When the lightning struck the barn on the farm of Oliver Skelton Sunday in Sterling, it is said that a strange prank of the bolt left Fred Skelton, the sixteen-year-old son of the owner of the barn, with a paralyzed arm. The youth was in the act of putting down a window in the house not far from the barn just as the bolt of lightning struck, and since that he has not been able to bend his arm.

State Commissioner of Fisheries N. R. Buller is receiving many letters of inquiry about state regulations for eel baskets, although the last Legislature repealed the section of the act of March, 1909, which permitted eel baskets, from August 15 to December 1. Consequently eel baskets are no longer legal in this state, and many people are apparently unaware of it. The repeal of the law will likely mean arrest for some people who do not follow such things as changes in laws.

During the electrical storm of Sunday afternoon last, lightning struck a barn on the farm owned by Stalker Brothers at Stalker and set fire to it. The fire was checked, however, by men and boys who were present, before any serious damage was done. Not until the danger of the fire was over, did the men succeed in reviving the team. The horses were uninjured save for the shock.

The company has grown so that it now enjoys a lucrative trade, supplying thousands of dozens of garments to large department houses and stores every year. An advertisement is now being run in The Citizen by the Katz Underwear company in which they want at once 30 girls whose ages are from 14 years upwards. They advertise steady employment and good pay. Less than 100 season Chautauqua tickets remained unsold Thursday noon. Parties desiring to secure one of these tickets can do so by calling on Cashier Joseph Fisch at the Honesdale Dime bank or at the Chautauqua tent Thursday and Friday. This is the cheapest way to get the benefit of all the entertainments of the Chautauqua, it costing only about 13 cents for each performance. Otherwise one could attend but four 50 cent performances. The other 27 entertainments would cost more than the average person could afford to pay. It therefore behooves one to purchase a season ticket, and you better do it pretty soon or you will have to pay the single admission tickets. There are only a few left at $2 each.

COUNTY SURVEYOR ISAAC SANDERCOCK BURNED.

In an Effort to Save His Automobile in Father's Burning Barn Last Tuesday Afternoon—Horse Was Lost.

County Surveyor Isaac Sandercock was badly burned around the head, shoulders and arms Tuesday afternoon while attempting to save his automobile from his father's burning barn. Mr. Sandercock went into the structure when the inside was enveloped in flames and after much difficulty succeeded in getting out his automobile, but it was at the risk of losing his own life. Dr. F. W. Powell was called but was unable to go at that time. Isaac was rushed to the doctor's office where the burns were treated by the family physician.

One of the fine horses belonging to Humphrey Sandercock was burned in the fire, which entirely consumed his barn. The horse was in an "L" at the rear of the main barn and before it could be rescued the fire reached that part of the structure, cutting off all means of escape.

All of the farming implements, three tons of hay and a quantity of grain were also lost.

The origin of the fire is not known. It is supposed to have started from spontaneous combustion. When discovered the flames were shooting from all parts of the barn at one time. Insurance on the barn and contents is carried in the Briar Creek Insurance company. The wind favored the home and other buildings near the burning barn, it coming from a northeastern direction. By the aid of several of the neighbors the fire was confined to the barn. By their heroic work a chain of other nearby buildings and the big hay barn were saved from a like destruction. The barn was very large, and although not a new structure, it was in good condition.
