

EMERY PAID PAGES

N. A. M. Head Sent Check to Negro Attaches.

MONEY WAS USED TO GET BILLS

Witness Says Check Was Given to Mulhall For Pages "Merely to Pay For the Many Courtesies They Performed For Our Members."

Washington, Aug. 13.—James A. Emery, chief representative of the National Association of Manufacturers here, defined to the senate lobby committee the duties of Martin M. Mulhall, who claimed to be that association's lobbyist.

"Mulhall kept me supplied with copies of bills and public documents in relation to the work here and got information of the status of legislation in which we were interested. In this work he gathered information and learned the views of members of congress. He made inquiries about hearings and requested an opportunity for me to appear," said Emery.

Emery denied that Henry Neal and Harry Parker, two negro employees at the capitol were in the pay of the manufacturers. Mulhall swore that for almost a year Emery gave him each month a $100 check, of which $50 was to go to L. H. McMichael, one time chief page of the house, and $50 went to Parker and Neal. Emery denied he ever drew such check. He declared Mulhall told him he had a friend at the capitol who could get public documents and bills. Later Emery learned the friend was McMichael.

Emery testified, however, that he did draw a check for $50, sent it to Mulhall and told him to divide it between Neal and Parker, "merely to pay for the many courtesies they performed for our members."

Made Payments to Mulhall. "Did you ever make any payments to Mulhall for McMichael?" asked Attorney McCarter for the manufacturers.

"Yes," said the witness, "it never exceeded $20 a month, and it terminated when I left for Europe in 1910."

Emery denied Mulhall's story that former Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin had promised that if re-elected he would see that a man satisfactory to the manufacturers would go on the house judiciary committee.

Emery denied that he tried in 1908 to have Congressman Malby of New York made chairman, succeeding Jenkins. Mulhall testified the manufacturers worked to put Malby in the chairmanship.

Emery testified his only activity against Senator Hughes, when a candidate for congress in 1908, was the distribution of campaign literature among manufacturers giving Hughes' attitude toward labor. He thought it was mailed under the frank of Congressman Littlefield.

Martin M. Mulhall continued his account of his relations with congressmen in his work for the National Association of Manufacturers before the house lobby committee.

HEAT CAUSES DEATH INCREASE

Figures Show 121 More Died Last Week Than in 1912 Period.

New York, Aug. 13.—The great heat last week caused an increase of 121 deaths, or 77 per cent over the figures for the corresponding week last year. The tables for the past week show 1,300 deaths, with a percentage of 13.50. The average temperature during that time was approximately 8 degrees higher than for the similar interval in 1912. In consequence there was an increased number of deaths from sunstroke.

Deaths which may indirectly be attributed to the warm weather and which rose in number were those due to falls from fire escapes and windows and accidental drownings. Heart diseases showed an additional toll of thirty-five cases, although this is somewhat offset by the reduction in the number of deaths reported from Bright's disease and nephritis.

MAKES PITCHING RECORD.

Iowa Twirler Shuts Out Opponents For Twenty-one Innings.

Keokuk, Ia., Aug. 13.—William Whitaker, pitcher for the Keokuk Central association team, set what is believed to be a world's record when he pitched twenty-one consecutive scoreless innings in a double header between the Keokuk and Waterloo teams.

Keokuk won both games, 1 to 0, the second going twelve innings. But five hits were made off Whitaker's delivery.

ICE CREAM SODA FIRST OFFERED IN 1874.

Ice cream has been a dominating influence in the progress of the soda water industry since the advent of pure fruit syrups. The addition of this frozen palate-tickler to soda water not only improved the richness and smoothness of the beverage, but at the same time it increased its food value.

Statistics as to the consumption of ice cream show an enormous increase since it was first added to soda water, and the soda fountain has not only been the greatest quantity consumer of ice cream but its best advertiser. With the advent of the luscious sundae came still additional increase of both soda and ice cream at fountains.

Everyone knows just what constitutes a sundae, and how tempting the appearance of the ice cream with the added syrup, fruits and nuts—a combination pleasing alike to eye and palate. The combination was christened sundae—so the legend goes—because a druggist originated this "one best bet" on a Sunday. There are many claimants to the honor of "I did it first," as there are to almost all of the combinations represented by the modern menu or dispenser's guide, but whoever thought of the sundae first did a good thing for which the public as well as the fountain industry owe a vote of thanks.

In the spring of 1874 Robert M. Green, of Philadelphia, had begun the manufacture of smaller types of fountains. He secured a concession to dispense soda water at an exposition held under the auspices of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and stress of business compelled him to do something to attract the patronage of the public. At all events, such was the inspiration—according to Mr. Green—which prompted him to put ice cream in soda water. For the first time he advertised ice cream in soda water at a soda fountain, and he unquestionably is entitled to the honor and the credit of originating ice cream soda, which as the years have passed has developed an enormous demand and given unquestioned impetus to the business of soda water dispensing.

On the other hand, the credit for commercializing ice cream as an adjunct to soda water, even though Mr. Green was the first to use it, unquestionably belongs to Fred Sanders, of Detroit, a prominent confectioner of the Michigan city. The inspiration to use ice cream with soda water came to Mr. Sanders one night when his plain cream had soured, and without the knowledge that it had already been used as a component of soda water in the east. Mr. Sanders used ice cream and featured it. It is said he did more to popularize ice cream soda than any other fountain owner in this country.
