

WOMAN SENATOR TALKS TO LARGE AUDIENCE

MRS. HELEN RING ROBINSON HERE UNDER AUSPICES OF STATE SUFFRAGE ASSN.

The Court Room Was Nearly Filled With Women Tuesday Night—Few Men Present—Conditions in Colorado Told.

The women of Honesdale came out in force Tuesday night to hear Mrs. Helen Ring Robinson, Senator from Colorado, talk in the court house of the movement concerning votes for women. There was a sprinkling of men present but it was obvious that the fair sex of Honesdale are becoming very much interested in the suffrage movement. Mrs. Robinson is distinguished by the fact that she is the only woman Senator in the United States or perhaps in the world. She came here under the auspices of the Pennsylvania State Suffrage Association. Dorin's Boy Orchestra rendered selections before and after the address. W. J. Barnes introduced the speaker in a few well chosen words. The meeting was opened by a short benediction given by Rev. C. C. Miller.

"The movement," said Mrs. Robinson, "is more than merely a question of suffrage. It is a world-wide spiritual movement. The white fire of idealism is in it. It is closely allied to the best interests in both men and women. All political parties will sooner or later put woman suffrage in their platforms." She named the several states where the right of women to vote has been placed on the statute books. These are California, Arizona, Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, and Wyoming. These states, she said, are going to decide who will be our next President. In the west the party lines are not closely drawn. They are the doubtful states. Women who have gained the ballot there, are not for the most part strict partisans. This is rather to be expected when we take into consideration the character of the women and the character of the men who have been holding office heretofore. The women themselves will decide the question. The destinies of the country will be settled only by the vote of western women. The Eastern women, she went on to say, are not getting their share of it. They are falling behind.

Mrs. Robinson said that she had been offering a gilt clock in many places where she had been to any one who could give her a good logical reason why women should not vote. She said that she still had the clock.

"Some of the objections to women voting in Colorado," said Mrs. Robinson, as offered by eastern people are, first that men and women are not alike. The husband votes one way and the wife another, thereby causing family troubles. Another objection is that women spend all their time in voting and neglect their homes. We in Colorado do not spend all our time voting. We do not vote any oftener than they do in Pennsylvania. In my precinct we vote in the Sunday school room of a church. In the early days it was customary to vote in the back room of a saloon. It usually takes me twenty minutes to vote and I have plenty of time to devote to my home. Another objection frequently held up in New England is that they may lose the respect of the men. The women are fearfully disturbed over the fact. The men of Colorado have not lost the respect for their woman, rather their respect has increased since the women have gained the ballot.

Many say the enfranchisement of women in Colorado has been a failure. The loudest in voicing this are the corporate interests, liquor dealers and others. The rest of us are quite well satisfied after eighteen years of equal suffrage. There is no talk of taking the vote away from women. It could not be done for the women would have to vote on the proposition as well as men."

Mrs. Robinson in a light hearted and pleasant manner held the attention of her audience throughout and there were times when much enthusiasm was shown.

"The most serious argument in favor of suffrage," said Mrs. Robinson, "is the real argument of the evening, something people should take home and think about; the one logical argument is, the eternal justice of the ballot. The woman has just as much right to it as man. The emblem of suffrage is life, liberty and happiness. It is not a question of expediency or policy, it is the eternal justice of the thing! The justice is taken up in the thought. The ballot is a wish. When a man votes he makes a wish. Is there any justice in the thought that woman have no right to wish? I believe the home is the proper place for women; but it is the proper place for men too. The State of Pennsylvania needs a woman to do the State housekeeping. The men don't know how. It needs a woman to see that there isn't any batching going on. We clean out the closets and clean up politics generally. Add to the states betterment by getting the ballot as soon as you can.

"Women are interested in primary things that do not appeal to man. Man provides for the home. You look after the spending, and when the state touches the home you will be prepared to fight for your interests. The men look after their business interests with care but when the state touches their interests they guard them. There is no fault to be found with the manner in which business interests of the state have been handled, but there needs to be a woman to look after the primary things which directly or indirectly affect the home.

