SATURDAY FLAG DAY.

Saturday, June 14th, is flag day. In honor of the Stars and Stripes every citizen who has a flag in his possession is requested to unfurl the stately banner to the breezes on Saturday of this week. It is the 136th anniversary of the adoption of the flag of the United States. That it be displayed is the request of the President of the United States, the Governors of the different States of the Union, mayors and chief burgesses of the cities and towns. The day set apart for its annual observance has been fixed for the 14th of June. Unfurl the star-spangled banner to the breeze June 14th!

CONCERNING MAIN STREET'S PAVE.

That Main street will be paved is no "dream," although this assertion has been made by parties who evidently do not have the faith in matters developing. It is coming, nevertheless, and like the trolley road, it cannot come too quickly. The bond issue of $69,000 represents the entire amount, including the trolley's proportion, the State's share, the abutting property owner's proportion and the town's allotment. In reality the town's increased indebtedness will be only $14,000. Before the State will do any work or give any aid to assist paving Main street the whole amount has to be provided for, thus provision for $69,000 bond issue as mentioned in the borough ordinance.

In view of the fact that if the town paves this summer or fall it will receive $17,000 from the State, whereas if not taken advantage of by March 1st, 1914, this snug sum will have been lost until a period of perhaps from two to four years, it therefore behooves the public to take advantage of this opportunity and vote for pave July 11th at the special election.

This is the opportune time for paving and with the aid of the State and Wayne County Railway company it is doubtful if a similar opportunity will be afforded in several years to come.

Another feature which is worthy of the consideration of the taxpayer is the fact that the State Highway department will stand the expense of all preliminary work, such as surveying, making of drafts and the appointment of an inspector while the paving is being done.

This will save the town between $3,000 and $4,000, which necessarily would have to be paid as outside expense if the State's proportion were not taken advantage of. The State department will build the entire road for the town. It is therefore necessary to call for the entire bond issue at the start, which is fully explained in the first paragraph of this editorial.

The Citizen has always been in favor of paving and will from time to time print articles explaining the advantages to be obtained by grasping the opportunity of paving now. This journal hopes that when July 11th will have arrived that the people of the town will be so enthusiastic that they can hardly wait to vote for pave. Our prediction is that it will go through with flying colors.

SENATOR PENROSE IN SCRANTON

On Thursday night, June 5, Scranton and north-eastern Pennsylvania were honored by a visit from Pennsylvania's United States Senator, Bofes Penrose, the occasion being the ninth annual dinner of the Scranton Chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Wayne county was represented at the dinner by the following representatives: Judge A. T. Searle, Henry Z. Russell, L. A. Howell, F. W. Kreitner and C. A. Emery, of Honesdale; V. A. Decker, of Hawley, and M. J. Emery, of Ariel. There were about 300 guests at the dinner, which was held at Hotel Casey.

The spirit of the event was caught by Steinke, the artist of the Tribune-Republican, who represented the gathering as being that of a great man with a kindly face talking to other men. Senator Penrose wanted it distinctly understood that there was no spirit of political party antagonism in his coming to Scranton, and assured Bull Moosers they were as warmly welcomed at the gathering as were those who did not see matters political exactly as the men with the wide-spreading horns saw them.

Senator Penrose delivered a splendid address. He complimented the bankers of North-eastern Pennsylvania in the highest terms, and recited most impressively the heroism of banker Robert Morris in the Revolutionary War, of Jay Cooke in the Civil War, and of other bankers who have shown the true spirit of patriotism and loyalty in national crises that have tried the souls of our citizens. The Senator concluded his address as follows: "No armies on the field, no statesmen in the legislative halls deserve a more patriotic record in the history of the United States than the bankers of Pennsylvania."

The conclusion of the Senator's address left those who heard it impressed with the force and power of Robert C. Winthrop's true description of the right kind of patriotism, the kind in which "There are no points of the compass on the chart."

THE NEAR-LOBBYIST.

Nobody charges that there is intent back of it, but Senator Townsend, of Michigan, created something of a sensation on Friday last in the Senate's lobby investigation, by declaring that the influence wielded by President Wilson and by the Democratic secret caucus upon the making of the tariff bill constituted the "nearest approach to undue influence upon members of congress" that the investigating committee would be able to find.

Senator Townsend further criticized the committee for not having asked members of the senate whether the president had sought to influence them, and declared that even though the president had not intended it, his recent denunciation of "lobbies" working in support of changes in the tariff would force certain senators to vote against amendments they knew to be just.

As the time limit for the investigation has been extended 20 days, expiring on June 28, indications already are pointing to real torrid times.

Senator Townsend is not alone in his opinion as touching the effect of President Wilson's attitude on the subject in its influence on the votes of Senators. For instance, Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, also a Republican, following Senator Townsend on the stand, expressed the opinion that executives had had more influence on bills than all the persons who have come to Washington, put together.

It will be noted that Senator Townsend's statements in relation to President Wilson were not in the form of charges. He expressly said he did not charge the president with using improper methods; but he insisted that the charges that lobbies existed and the activity of the president in support of free wool and free sugar amounted to an "undue influence," even though he did not use the "big stick" of patronage.

