CANDIDATES' PETITIONS WERE FILED TUESDAY

FIGHT FOR OFFICE OF BURGESS TO BE A FOUR CORNERED AFFAIR.

Two Petitions Out on Republican—One Washington and One Democrat—Hawley Bull Moosers Offer No Fight and Leave Field to Democrats and Regulars.

Tuesday was the last day for registering as a candidate for any office in the borough or county. The county commissioners' office, where the petitions are filed, was a busy place all during the day, and the steady stream of candidates with their petitions continued up to the closing time.

It had been generally supposed that the Democrats would endorse the present councilmen and would not put candidates in the field, thereby following the policy of both the Washington party men and the Republicans, but contrary to this supposition petitions were filed for a complete Democratic ticket in the borough, for all offices except that of tax collector and school directors. The candidates filing petitions for borough offices were: Burgess, C. A. McCarty; councilmen, Charles Markey, Henry Rehbein, W. T. Moore, and Henry Burket; auditors, Frank Varcoe and Frank Truscott; judge of election, Edward Armbuster; inspector of election, W. C. Hawker.

New petitions filed Tuesday were: V. W. Wood, committeeman on the Republican ticket; Rev. Geo. S. Wendell for Burgess on the Washington ticket.

From the appearance of the candidates' petitions for borough offices in Hawley it would seem that the Washington party men are not doing much. The fight seems to be between the Democrats and regular Republicans. Tuesday was the last day for candidates to register their petitions and quite a number from Hawley were filed.

The following petitions were filed for offices on the Democratic ticket: Burgess, Richard W. Murphy; councilmen, Peter J. Unger, Michael P. Jensen, John J. Sheridan, Charles J. McHale, Charles P. Nell; school directors, Chas. S. Houck, A. C. Voigt, Joseph A. Runyon and Chas. J. Schardt; for auditor, A. L. Rowland; inspector of election, William Keafler; judge of election, James L. Ighe; tax collector, Nicholas Medrer.

The Republicans have also endorsed R. W. Murphy as burgess; Geo. R. Jacobs for inspector of election; Geo. S. Thompson, committeeman; school directors, W. F. Suydam, Jr., A. C. Voigt, Chas. S. Houck, Joseph H. Runyon and Charles H. Schardt; for councilmen the names of John J. Sheridan, Charles P. Nell and Charles J. McHale appear as on the Democratic petition. The new men on the Republican ticket are, Charles W. Rose,, Frank R. Stevenson, Alford K. Killam, John Bryant and Frank J. Dennison.

Under the Washington party only three candidates filed petitions. They were: W. F. Suydam, school director; Chas. S. Houck, school director, and Charles P. Nell for councilman.

BASE BALL NEWS.

Next Saturday the big game of the year will be pulled off at Hawley, when the deciding game for the championship of Wayne county will be played between Hawley and Honesdale.

The locals have a very big job on their hands to trim the Hawley team under the probable circumstances, as they will no doubt go up against the strongest team that ever represented our neighboring town, in addition to playing on an unknown and unfriendly field. While we are of course expecting to win, we realize under the conditions that if the boys give the Hawley people a good game exhibition, it is all that we can ask, and then if they SHOULD win!

Labor Day will be another big day for the local fans, when we shall again be privileged to see the fast Crescent team of Scranton play in two engagements. Each team has won one game this year and both are looking for a double victory on Monday, as such a victory means the winning of a $50 pot.

WILMARTH—KIMBLE.

At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. George Kimble, East Honesdale, Frank C. Wilmarth and Blanche Kimble were married Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, by Rev. G. S. Wendell of the Baptist church. Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served, after which the bridal couple left by automobile to Scranton and other places for a few days' visit. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Wilmarth will make their home with the groom's parents on High street.

MISSING GLEN EYRE MAN A SUICIDE ?

SUICIDE TALK FLYING OVER WIRES CONCERNING DISAPPEARANCE OF M. BLAUVILLE.

Ran Into Woods With His Child Following Family Trouble. Had Not Been Living With Wife For Some Time.

Driven to desperation over family troubles, Milton Blauville, a young man of Glen Eyre, Pike county, ran off into the woods on Tuesday night with his young child and has not been heard from since. It was at first thought that he had committed suicide but as young Blauville bears a good reputation in that neighborhood the suicide theory is disproved.

Mr. and Mrs. Blauville, who live near Glen Eyre, have not been living together for some time. Mrs. Blauville has been making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby, who live a short distance from the Blauville home. The cause of the breach in their domestic relations, is said to have been caused by the woman's parents.