"The greatest discovery of the age in 1900 was the discovery of women by herself. The things that will interest women when given the ballot will be the care of the child on the streets in the cities. It will give vital strength when you get the vote. Leave the business interests to man. You look after the home interests and the interests of the other women. You can do that better than the men in the legislature. Women have a stronger idea of mercy. It is stronger than man's element of Justice. The two should work together to make the perfect state. The woman will bend the general law to fit the individual while the man invariably bends the individual to conform to the general law. He does it, too, as much as possible! "Women are better than men in certain ways. They are nearer the spiritual world than men. Their moral aspect is stronger than in men. Some of the things the women have done for Colorado are putting on the statute books laws relating to women and child. In all legislation concerning the home, women and children, Colorado leads the way. Until women were given the ballot they were not the guardians of their own children. It took just fifteen minutes after the first legislature assembled after the suffrage law had been passed to change this. It took Massachusetts fifty-five years.

Mrs. Robinson told of the hardships endured by the pioneer men and women of Colorado; of the woman who guarded her children and her home with the rifle while the husband was away. Was it surprising, she asked, that the descendants of these brave women should want the ballot to protect their home now that the rifle is no longer necessary? "The problem of capital and labor, migration, the white slave evil and many others is the pioneer band of today. It is the frontier band of the twentieth century through which valiant men and women are heaving their way, seeking the solution of the problems. They are still pioneer women, the Jane Adams' of today. The women will make straight the path which the leaders have hewn. It isn't the work of men, any more to travel along with axes and women with muskets but still the path is difficult.

In summing up Mrs. Robinson made an urgent appeal to the men to support the cause and give women the ballot. "If the woman is unwilling," she said, "give it to her anyway. If she don't want it there must be something wrong, so she needs the ballot. See that she gets it. The women who really want it can get it for themselves."

SUFFRAGETS MEET.

At the home of Mrs. Horace T. Menner on Wednesday morning at half-past ten there was a gathering for the purpose of organizing a suffrage league for Wayne county. Mrs. Chapman, State organizer, from Scranton, was present and gave a very convincing as well as pleasing talk on the subject of votes for women. The attendance was small, however, and only a temporary organization was effected. A committee was appointed with Mrs. Alma J. G. Dix as chairman. The committee has the power to elect or appoint a county chairman. Of course this is only a beginning but a permanent organization of a league in this county will be formed soon. It is right in line with the movement that is sweeping the state to perfect the organization in every county in the state for the purpose of urging our representatives and senators in Harrisburg to vote for the measure that will give women their right to vote—their eternal justice—when that question comes up for final consideration two years hence.

TEAM, LUMBER AND WAGON INTO CANAL

HORSES OF OSCAR MILLER BECAME FRIGHTENED TUESDAY, GO OVER EMBANKMENT.

Into Old D. & H. Canal—Although the Embankment Was Steep Horses Were Not Badly Hurt—Miller Was Not in Wagon.

Tuesday morning at about 11 o'clock a team of horses belonging to Oscar Miller, of Girdland, became frightened at escaping steam at Penwarden's mill and ran down Tyron street. Being unable to make the turn at the foot of the hill at the intersection of Willow avenue, the team, wagon and load of lumber went rolling and tumbling down the steep embankment into the old Delaware and Hudson canal. Fortunately Mr. Miller was not upon the wagon and thus escaped probable serious injury.

Mr. Miller and another gentleman from his home township came to Honesdale on Tuesday to secure some building material for the Champion Grange of Girdland. After his friend had loaded his wagon, Mr. Miller tied his team to a lumber pile and went to assist his friend. In a few minutes the Miller team had broken loose from the place where it was tied and was running at a lively rate down the hill. The gentlemen followed, but all to no avail. Before they were able to stop the runaway team the whole outfit, lumber, wagon and horses had gone over the embankment and were lying in a heap in the bed of the old canal. The men ran to the horses' assistance. Boards were removed from in and around them and after considerable work the team was removed from its perilous position. The horses escaped serious injury. One was cut quite badly upon its flank, while the other received a few bruises. The wagon was a wreck.

COMMUNITY LOSS IN DEATH OF MR. LYBOLT

LIFE HISTORY OF ONE OF BEST CITIZENS OF DAMASCUS TOWNSHIP.

