

"SPLENDID"--T. R.

That's His Comment on Outcome of Suit.

ALL CONCERNED ARE PLEASED

Colonel Says He Didn't Seek Revenge, but Aimed to Stop Further Slandering--Editor Newett Commended For His Action on Stand.

Marquette, Mich., June 2.—Delighted with the vindication he received by the acknowledgment of George A. Newett, editor of the Ishpeming Iron Ore, that he could not prove that Mr. Roosevelt was ever intemperate or addicted to intemperate habits, Theodore Roosevelt and his party left for home.

With the award by the jury, at the suggestion of Mr. Roosevelt, of damages of 6 cents the libel suit of the erstwhile president came to a close. The action of Mr. Newett in admitting on the witness stand that he could not prove his assertion that Mr. Roosevelt was intemperate and that he was convinced from the testimony and the depositions of Mr. Roosevelt's witnesses that the assertion was not founded on fact has brought him commendation from many sources.

T. R.'s Stand Admired. On the other hand, the action of Mr. Roosevelt in accepting the admission of Mr. Newett gracefully and disclaiming any desire for revenge or pecuniary benefit has brought forth expressions of admiration. The action of Mr. Roosevelt in asking that only nominal damages be awarded was made at the moment Mr. Newett admitted that he did not believe that Mr. Roosevelt was intemperate and that he was not justified in printing what he did.

"The verdict was perfectly splendid," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I did not go into this case for money, but for vindication. I made my reputation the issue because I wished once for all thoroughly and comprehensively to deal with these slanders. I have achieved my purpose, and I am content."

The editor in vindicating Mr. Roosevelt said in part: "I am unwilling to continue to assert that Mr. Roosevelt actually and in fact drank to excess. As a publisher of a newspaper I have never knowingly done injustice to any man, and neither I nor any of my attorneys is willing now to make or continue the assertion of an unjust charge against the plaintiff in this case. We have reached the conclusion that to continue expressly or impliedly to assert that Mr. Roosevelt drank to excess or actually became intoxicated as set forth in the article would do him an injustice."

WEDDING ORDER BY WIRELESS

Editor and Widow Arranged For It When 1,500 Miles at Sea.

Boston, June 2.—R. W. Pillsbury, proprietor of the Magchester (N. H.) Union, arrived on the steamer Cincinnati from Europe with his bride, whom he met while making a tour of the world on the Cleveland and whom he married at Yokohama a few months ago after arrangements for the marriage had been made by wireless when the steamer was 1,500 miles from that port.

Mr. Pillsbury's bride was Mrs. H. C. Valentine of Trenton, N. J., a widow.

The Cleveland left San Francisco last February. Mr. Pillsbury began courting at once. When the steamer arrived at Hongkong they announced their engagement. Before reaching Yokohama Mr. Pillsbury sent a wireless requesting that a Presbyterian minister be got. When the big liner arrived there the Rev. S. H. Devine was on the pier and married the pair.

Mr. Pillsbury was a widower and has a son at the Naval academy.

EXPRESS KILLS MAN IN AUTO.

Companions Jumped, but Julius Weiwecke Was Cut in Two.

Catskill, N. Y., June 2.—The West Shore Chicago express, northbound, struck a high powered car belonging to the Post garage at Catskill, instantly killing Julius Weiwecke of Catskill. He with Henry Post and Goodwin Cowles left here to bring a disabled car back to Catskill. In crossing the tracks they failed to notice the approaching train.

Post and Cowles jumped, but before Weiwecke, who was in the rear seat, could jump the car was struck and he was thrown in front of the engine, which passed over him, cutting his body in two. He was thirty-four years old and leaves an aged mother.

ARTIST STARVES TO DEATH.

Had Struggled Vainly Against Adversity Before the End Came.

New York, June 2.—Six years of struggling to fulfill an unrealized ideal brought with him to this country when he came from Germany ended ingloriously for Edgar Jenicke. His body, shrunken by disease and lack of proper nourishment, was found hunched up on a mattress spread on the floor of the basement in which he lived at 431 East Eighty-third street.

By the neighbors, who watched his eccentric movements, he was looked upon as a genius. He had told them of his substantial ancestry and prosperous relatives, who sent him a weekly remittance from a little German town, but he lamented his inability to go back to them as the possessor of the fame he set out to achieve.

When he moved to the little basement apartment six years ago Mr. Jenicke brought with him a complete artist's outfit. His pictures were attractive, and in the first few months of his dwelling there well dressed young women came to him for lessons in painting.

With him to his meager home Mr. Jenicke brought also a battered grand piano and two violins.

It was his playing of these instruments that brought the neighbors into his dim little abode in the earlier days of his residence there. They all were in the place when a policeman broke in the basement door and found him dead.

The neighbors learned about two years ago that Jenicke was suffering supposedly from tuberculosis. He refused the aid they offered him. Letters in his pockets showed that small amounts of money came to him from Mrs. Obriest Jenicke of Wittenburg, Germany.

On the floor alongside the mattress on which Jenicke was found dead was half a stake roll and a tin cup half filled with water. Those who looked at the body declared they believed the man had starved to death. The case was reported to the coroner for investigation.

$65,000 CHEST AT SEA BOTTOM.

Electro Magnet to Be Used to Raise Safe Containing Gold.

