Rhubarb.

How few rhubarb plants one sees growing and how nice that old-fashdoned spring tonic ist Considering the fact that it costs practically nothing to plant it and the plants come up year after year, there is no reason why we should not, all of us, have all of the pieplant pie that we can eat every spring. Half a dozen hills will supply an average family.

Harvest time for rhubarb is the spring and early summer, but we frequently get a second crop in the fall.

Sandy loam is best for this plant, but it will grow well in any rich, warm, moist soil. You cannot get the still too rich for rhubarb, and it does not stand drouth very well.

Do not try to grow the plants from seed if you can secure root cuttings from a good, strong old hill. Each cutting should have two buds or eyes. Plant them in rows three feet apart, with the eyes an inch below the surface. They will begin to grow at once and, if planted early, a few stalks can be pulled the first year.

As fast as seed stalks appear cut them off. If very fine, large stalks are wanted, and why not have the best, thin out all but the center buds, so that the entire strength of the plant will feed these four inches of straw of manure. This prevents freezing and makes the next year's crop earlier.

While the plants will start early, at the same time the leaves will not push through this covering until after danger of spring frosts is past, hence it should not be removed too soon. Many commercial growers keep the soil covered with straw the year round in order to keep weeds down and hold moisture without cultivation. Cover the plants in the winter any-It will avoid disappointment way. and increase the plant food.

Every three or four years it is advisable to dig up the plants, divide them and replant in another spot. If this is not done, the plants run out and the stalks grow small and phiny. Division and a new location start them off again as good as new.

Any surplus can always be sold in the spring at a good price as we seem to have a natural craving for the fresh green acid qualities of this old-time "pie fruit." Eat lots of it. Eat it raw and cooked, in pies and out of pies, put up all you cannot eat and save it for winter, but grow it yourself if you have a two by four patch of ground where the sun shines. It costs nothing to raise and it tastes lots better when it comes out of your own patch. And, furthermore, it is a much better spring tonic than sulphur and mo-

TRAIN PHONE GIRLS' VOICES.

Lessons Will Be Given to Produce Sweet Tones.

The telephone company operating in St. Paul and Minneapolis has decided that the voices of its girl operators are not what it wishes them to be. The result is that the girls will be given lessons in voice culture so their voices will sound sweet over the phone. The company is taking a chance, for with sweeter volces more girls will be asked to desert the switchboard for the marriage altar.