He Was Born in New Jersey and Came to Wayne in 1874, Living Here Ever Since With Exception of Time During War.

In the death of Lewis A. Lybolt, of Fallsdale, the community has sustained a distinct loss and Wayne county has lost one of her most progressive and best farmers and one of her most loyal and patriotic citizens. Mr. Lybolt was born at Harnburn, N. J., in November, 1843, and grew to manhood in Sullivan county, N. Y., where he received his education in the public schools. He commenced lumbering in early life and followed this occupation until his removal in 1874 to Wayne county, with the exception of the period of the Civil war when he rendered service to his country and his flag.

Since the war he has devoted his time to the development of his farm at Fallsdale, which is one of the finest in Damascus township. Its splendid condition is due to the unremitting care and energy which he has bestowed upon it. He was respected everywhere as one of the best citizens in his township and county. Mr. Lybolt served his country for over two years during the Civil war. He enlisted in 1863 in the 9th New York heavy artillery under Capt. Wood, with whom he served in the army of the Potomac and with Sheridan in the Shenandoah. His first engagement was at Cold Harbor in 1864, after which he was engaged in the battle near Harper's Ferry, Md. When the Rebels marched on Washington his command helped to drive them back, following them along the Washington Pike to Snicker's Gap, where they had a battle which resulted in heavy losses on the rebel side. They remained near Harper's Ferry and on September 19, 1864, took part in the battle of Winchester. At this battle the color bearer of the regiment was shot in the early part of the fray. Mr. Lybolt seized the colors before they could touch the ground and carried them to the head of the battle line for the remainder of the battle. The next day the Rebels made a stand at Fisher's Hill where Mr. Lybolt's command was again engaged and they subsequently fought them at Newmarket and Staunton, near Richmond. They then came back to Middletown in the Shenandoah valley, and on October 19 met the enemy at Cedar Creek. In this battle Mr. Lybolt's company bore the brunt of the fighting and after the battle was reduced to nineteen men. When Sheridan reached them they forced the Rebels to retreat, taking a large number of prisoners. In November the regiment marched to Richmond where they encamped for the winter. On April 2nd, 1865, they participated in the charge on Richmond, and Mr. Lybolt was shot in the chin while scaling the breastworks. The ball lodged in his neck and he was taken to the City Point Hospital from where he was transferred to the hospital at Washington, from which he was honorably discharged in June, 1865, when he returned to his old home.

In August, 1868, Mr. Lybolt married Miss Sarah J. Sison of Sullivan county, New York. They made their home in Mongaup valley until they settled on the farm in Damascus in 1874. Five children have blessed their union of whom two now survive. Mr. Lybolt is survived by his wife and Lewis Lybolt of Fallsdale who made his home with his parents and assisted in conducting the farm, and one daughter, Mrs. C. R. Jackson, of Binghamton, N. Y. Mr. Lybolt was a member of the Odd Fellows and of Captain James Ham Post, No. 198, G. A. R. He was a man of deep religious conviction. He had served his township as supervisor and was one of the County Board of Viewers appointed by the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne county under the provisions of the Act of Assembly of 1911. He was patriotic to the last and even to the end insisted that the flag he loved so well should be displayed. When his mind carried him back to the storming of the rebel forts at Richmond, during the last day of his illness, he said to his wife, "I can't lie here while the batteries are storming the forts." Men of his caliber are rarely found and their departure is a loss to the whole county.

He was patient and uncomplaining until the end even though he knew that his illness was fatal. He

"If I must die I will die like a good soldier." "When Earth's last picture is painted And the tubes are twisted and dried, And the oldest colors have faded And the youngest critic has died, We shall rest and faith we shall need it, Lie down for an hour or two, Till the Master of all Good Workmen, Shall put up to work anew. And those that were good shall be happy, They shall sit in a golden chair, And splash at a ten league canvas, With brushes of comet's hair. They shall find real saints to draw from, Magdalene, Peter and Paul, They shall work for an age at a sitting, And never grow tired at all. And none but the Master shall praise us, And none but the Master shall blame, And no one shall work for money, And no one shall work for fame, But each for the joy of the working, And each in his separate star, Shall paint the thing as he sees it, For the God of things as they are.
