Excursion Train Jumps Track at Curve.

PLUNGES OVER EMBANKMENT.

Thirty Physicians Quickly on Scene. Believed That All Hurt but One Will Recover-Train, Luckily, Going Slow at Time of the Accident.

Rochester, N. Y., June 23.-Nearly a hundred persons were injured, one probably fatally, at Cuylerville, three miles west of Geneseo, when four cars of a Pennsylvania excursion train taking mostly Rochester people to Olean, Bradford and Rock City, Pa., jumped the tracks at a curve. Roy Ash of 479 Alexander street, Rochester, is not expected to live, having been badly crushed. He is at the Craig colony in Sonyea, where eight of the more seriously hurt were taken for treatment.

A broken truck bolt on the tender of the engine is ascribed as the cause of the accident by the trainmen. Only the fact that the train was making but twenty-five miles an hour and the passengers had some warning of the accident kept the death list from being

News of the wreck was sent to Rochester and Olean, and relief trains were hurrled from both places. First reports were greatly exaggerated, but physicians found their hands full dressing cuts, bruises and setting broken bones. For a time the scene of the wreck looked like a battlefield. A caboose was fitted up, and the more seriously hurt were rushed to Sonyea, eleven miles away. With the exception of Ash, reports from the hospital say all will recover.

Tender Leaves Track.

The excursion train left the Pennsylvania station in Rochester in charge of Engineer Lee H. Ingram of Rochester and Conductor William E. Metcalf of Olean. It carried about 300 people. It was eleven minutes late at the time of the accident. The tender left the track and carried the smoker, the first car, with it. They plowed the ties for 150 feet before going over an embankment. The three other passenger cars followed the smoker, each leaving the tracks and turning over down the embankment, which is about ten feet high. The last two cars left the tracks, but stayed upright. Passengers in the derailed cars other than the smoker were able to brace themselves, and this opportunity to prepare for the crash saved many lives and broken

As soon as the passengers in the last two cars had recovered from the shock they rushed to the overturned cars and began to carry and pull people out of broken windows and the doors. It was because of the first view of bleeding and unconscious men and women that the general call for aid was sent out.

Rochester, Olean, Sonvea and nearby towns burried physicians to the Sonyon doctors, headed by Rev. James McCarthy, Roman Catho-He chaplain, were on hand first, and they took charge of the badly hurt In all there were thirty physicians in attendance.

General Superintendent Rogers came from Buffalo to the wreck with Division Superintendent Beale. would not say what they thought caused the wreck before they had made a careful investigation.

SHADOWED, SAYS MARTINE.

Will Tell Senate of Detective Espionage In West Virginia.

Washington, June 23.-Senator Martine of New Jersey intends to tell the senate this week that he was constantly shadowed by detectives on his recent visit to the West Virginia coal fields in connection with the investigation of conditions among the miners. These detectives, the senator says, even took notes of his conversations. This was done, he says, at the time of one of his talks with "Mother" Mary Jones while in the street.

It is not the purpose of Mr. Martine to ask the senate to take any action against the Baldwin detective guards, who, he thinks, were the ones who shadowed him, but he said that he thought the senate and the public should know the facts.

100 HURT IN WRECK LOOKOUT, NO. 1194, I. O. O. F. TARIFF BILL READY

Will Tax Luxuries, Exempt Necessities.

PREDICT SPEEDY ENACTMENT.

Cut Exempted Incomes From $4,000 to $2,000 - Democratic Senators In Caucus Approve of Changes. Underwood Bill Not Changed Materially.

Washington, June 23. - That there will not be serious disagreement between the house and the senate over the changes made in the tariff bill at the caucus of the Democratic senators, is the declaration of Mr. Underwood, the leader of the house. He also expressed the opinion that the bill practically in the form agreed upon at the caucus would pass both houses and speedily become a law.

Democratic members of the senate finance committee are at work redrafting the income tax section to reduce the exempted incomes from $4,000 to $3,000. This is to be completed today so as to be turned over to the caucus for consideration.