In other words, it is possible, comparatively speaking, to rob a man without knocking him senseless with a bludgeon. Indeed, there might be circumstances where one might even allow the robbery to proceed without raising the voice in protest, concurring in the opinion that "discretion is the better part of valor."

In the meantime, the progress of the investigation will be regarded with increasing interest, inasmuch as, according to a motion made by Senator Walsh, it was agreed "that in view of the serious statements made touching the executive, any senator who has already testified may be recalled and interrogated in reference thereto."

BEATING THE DEVIL ABOUT THE STUMP.

A prominent feature in the plans to rehabilitate the Republican party is the proposition to base representation in the National Convention on the Republican vote of the respective states instead of on their population.

Southern Republican politicians are frankly opposed to this proposition which is directly aimed at reducing their power. The present system of basing representation in the National convention on total (negro plus white) population, allows Southern Republican leaders to use the negro to swell their number of delegates to the convention, and later on to disfranchise him at the polls.

Certain Northern Republican politicians liked the new proposition in so far as it works toward giving them the upper hand over the South but they are in a quandry how to prevent the new system from giving an advantage to those states which have enfranchised their women.

A prominent Pennsylvania newspaper editor makes this doleful supposition: "Suppose Ohio should adopt Woman Suffrage and Pennsylvania should reject it. In that case Ohio would probably cast about 300,000 more Republican votes than Pennsylvania and would therefore, under the new system, have a proportionately larger representation in the National convention. The banner Republican State would not have the proportionate weight in the convention that it is fairly entitled to, but would have to take a place below that of a state nowhere near so dependable in support of the ticket." "How to get a square deal without giving one" seems to be puzzling the politicians. If the banner Republican state should refuse to trust her women, doesn't she deserve to have to take a "back seat?"

THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.

"I earn what I eat, get what I wear, owe no man hate, envy no man's happiness; glad of other men's good, content with my harm."
—Shakespeare.

Some Citizens We Greet

"There's a chiel amang ye tak'in' notes
An' faith he'll prent it."
—Burns.

George Yousko is the name of a citizen whom we trust we shall greet in the months and years to come in Wayne county. His name is a new one, and he is a new addition to this section of the state. The writer met him on the Erie train one day recently, and he learned that he was making his first visit to our highlands and lakes. He is a young man, not yet old enough to vote, if we may hazard a guess. He is just out of Lincolnville Agricultural College, of N. Y. State. From that institution he went to New York city, but did not like city life, and came this way, bound for Waymart. Although his people live in Lincolnville, George Yousko is a native of Pennsylvania. He was born at Bethlehem. He showed the writer pictures of college scenes, and his healthy countenance, sunny disposition and happy demeanor indicate that his heart is in the right place and that he is sure to make a citizen that any community will be proud to own. He is a base ball enthusiast along with his other attainments, and his eyes sparkled with the peculiar glint that is so noticeable in all boys who love the freedom and excitement of the national game.

The writer advised George to call on Supt. Fitzsimmons, at the new State Hospital, where they undoubtedly would be able to find a suitable place for such a young man, fresh from an Agricultural College, in the modern farming they are undertaking this season.

Another citizen we sometimes greet is H. S. Whitmore, the postmaster of Inglehart, in Berlin township. When he manages to get away from his home duties for a brief interval he comes down into the charming precincts of the county seat to say "how d' yo' do?" to the boys and to see how we do things down here. Mr. Whitmore made such a trip to Honesdale the other day, and before he escaped the writer managed to pick up several items of interest with which he is more or less connected. Just at present we learn that he is in the field for the office of Supervisor of the highways of his township. He doesn't claim that he has some patent process of constructing roads that will produce the best road in the world at no cost, but he does claim that he knows what constitutes a good road, and is ready with all confidence to guarantee to the public that for their good money they will get value received, and that is what the public wants, and, furthermore, what the public should get.

The Children's day exercises at the hall Sunday morning, June 8th, were exceptionally well rendered before a large and appreciative audience. The burning of the Rileyville cheese factory was an exciting and deplorable event. It caught fire on the roof from the smokestack and on account of the fierce wind which was blowing at the time, was soon burned to the ground.

Nothing to Worry Over.

"I heard something the other day that greatly surprised me, and I have been worried about it ever since."

"What was it?"

"I don't know whether I ought to mention it to you or not, but I was told that your daughter's husband was a free thinker. She's such a lovely girl! I hope it isn't true."

"Of course it isn't, or if it is it won't make any difference. Laura takes after me, and my husband was a free thinker, too, when I married him. Now he never thinks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Inspiration and Sitting Tight.

George Elliot believed that her novels were the product of inspiration or genius. Anthony Trollope thought his was the result of "cobbling wax, madam," or the faculty of sitting tight in his chair and turning out 250 words every fifteen minutes for two or three hours before breakfast. The method succeeded so far as to bring him a return of $350,000 and the reading public a set of novels which are being more appreciated every day.—Fall Mall Gazette.
