Rapid compliance with the new state law requiring counties to name plates of weights and measures is reported by James Sweeney, chief of the Bureau of Standards, who is in touch with the counties not having such officials. In a number of instances steps are under way to have two counties and various counties and cities unite in employment of information regarding what steps are to be taken. One-third of the counties have named sealers. Chief Sweeney is also taking steps to see that all counties are fully informed regarding the commodities law, which goes into effect next winter and establishes standards of weight for bushels and which may also reach the complaints about dry boxes of various sizes.

RAILROAD WILL TEACH SAFETY TO EMPLOYEES. New York Central Gives Instruction in Traveling Schoolhouse.

To instruct the 150,000 employees on its lines how to protect their lives, limbs and even thumbs, the New York Central has opened at the Grand Central terminal in New York city the first traveling safety schoolhouse. Each employee will be required to take a course under Head Teacher M. A. Dow, general safety agent and his assistants, who originated the plan.

Two cars will make up the student train, which will be taken over each of the divisions, and lessons will be given at every station. Stereopticon lectures on safety will be given in one coach. The other contains pictures of the right and wrong ways of performing scores of operations in connection with railroad work.

Mr. Dow found from investigations that 200 men on the road mashed their fingers last year. To prevent this, instruction is offered in the proper way to drive a spike. Lessons aimed to do away with fatal accidents also will be given.

The safety exhibit car contains models of the machines used in the shops of the company, showing the precautions in the way of guards on the machines that are used to prevent injury to the workmen. To start a campaign to lower the number of persons killed trespassing on railroad property, one section of the car's picture gallery contains views showing how people risk their lives in this way. Ten thousand were killed and injured trespassing last year in the United States.

SEES AERO FIGHT FIRES. Salem's Mayor Predicts Flying Engines and Hose Carts.

A flying machine fire department for Salem, Mass., was recently predicted by John F. Hurley, mayor of that city. Fire engines, hooks and ladders, hose wagons and aerial water towers of the future will go through the air on the wings of aeroplanes instead of using the city streets, according to Hurley's ideas.

"I intend to eliminate horses from Salem, so far as the city service goes," said Mayor Hurley. "Of course, if private individuals want to keep a few of them for driving purposes that is all right, but the death knell of the horses has been sounded so far as commercial life is concerned. In time all this work, which is about to be done by motor vehicles, will be done by flying machines. We are going to have flying machine fire engines, flying machine garbage wagons, etc."

CUT INITIALS ON LIVE HOGS. Shocking Cruelties Perpetrated on Animals in Chicago Stock Yards.

Cruelties which animals at the stock yards in Chicago are forced to undergo are to be made the subject of an investigation by Hugo Krause, secretary of the Anti-cruelty society of that city. Reports which have been received at headquarters of the society state that the most flagrant abuse is the practice of cutting initials on the back of a live hog. This is done, according to the report, by "cripple contractors" who purchase animals disabled in transit. Krause also cites instances of hundreds of hogs dying for lack of water, of live hogs being dumped into scalding tanks and of hogs dressed so rapidly that they are chops and sausages before they are yet dead.

SUPPER OR SUFFRAGE? New York, Aug. 14.—Is supper for children and husband as important as the cause of woman suffrage? Mrs. Maria Rupp of Brooklyn has answered the question in the affirmative. At least she went forth to make speeches while her husband, a hard-working man, and his children found nothing to eat at home.

Mr. Rupp said this had occurred often. He went forth into the streets and found his wife holding forth at a suffrage meeting on the corner.

"Maria, come home and cook supper," he cried. "Lawrence, you keep quiet!" she answered.

The crowd laughed her off the stump and she hurried to a police station, where she got a bluecoat to arrest her husband for disturbing the meeting. She did not explain to the police till the husband was safely in the station. He was locked up and later got out on bail.