Friends of the administration are jubilant, as they view the action of the caucus, for although there was at times a difference of opinion as to what are luxuries and what are necessities, the senators all were in favor of taxing luxuries and exempting from the payment of duties all necessities.

The Underwood bill has not been changed materially, they assert, from the house bill. The duties on twothirds of the articles in the metal and machinery schedule, also on chemicals, oils and paints, earthenware and glassware, have been disposed of.

Revise Automobile Tariff.

The automobile paragraph was sent back to the committee with instructions to raise the rates on cars worth more than $1,500 and lower rates on those worth less.

Carbons for flaming are lamps, taxed 30 per cent, went back to the committee with instructions to make further investigations. As this is an entirely new industry, the caucus felt it had not sufficient information on which to base rates.

Opera and field glasses, which the house bill taxed 30 per cent and the senate bill 45, went back with instructions to tax field glasses as necessities and opera glasses as luxuries. The next paragraph was also sent back to the committee. It fixes 25 per cent ad valorem on telescopes and microscopes. These may now be admitted free as necessities of trade.

Stained and painted glass windows taxed at 30 per cent may be amended by excluding windows intended for churches and eleemosynary institu-

A question was raised on putting roman and portland cement in the same classification, and this paragraph was sent back. Pig iron, steel ingots and billets were approved for the free

Protests from California were received against the proposed repeal of the special limitation revenue tax of 1890 on brandies used in fortifying wines. California wine producers de clared that to compel them to pay the full internal revenue tax on brandles will make it impossible for them to compete with foreign nations in manufacturing sweet wines.

SHEEP TO CUT JOHN D.'S GRASS

Rockefeller Golf Course Will Be Mow ed Scotch Fashion. Tarrytown, N. Y., June 23-John D.

Rockefeller has adopted the Scotch plan of mowing the grass on his golf course. A shipment of 400 Southdown sheep reached Tarrytown. The sheep were sent by automobile truck to Po cantico Hills.

Heretofore the lawns of the Rockefeller estate have been trimmed by motor lawn mowers. These are to be discarded. The sheep are to be herded over Mr. Rockefeller's broad acres, fattening themselves and at the same time clipping the grass.

They cost about $6 apiece, or $2,400 for the herd. The new system will make the business of grass cutting considerably less than it has been.

FELON'S WIFE LOSES SUIT.

Divorce Refused on Ground She Kney of Husband's Forgeries. Chicago, June 23 .- Holding that Mrs.

Jessie R. Van Vilssingen was cognizant of and profited by her husband's forgeries, a jury in Judge Petit's court declined to grant her a divorce. The defendant, Peter Van Vlissingen, is serving a term in Joliet prison for mortgage forgeries aggregating more than $500,000.

Mrs. Van Vlissingen sued on the ground that her husband was a felon, while the principal contention of the defendant was that the woman, who was Van Vlissingen's stenographer before she was married to him, knew of his misdeeds before they became man and wife.

AIRMAN KILLS 52 IN TRENCH.

Efficacy of Aeroplane In Warfare Demonstrated In Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., June 23.-The most conclusive test of the efficacy of airships in modern warfare was made in the latest Mexican battle when Didier Masson, a French aviator, dropped a dynamite bomb in Guayamas harbor, killing whole companies of the Mexican federal troops and also showing the rebel artillery the position of the enemy.

The total death roll was fifty-two. It was at the battle of Ortez, sixty miles south of Hermisillo, Sonora. After repeated flascos, during which his machines and his flights became a standing joke, the aviator succeeded in getting his war engine in action when he made a long flight over the bay of Guayamas, where the battleships Guerrero and Tampico were at anchor. He dropped bombs on their decks and forced them to retreat to sea to escape the aerial fusiliade. Returning to the battlefield of Ortiz, Masson located the federal army in command of General Ojeda and at once started dropping bombs into the trenches. One trench upon which he had showered bombs contained fiftytwo federal dead when the rebels finally succeeded in capturing it.

Masson is the hero of the rebel army. Both rebel and federal news sources are claiming the final victory at Ortiz. The Mexican consulate here received messages saying that Ojeda had cut the rebels to pieces and was pursuing
