PENROSE TO REGAIN CONTROL OF PARTY

NEW PRIMARY LAW RESTORES CONTROL OF REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

Commissioners Generally Will Aid in the Electing of State Committeemen-To Line up for Next Year.

That Penrose will regain control of the Republican State Committee at the fall primary on September 16 is generally admitted by all who have studied the new State-wide primary act. The provision requiring the election of Republican State Committeemen this year was inserted for specific purpose and the Flinn adherents who have been in control of the committee ever since the Roosevelt landslide of May, 1912, are now willing to release their grip and allow the senior Senator boss the remnants of his own party again.

The Bull Moosers will not attempt to make a fight for the re-election of many of the present State Commit-teemen. They have now divorced themselves completely from the Re-publican party and no longer keep up the pretense of being merely dis-senting Republicans. It is fairly certain that Henry G. Wasson will not be re-elected State chairman and it is likely that he may drop mask of Republicanism and finally come out as a Washington Party

To Clean Political Muddle.

The perplexing situation in which the Republican party in Pennsylva-nia has been involved for more than a year will be cleared to some extent at the coming primary. In the Presidential primary of 1912 the Roosevelt men, to their own and their op ponents' surprise, swept everything before them, electing a large major-ity to the State convention, who in turn chose a majority of the State Committee, which was controlled by Flinn, and which elected Wasson its chairman Afterward, however, the Chicago split came, and most of the voters who had cast their votes in the Re-publican primary became Bull Moos-Some of the members of the Republican State Committee became Washington Party men, although they retained their place on the Republican Committee. Wasson did not openly desert the party, but continue to pose as a straight Re-publican, supporting Taft, although his connection with Flinn was still Ever since then this condition has existed. What is supposed to be the ruling body of the Republican party in the State has been utterly at odds with the real leaders of that party, the majority which had swept it into power hav-ing deserted the party and gone into the new Washington Party. Will Wipe Out Wasson's Majority.

The recent session of the Legislature, in passing the new primary law, provided that State Committeemen should be elected by popular vote at the party primaries, instead of by the county committees or by

This means that Wasson's majority in the State Committee will be swept out of their places, because the voters who elected the State delegates who chose them are not eligible to vote this year at the Repub-lican primary, having voted at the last general election in another column. At the coming primary the Republican vote will be greatly re-duced, because only those who voted for Taft will be eligible to ask for a Republican ballot. It further means that those who vote, having been Taft men, will certainly be Penrose men and will elect State Committeemen as Penrose shall direct.

ABATE THE HOUSE FLY NUI-SANCE.

"One of the worst of our common ests is the house fly. This is not because of its great annoyance to mankind so much, as on account its very filthy habits and its liability to carry disease germs of several kinds that inflict mankind.

One of the subjects of frequent inquiry at the office of State Zoolo-gist H. A. Surface, Harrisburg, is concerning the means of suppressing the house fly, and to meet this he has given out information that is both practical and timely. Some years ago in his Monthly Bulletin of the Division of Zoology he published photographs of the tracks of the fly over a clean culture prepared to develop bacteria, in which the ty-phoid bacteria and others developed where the fly had stepped. He was the first advocates of the "Swat the Fly" movement, and con-tinues to urge the abatement of the house fly nuisance

He says that the fly breeds in filth of various kinds, chiefly manure, where the eggs are laid and the larvae feed as white maggots. After feeding and growing they change to brown pupae, which soon break open to let the winged sies emerge. From the places where filth has accumulated the flies go to houses, and are as free to visit the kitchen and dining room as the parlor, the bedroom, or the invalid. They may carry disease germs either to or from the latter, and prove not only an annoyance, but a menace and sérious evil.

Screening houses to prevent the entrance of flies is very good, but is only one step in the prevention of much annoyance. Killing and trapping flies in the house should be resorted to, and simple traps will be found very successful. Among these are such as a plain of a lead pencil through the middle of it, of lead pencil through the middle of it, molasses put on its under side, and this laid over a glass nearly filled with water. The flies go through the hole to eat the syrup and then fall into the water and are drowned

Another safe means of destroying them is to put into an open dish a dilute solution of formalin, from three to five per cent. The files drink this and are killed. It may be well to sweeten it slightly.

sweetened More important than raps or poisoning flies in the house, and even more important screening doors and windows, than is to destroy their breeding places. tunately, in many cities and boroughs there are now regulations requiring that stables be cleaned once every twenty-four hours.

One of the recent important dis-coveries in the agricultural field is that raw ground phosphate rock, commonly called "floats," can be mixed with stable manure, and will destroy flies, and prevent their muttiplication therein, and will also greatly increase the fertilizing value of the manure.

The fact that it opens five days earlier is not a great detriment, and, as the law has been changed in de-fining a legal deer, so that a "male with horns two inches above the hair" instead of a "male with horns visible above the hair," is the legal quarry. As a fawn has no horns at all, just little lumps where the antlers afterwards grow, and a buck of 18 months has "spikes" 10 inches long, this provision will give no hunter an excuse to kill a fawn.

A law protecting elk absolutely until November, 1921, has been passed in order that the elk imported in-to this state may have a chance to establish themselves.

On the fourth day of March, 1913 an act of congress was passed giving the national department of agriculture at Washington, D. Under these rules no sand-hill crane, or swan or curlew, or any shore-birds, excepting the blackbreasted and golden plover, Wilson or Jack snipe, woodcock and yellow legs, can be legally killed for a perlod of five years in Pennsylvania.

Under this provision it will be il-legal after the first of October, 1913, to kill any upland or grass plover, or any of the sanp-piper family be-fore September, 1918. No shorebirds may be killed between Dec. 6 and Sept. 1.

WILD GRAND DUKE IS ON VERGE OF MESALLIANCE.

Boris Keeps Czar and Czarina Worried by His Escapades.

Grand Duke Boris Vladimirovitch who lives in Paris and is one of the many Russian grand dukes who hate pomp and royal state, is just now giv ing his cousin, the czar, many sleepless nights. He threatens to marry one of the most notorious women of submerg ed Paris.

Boris has earned the distinction of having painted all European capitals red. Even in Paris he is called the "wild grand duke." His favorite haunts are Maxim's and the Cafe de Paris. He is a heavy drinker and is always surrounded by the smartest butterflies of the city.

Recently he thrilled St. Petersburg by getting into a box at the Aquarium and throwing paper money down among the crowd. People were astonished, knowing he is always hard up, till it came out that he had taken the money from a man from Moscow, immensely rich, who had gone up to St. Petersburg to have a good time and fallen into the grand duke's clutches. The crowd was so pleased with the largess es and clamored so persistently for more-which the grand duke had notthat the police were called in.

The czarina is said to dislike him more than any other of her husband's relations. One day, when she first knew him, she tried to persuade him how bad his way of living was and especially his love of champagne. But he only answered, "If you had the mis fortune to be born a grand duke you would drink from morning till night too." She gave him up after that.

He is very good natured and never has enough money, in spite of his huge fortune, because he always gives to any who ask. He set up half a dozen poor Russian exiles as shopkeepers in Paris, lends them money whenever they ask for it and buys cartloads of things from them, just to give them business. At one time he kept his own 15 to Nov. 30, both days inclusive. rivate gypsy chorus.