On Tuesday night Blauville heard that his wife was to leave for New York on the next day with the child. He went to the Jacoby home to see her and the babe. He was given the child to hold and as soon as he secured the child he ran into the woods. Mrs. Blauville said that she had heard shots immediately after and a search was made. No trace of the man or the child could be found. Friends of the young man think that he left for New York with his own child rather than have it in the care of his wife's parents.

WILSON WARNS AMERICANS TO LEAVE MEXICO.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Another turn in the Mexican situation late tonight when Secretary of State Bryan announced he had received from John Lind, the President's special envoy, a summary of Huerta's last note to this government. As a result of this communication Mr. Bryan characterized the situation as "encouraging."

This statement by Mr. Bryan was regarded as significant. Up to this time he had refused to commit himself on the Mexican situation beyond saying that it was unchanged. The fact that he was willing to announce that it was "encouraging" led to the belief that Huerta has given some substantial ground for hope.

Mr. Bryan declined to indicate in any way whether Huerta had made concessions or what was the basis of his encouragement.

The note, a summary of which was communicated to Mr. Bryan, was sent by special courier to Mr. Lind at Vera Cruz by President Huerta last night. President Wilson had waited anxiously for some word in regard to this note but when it failed to reach here by 1 o'clock in the afternoon he felt he could no longer postpone his address to Congress.

At the same time the American Empassy and all consular representatives throughout the Southern Republic were instructed "to notify all officials, civil and military, in Mexico" that they would be held strictly responsible for harm or injury done to Americans or their property.

WAYNE BAPTIST ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS.

Stanton, of Clinton, was elected president of the Young People's convention. Geo. P. Ross and John Penwarden were elected secretary and treasurer.

HONESDALE IS ASSURED OF CHAUTAUQUA NEXT YEAR

Everybody Praised the Program

LAST SESSION CLOSED WEDNESDAY NIGHT WITH ABLE ADDRESS BY WM. T. ELLIS, LECTURER, TRAVELER AND WRITER —JUDGE BEN LINDSEY, JUDGE OF THE JUVENILE COURT OF DENVER, PLEASED LARGE AUDIENCE TUESDAY NIGHT—ENTERTAINERS OF HIGHEST MERIT.

The Chautauqua interest was manifested as strongly on Monday as any day of the week. Dr. Turner again greeted a large audience who listened with the closest attention to his lecture upon "The Family a Social Unit." He introduced his subject by stating that there are four reasons for marriage, namely, beauty, love, purpose and business. The presence of children in the home was advocated by Dr. Turner. A child has done much to bring about harmony and concerted action between the parents. In punishment, Dr. Turner stated, there ought to be an agreement between father and mother, that is, if a father corrects a child the mother should uphold him in discipline. The speaker believes that husband and wife should enjoy prosperity together and share in sympathizing in sorrow. An illustration of the fidelity of this was shown in Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Strauss, who both sank with the Titantic. This is a strong bond in the social unit. On the other side of the ocean the man asserts himself as being the head of the house. Sociology believes that that is better than no head or where the boy or girl is the domineering force.

The question of who a young man or woman should marry is one worthy of consideration. It was the speaker's opinion that a young man would do better to go out of his own community to find a wife. Should a young man marry for money? Should he be encouraged to marry his mother-in-law? Not by a license but "Take Mary take me." The majority of this kind of cases are unwholesome and unhappy. The young couple should start out in life alone. If in after years a home can be provided for the loving father and tender mother, well enough, but not at the beginning of the wedded life. Marry early. The speaker's advice to young people was to become home owners rather than tennants. He advised young couples to get in debt very early in life for what it is necessary to have. A house is something you need. Don't buy what you don't need, for instance an automobile. The present schedule of divorce laws in the 48 states is a disgrace to the Union. By living in Nevada a few weeks a man can dissolve the marriage bond between himself and wife. Women don't nag your husbands and husbands don't get the nagging habit. Often times men and women are nervously constituted and sooner or later become physical wrecks. In the world do your duty and more. To do only your duty is hard and cruel. To be happy you should give. Do your duty and a little more. It will bring to you unspeakable happiness.

Dietrics and Rosani Amuse.

Following Dr. Turner's address Mr. and Mrs. Dietric entertained the audience for the remainder of the afternoon. Mr. Dietric was very clever in performing his magic tricks, which greatly pleased the little folks and grown people as well. Resani, the Prince of Jugglers, by his wonderful juggling acts, demonstrated to the audience that he is what his name implies. He did a number of astounding feats in balancing. He was one of the star attractions of the Chautauqua.

William Sterling Battis.

William Sterling Battis impersonated the characters in a number of Charles Dickens' writings with great aptitude. Mr. Battis represented the following characters: "Bill Sykes" from Oliver Twist; "Sidney Carlton" from "A Tale of Two Cities"; "Sam Weller" from Pickwick Papers; "Uriah Hepp," from David Copperfield; "Captain Cuttle" from Dombey and Son; "Mr. Pecksmith" from Martin Chuzzlewit, and many others. Mr. Battis made up his characters on the platform before his audience.

