proposition of one of our greatest industries being compelled to leave Honesdale for the reason that a suitable location could be found upon which to locate the new and magnificent plant, which Mr. Gurney wished to erect, required solution promptly or the Greater Honesdale Board of Trade should forever after hold its peace.

The Greater Honesdale Board of Trade had now confronting it, a problem which, if properly solved, may simplify the real work of the board, that of a "Greater Honesdale," not by the acquisition of new territory but by making Honesdale itself greater, and

In this way solve the question which was the reason of its existence. The Greater Honesdale Board of Trade accepted the challenge and sent word to Mr. Gurney that it would furnish the goods, then the most serious question came up before the Board as to who should be appointed on the committee on sites and location, to secure the necessary grounds. In looking over the members present Mr. F. W. Krietner, president of the Board appointed on the committee Mr. Robert J. Murray and Mr. L. Blumenthal, as best adapted to do the work, presumably on account of the peculiar qualifications of each.

Mr. Murray had large experience throughout Wayne and adjoining counties in locating men who needed agricultural machinery, engines and other articles in Mr. Murray's line, and now he could turn this experience to good account in locating a site for an Elevator plant. Mr. L. Blumenthal, who has long been known as an adept in the art of securing all that he went after, and had a marvelous capacity of being able to convince men that their best interests would be served by doing as Mr. Blumenthal wanted, a better team could not be found anywhere, and so it came to pass that morning, noon and sometimes late at night these two men were seen at almost any point of the compass cautiously, carefully, diligently viewing the surrounding country around Honesdale, hoping to find the desired site. Mr. Murray always looking for the locations, Mr. Blumenthal inquiring as to the lowest purchase price.

In this way many options were secured, but for one reason and another they were not accepted, one available site was rejected because so many heirs owned the title. At last, like all good things, if carefully looked for could be found at home, and so finally the present location was fixed upon as most available. All the owners turned over their titles willingly, demanding in return, only a fair consideration, and not one obstacle was met

ONE OF HONESDALE'S BEAUTIFUL HOMES.

In this part of the work, including the Borough of Honesdale, which held the disposition of the street which divided the land and became necessary to the proper use of the plot; the rest was easy and hence the new and imposing factory.

In the bringing about of this great industry many elements entered, and only by their co-operation and harmonious working could the plant be made a possibility.

First: Mr. Gurney, by his marvelous ability in the construction of elevators, made the product sent out from his factory so much superior to all others that the necessity for enlarged quarters became a necessity, and then there are other Boards of Trade, as well as The Greater Honesdale Board of Trade, anxious to see people.

Then the question of grounds should be secured if the factory was to be located here, and then the financing of the enterprise. Fortunate indeed, for Honesdale, that by the thrift economy and industry of her people, our four banks are repositories of millions of dollars, held in trust for them, guarded by officers of recognized and conceded financial ability.

These banks are the envy of all surrounding financial institutions and their officers are always ready to place the peoples' money in any enterprise where it will not only bring a fair return to the owner but will help to enrich the whole community and every person therein; and so the financing of the enterprise was at once assured by the subscribing of the four banks of all the issue of bonds, amounting to two hundred thousand dollars; every element necessary and essential to the success of the enterprise. And now comes the crowning time as a reward for faithful, persistent effort; but now there is much to be done, eternal vigilance is the price of success, there should be no relaxing of efforts, but all should work together not so much for a Greater Honesdale as to make Honesdale greater.
