POULTRY

POULTRY FOR THE BOY

Desirable to Manage Them Separate From Other Fowls.

Plan Given for the Construction of Suitable House to Accommodate Ten Hens and Male-Coop May Be Enlarged.

(By KATHERINE ATHERTON GRIMES.)

The boy who has fowls of his own will want to manage them so as to keep them separate from the other poultry on the farm.

The coop in question is five feet wide and twelve feet long, giving a floor space of sixty square feet—five or six square feet per hen. It is six feet high at the front, and four feet at the back, and is built from cheap lumber, and covered with tarred roofing.

A Splendid Specimen.

up such a coop, except for the roofing. As no glass is used, the only additional expense will be for nails, hinges, a few yards of cheap cotton domestic, and a little poultry netting.

The door into the coop is put at one end of the front wall. It is not closed with a solid door, but with a frame covered with wire netting, having a curtain of muslin on the inside for use in cold weather.

The only other openings in the coop are four little square doorways, eight by ten inches in size. If the hens are very large, these may be made somewhat larger each way.

In the center of the back wall, two feet above the floor, fasten a frame two feet wide and three feet long, carrying two roosting poles.

On the ceiling, directly above the roost, nail strips of inch boards so as to make a frame the same size, or a trifle larger, than the roost itself.

At the lower edges put slats to keep them in place, as on the other curtains. On cold nights this makes a snug, and yet not stuffy, sleeping place for the biddies.

The nest boxes—two are plenty—should be placed in the darkest part of the coop. This will be against the front wall, in the corner farthest from the outer door.

Your aching corn will not trouble you if you use "PED-DOS" CORN CURE, 15 cents.

Erk Brothers and Ohio Silage Cutters.

WITH the corn growing rank and tall in the fields of Old Wayne county, the majority of farmers are thinking about silos, ensilage and ensilage cutters.

And that line of thought leads right up to where the Erk Brothers hardware store have their innings.

Erk Brothers are more than dealers in hardware, for they are practical farmers. Consequently they know the needs of farmers, and they represent and sell the best machinery and farm appliances that are manufactured.

For instance, take Silage Cutters: They sell the famous "Ohio" Cutters, and can give a good and valid reason for every claim made as to their superiority. Here are some reasons why the "Ohio" Cutters are the very best:

Dependability.—The "Ohio" will fill your silo at the rate of a ton in two minutes, the corn being cut in half-inch lengths, and will keep the pace and maintain the strain hour after hour and day after day.

Bull-Dog Grip.—The "Ohio" is so built that material to be cut cannot wind around the lower roll and clog or break the machine. When once started the material has to go through.

Durability.—The "Ohio" people have been building machines for nearly 60 years. They have found all the weak places, and the weak places have all been eliminated.

Castings.—"Ohio" castings are all heavy and of high-silicon iron.

Foundation.—Extra heavy of thoroughly seasoned hard maple, mortised, tenoned, double-pinned and well braced with iron rod and nut reinforcement through front.

Safety.—The tragedies that occur at silo filling time are cut out if you use the "Ohio." They are so eternally rigid that no lives or limbs are ever risked.

Phone or write Erk Brothers to send you a little pamphlet, "Silo Filler Logic." It is free, and they will gladly mail it to you. What is better yet, call at their store and let them explain a lot of things about silos, ensilage and silo-filling machinery that every farmer ought to know.
