Those who are interested in music pedagogy in this locality and Scranton, had an opportunity this week to meet and to hear Mrs. Evelyn Fletcher Copp of Boston, (the noted author of an important work, "The Fletcher Music Method") at close range as to time and space, as she lectured at Nicholson, Pa., on Wednesday. This (Thursday) morning she will lecture in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Strongman have issued invitations to a dinner to be given Saturday, June twenty-first, at their beautiful home in Bethany. Mr. Strongman has evidenced how the natural beauties of the hills and dales of old Wayne can lend themselves to artistic architecture, and we hope that his successful example may be followed by other men of means and of fine taste, in the building of handsome homes here.

A petition has been filed with Prothonotary Barnes by Kimble & Hanlan, attorneys for Angeline Lovelass asking that a writ of mandamus be issued against the supervisors of Damascus township. A rule was granted to show cause why writ should not be issued compelling supervisors, Charles Rutledge, J. J. Swendsen and N. L. Wood to pay the judgment, with notice to Searle & Salmon, attorneys for the township. Mrs. Lovelass was awarded a verdict some time ago in court for $107.30 against the township supervisors for their failure to remove some stones from the road. The judgment with costs now amounts to $167.50. The rule was made returnable in July.

Sarah Bernhardt may be seen in action, if not in the flesh, Friday, June 20, at the Lyric theatre, Main street, where there will be an exhibition a motion picture record of her recent performances in Paris of Emil Moreau's spectacular historical drama, "Queen Elizabeth." Moving about the screen in the photo-pantomime are living likenesses of the players who acted with her on her last tour of this company. Lou Tellegen, Maxullian, Piron, Denenbourg, Durozat, Mme. Bouslauger and Mlle. Romain. The pictures show the actress as she is except as to voice; even her personality seems to radiate from the screen. For those who care less to see an animated photograph of the actress than to learn something about the play, the pictures offer good instruction in the drift of its plot, the pictorial aspect of the characters and the extent and richness of the production. At the Lyric Friday night.

Rev. John O'Donovan, of New York City, superior of the Mission Fathers of the Jesuit Order, laboring in New York City and Maryland provinces, was a distinguished guest of Rev. John O'Toole, priest of St. John's Roman Catholic church over Sunday. He officiated at the 8:30 mass and preached a powerful sermon on the Sodality of "The Beauties of a Virtuous Life." The large edifice was crowded to the doors. He was present at the 10:30 mass, and also spoke to the Sunday school children. Twenty-nine years ago Father O'Donovan and Father O'Toole were classmates in college. His visit to Honesdale was not only appreciated and enjoyed by Father O'Toole, but by every member of the latter's large congregation. Father O'Donovan left on the early train Monday morning for Scranton, where he was a guest of Bishop Hoban before going to Harvey's Lake, where he is holding a retreat this week for the junior priests of this diocese.

DEATH OF MISS WORTHINGTON, Formerly Woman's Republic Governor of Pennsylvania.

The last number of "The Woman's National Weekly," St. Louis, contained the following notice: "Officers and members of the Woman's Republic and a legion of other friends, will be pained to learn of the death on June 1st at Baltimore of Miss Hester A. Worthington, Governor (Woman's Republic) of Maryland. Interment was at Annapolis, Md., Wednesday, June 4th. Miss Worthington was formerly Woman's Republic Governor of Pennsylvania, but having removed to Maryland was in January of this year appointed Governor of that state. She was for years an ardent worker in the League and other prominent organizations, and rendered most loyal and efficient service also in the Woman's Republic.

She was the daughter of the late Rev. George Fitzhugh and Elizabeth Harwood Worthington of Baltimore."

Miss Worthington was born in Annapolis, Maryland, of one of the best known southern families which is related or connected with such other noted families of the old south as the Washingtons, Lees, Fitzhughs, Harwoods, Schleys and others. She was a graduate of the Maryland Institute of Art, (Baltimore), under Prof. Fuchs; a student in a life class under the celebrated William M. Chase, etc. She came to Scranton to take charge of an art class organized by Miss Alice M. Swann of Virginia, and later became associated with Miss S. Louise Hardenbergh in the founding of the Hardenbergh School of Music and Art in Scranton, where she remained with full charge of the Art Department until three years ago when it was closed, by Miss Hardenbergh removing to Honesdale, and Miss Worthington to Baltimore. The other member of the faculty of this school was Sumner Salter of New York City, an Amherst B. A., a musician and composer of international reputation and one of the most scholarly of our time, who is now holding the chair of Music at Williams college.

Many of the best known young people of Scranton were students in Miss Worthington's art classes and thus came under the sway of her high idealism, also. Beside her professional work, Miss Worthington was very active in the religious and uplift work of Scranton, particularly that of St. Luke's church of which she was a devoted member. She was a teacher in the Industrial, B. I. A., and Sunday school of this church and its missions, under the rectorship of both Dr. Henry C. Swentzel and Bishop Israel; was one of the organizers and active workers in both the Dunmore and South Side missions; was an organizer, and an effective secretary of St. Luke's branch of the English society of the "Girls Friendly" for many years. She was also a member of the S. P. C. A., an organizer of the "Animal Humane Society" for which she did much stalwart work against great odds.

Many will miss the influence of this retiring, quiet but dominant gentlewoman, who has passed on. Scranton, Tribune-Republican, Times and Truth please note.