The evening program closed with motion pictures.

Tuesday Gala Day for Children.

The coming of Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Juvenile court, Denver, Colo., to Honesdale on Tuesday gladdened more than one boy's and girl's heart. "The Friend of the Children" as he is well and favorably known, was scheduled to arrive in Honesdale at 10:15 from Farview where he stopped for a short time on his way here from Carbondale. At 10 o'clock about fifty children headed by a juvenile fife and drum corps, (but instead of fifes, horns were used) marched down Main street from the Chautauqua tent to Central Park. The children carried the stars and stripes at the head of the procession, while placards, bearing the words, "Hurrah for Ben, the Children's Friend," "Vote for Ben," and other banners were held aloft by the little admirers of this great jurist. Miss Foster, who had charge of the Junior Chautauqua, and Mr. Ward accompanied the procession. Judge Lindsey upon his arrival was given a hearty welcome by the children to which he responded in his most gentle and characteristic manner. After a short address by Judge Lindsey the little company disbanded, all children going to their respective homes with lighter hearts and a feeling of satisfaction like they had not experienced in some time.

Tuesday Afternoon.

The first session was opened by Dr. Turner who gave a masterful lecture upon "Sociology and Education." He said in part:

"If America is not democratic in the true sense in her system of government, she is democratic in her schools. Education was defined as the maintenance of social units in their normal relationships.

Certain defects of the educational system were graphically pointed out. The speaker emphasized particularly the large number of incompetent teachers to be found in the profession. He attributed this situation to the prevalent practice of making school teaching a stepping stone to one's ultimate vocation. The prime responsibility for this situation, however, was said to be the parsimonious policy of the average school board. It was affirmed that teachers were more inadequately paid than any other class of professional men and women. A salary which is paid for nine months must be made to cover twelve because the vacation period must be given largely to more thorough preparation for the work which the teacher is expected to do.

It is fortunate that taxpayers are willing to contribute generously for courses of instruction in scientific farming, the protection of animals and trees, and a large yield of grain, but this expenditure ought not to reduce expenditures made in behalf of the children of the community who compose its most valuable asset.

The scientific courses of study, especially the abuse of electives, the inadequate provision for urban pupils, and the lack of unity in the American system as a whole were characterized as serious defects.

The speaker suggested as a means of remedying these conditions; First, the exaltation of the individual in education; second, the promotion of thinking; third, due attention to the relation between results and processes. While praising measures recently proposed in support of conservation, such as the protection of water supply, the care of forests, and government supervision of food supply, the lecturer emphasized the fact that the greatest conservation problem before the American citizen to-day is the sane, well-considered and purposeful training of the boys and girls who must in a few years assume the duties of leadership and service.

At the close of the speaker's address the "Niagara Male Quartette" furnished excellent music in solos, quartettes, piano soles, etc. The young men were heartily encored.

Evening Session.

One of the largest audiences ever to sit beneath the Chautauqua tent assembled Tuesday evening to greet Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, Colorado. At 7:30 the Niagara Male Quartette, attired in the Seventeenth century costume, entertained for a half hour. At 7:15 Jenkin's Boy Band and Honesdale Troop of Boy Scouts assembled at the Allen House to escort Judge Lindsey, Burgess McCarty and Prothonotary W. J. Barnes to the tent. Judge Lindsey, by the way, is a director in the National Boy Scout movement. At the close of this treat, Dr. Turner, platform superintendent, Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Burgess C. A. McCarty and W. J. Barnes, vice-chairman of the Honesdale Chautauqua, took their respective places on the platform before the audience. They were given a hearty ovation.

Dr. Turner first presented Mr. Barnes, who thanked the public for their response which insured making the Chautauqua the success which it has proven to be. He thanked the chairman of the various committees for discharging their respective duties in so efficient a manner and stated that Honesdale is now ready for the Chautauqua next year.

CHILDREN TURN OUT TO HEAR JUDGE LINDSEY

SPOKE TO JUNIOR CHAUTAUQUA FROM COURT HOUSE STEPS TUESDAY MORNING.

He Tells of the Work Done in Denver For the Good of the Children —How the Juvenile Court Movement Has Grown.

A large crowd greeted Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, Colorado, on his arrival in Honesdale Tuesday morning via automobile. The party arrived here about ten-fifteen o'clock and Judge Lindsey registered at the Allen House. He was then escorted to the Court House where the large crowd awaited him. The Junior Chautauqua under the direction of Miss Foster gathered at the foot of the steps leading into the building. The crowd scattered over the lawn in front of the court house expectantly as Juvenile Court Judge of Denver arose to speak. On the steps back of the speaker were Dr. Turner of the Chautauqua Association, and several members of the local committee.