San Francisco, June 2.—Captain T. H. Whitelaw has located an iron chest which contains $65,000 in gold ingots at the bottom of the Bay of Angel island and will attempt to recover the fortune by means of an electro magnet. The safe was dropped from the hold of the steamer Corcoran, which was rammed and turned turtle after colliding with the steamer Seminole in a dense fog four months ago.

Owing to the depth of the water Captain Whitelaw has been unable to send a diver down to make a line fast so the safe might be raised. This will be the first time magnets have been used for this purpose here.

SEEK TARIFF LOBBY

Wilson Expected to Give List of Names.

SENATOR OVERMAN PRESIDES.

Members of Upper House Will Be Asked to Tell of Their Relations With "Big Business"—Each to Have Fifteen Minutes on the Stand.

Washington, June 2.—Speculation is rife in legislative circles as to the date when President Wilson will appear before the lobby investigating committee of the senate and submit to the committee the list of persons who, he charges, are at work endeavoring to influence members of congress to oppose the Underwood tariff bill. Until that list is presented, it is admitted, there will be considerable uneasiness in different quarters. The members of congress are also wondering just how far the president's information regarding the lobby extends.

Preparations for the commencement of the probe today were completed and Senator Overman of North Carolina, who will preside over the subcommittee that will conduct the investigation, announced that senators in blocks of four will be called upon to tell of their relations with "big business" during their terms in the senate.

After each of the ninety-one other senators has testified five will take the stand. Mr. Reed will occupy the chair while Mr. Overman testifies.

Can't Finish in Ten Days.

Although ten days is the limit fixed in the Cummins resolution for a report, it is already apparent that an extension of time will be necessary to complete the sweeping investigation. Each senator is expected to occupy only fifteen minutes. Following them will come the representatives of the interests who are seeking changes in the tariff schedules.

Among those who have been most active in conducting a propaganda for changes in the Underwood bill by means of advertisements in the local papers and personal appearance before the finance and the ways and means committees, are these:

William Whitman of Boston, representing the American Woolen association, who has been active for fifteen years in presenting the interests of the woolen industry to congress.

Winthrop Marvin, secretary of the American Woolen Manufacturers' association.

Henry T. Oxnard of Washington, who is largely interested in beet sugar growing and represents the industry.

Truman G. Palmer, also representing the Western Beet Sugar association. He has an office in the Union Trust building, Washington.

George Meyercood of Chicago, representing the lithographers.

William Payne, son of Representative Sereno Payne of New York, author of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. Mr. Payne is a lawyer and authority on customs matters.

STEALS HOUSE FROM THE CITY

Italian Meant to Sell It to Customers For Kindling.

New York, June 2.—Nicholas Notto, an Italian kindling dealer at Maspeth, was arrested charged with stealing a house belonging to the city of New York.

When the city condemned Roosevelt avenue as a preliminary to the erection of the elevated railroad which is Maspeth's share of the dual system the city took title to a one story house.

Yesterday all that remained was the foundation. The police say that Notto, with help, tore down the building and stacked the wood to be cut up for kindling.

MASONS HONOR A BABY.

Buffalo, June 2.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771 Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron B. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rite cathedral here. The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled her to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world.

Mr. Daggett is a thirty-second degree Mason and sovereign prince of Palmon Lodge of Perfection of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite.

WALKED OFF PIER ASLEEP.

Somnambulist Traveled a Mile in Night Clothes to the Hudson.

Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., June 2.—Melville Haynes of Uniontown, about a mile from here, owes his life to the fact that he is a good swimmer. Clad only in his night clothing he walked from his home in Uniontown to a pier at this place while asleep. Without awakening he walked off the pier. Needless to say, he woke up when he struck the water. Then he swam ashore.

This talk is directed to men and women who have "the commercial instinct"—who can make some one thing better than any one else—and who are ambitious to have a business of their own.

There are scores of men and women in this city—many of them wage earners—who ought to be their own boss. Lying dormant in their brain are ideas, which, if commercialized would make them wealthy.

What others have done you can do through ambition, determination and advertising. "Mary Elizabeth," of Rochester, was a working girl who made delicious chocolate creams. She sold a few pounds and was so encouraged that she got the advertising manager of a local newspaper help prepare some advertising. Within a few months every lover of good candy in Rochester was eating Mary Elizabeth's chocolates.

This was five years ago. "Mary Elizabeth" is now a wealthy business woman employing several hundred people. Her chocolates are known from ocean to ocean. Mennen was a barber, but he thought everybody ought to use his talcum powder. From a small start with advertising in his local newspapers an enormous business was created. Mennon left an estate worth over a million dollars.

A young man in Scranton secured the formula for a toilet cream of superior merit. He started with less than $100 and in fifteen months had built up a business requiring a working capital of $300,000.

Another young man had his mother teach him to make real homemade bread. He began by making bread in his own kitchen and advertising in a small way in the daily newspapers. Within two years he has become one of Philadelphia's foremost bakers.

Hundreds of similar stories of a big business from a small start can be told. Nearly every successful enterprise had a humble beginning. Continuous advertising made them grow. If you can make a loaf of bread, better pies or other eatables, better children's aprons, rompers or other articles of wear or use, come out into the open and let everybody enjoy the benefit of your genius. Commercialize your talent.

It is a part of the business of this newspaper to make business for others. The advertising manager will assist you in drawing up a plan and writing your ads without charge or obligation. Make a start NOW. Get a good plan and stick to it—advertise continuously and consistently and you will soon be at the head of a business you will be proud to own.