Judge Lindsey spoke mainly to the children whom he told of the many things the city of Denver had done for the children. He told how he had upheld boys that were brought before him for swimming in the public fountains. He said that as long as the city did not furnish public bathing places for the boys he would not punish any of them. The result was that public bathing places were built for the children of that city.

For many years Judge Lindsey has fought the gang and political crooks of Colorado single handed. Last spring when he was a candidate for re-election he was elected by a majority of 27,000. This fall he was elected by a majority of 35,000.

Judge Lindsey told of the necessity of having public baths, playgrounds, Boy Scout clubs and various other forms of amusement for the children, so as to afford them the proper kind of amusement. This, he said, would be an added step in the right direction, as it would tend to the development of more healthful and bright young citizens.

"We give the children justice out in Denver," said Judge Lindsey, "for we know that they are not wholly to blame for the so-called crime. I try to be the children's friend for I know that the children are my friends."

Judge Lindsey spoke at the Chautauqua in Carbondale Monday evening and on the way to Honesdale he stopped off at Farview to inspect our hospital for the criminal insane. That evening the Boy Scouts accompanied by Jenkins' Boy Band met Judge Lindsey at the Allen House and conducted him to the Chautauqua tent.

DISCOVERY OF MINERAL RECALLS INDIAN STORY

THREE FOOT VEIN OF LEAD ORE THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN UNCOVERED IN LAKE TWP.

Large Chunk of Metal Brought To Surface on William Swingle's Farm Near Lake Ariel When Boring a Well.

The discovery of a three-foot vein of ore beneath the surface of land owned by William Swingle, who lives about a mile north of Lake Ariel, in Lake township, one day last week, caused no little excitement among the people living in this vicinity. The vein appears to be a good one and from the appearance of the metal it is judged to be lead ore. The vein runs parallel to a ledge of rock and lies on top of the rock. By the size and appearance of the specimen that was brought to the surface it is thought that a rich deposit of lead ore lies there. For a long time it has been the general supposition that copper and lead ore existed in parts of Wayne county but up to this time no evidence of a vein had been uncovered. The Swingle farm lies in rather hilly country this side of the village of Lake Ariel.

The discovery of the vein of what is supposed to be lead ore by Mr. Swingle came as a surprise. He had been engaged in boring a well on his place and last Friday after hoisting the loose dirt and clay from the hole he found a large piece of metal. The piece gave evidence of having been cut away from a larger formation and was about three feet in thickness. The metal was soft enough for the drill to cut through and it lay on top of a rock formation It is not known just how far beneath the surface the vein was encountered. Samples of the ore tend to prove that the find is a valuable one, but Mr. Swingle in all probability will send the ore specimens to the assay office at Washington for examination.

The finding of what is supposed to be a lead deposit in Lake township recalls to mind a story that has been handed down for many generatons concerning the existence of lead ore. The story originated with the Indians and appears to have been about the time of the Revolutonary war. Old residents state for a fact that the Indians who roamed the lands at that time knew of the existence of lead ore and for some unknown reason concealed the knowledge from the white settlers after their advent into that region. It was only by accident, so it is stated, that its existence became known to the settlers and then after finding the mine they were no longer able to locate it.

The Indian mind was subtle and evidently knowing that lead was used for the making of bullets for their muskets, also realized that it was better to keep the location of the mine a secret.

An old resident of that locality relates that when his father was a young man and the valley was yet the home of the red man, he and another man brought up the subject of the existence of lead while conversing with a friendly native. The old Indian said that the story was true but refused to tell them where it could be found. After some persuasion the Indian consented to lead them to the mine and secure for them a small quantity of the ore if they would allow themselves to be blindfolded. The men submitted and the Indian led the way through the forest, winding in and out as he did so, so that a trail could not be followed. In due time the bandages were taken from their eyes and they beheld a large flat stone lying before them. They were in an open space in the forest. The stone was removed, revealing a hole into the earth. The old Indian bade the men descend into the hole and take what they wanted. They took their axes and chopped away from what appeared to be an endless supply of lead. Taking as much as they could carry, they were again blindfolded and led away. They tried to mark the trail by breaking off twigs from the shrubbery and trees but in making an attempt to find the spot in the midst of the forest a second time they failed. The trail had been lost. Many times people have searched for this lead mine and failed and the story as it is handed down from generation to generation loses none of its mystery and leaves the present day people of that region still wondering whether or not there ever was such a mine. Perhaps Mr. Swingle has stumbled onto an end of the vein. Who knows?
