LADIES' DEPARTMENT.

PEARLS ARE POPULAR. Pearls, especially those of odd tints, are popular this season for engagement tings, and a new style of setting for the diamond troth ring is somewhat similar to the broad gold ring worn by men, but lighter than the man's ring. In this band are imbedded three diamonds, the largest one in the centre .- [Detroit Free Press.

DR. MARY WALKER'S CLOTHES. Those who are interested in the clothes Dr. Mary Walker has constructed, may find the description of creaseless trousers are of black broadcloth, as is also her Prince Albert points of a standing collar that is fastened with a diamond stud. A black and red four-in-hand tie is ornamented with a large carbancle scarf pin, set in pearls. A butternut brown overgloves and a silk hat complete her costume.-- | Boston Transcript.

A FAIR POLIFICIAN'S CLEVER REPORT. In the recent general election in Great Britain, there has been a good deal of denunciation and very little wit, and there has been a conspicuous absence of good nature. The hard hitting that distinguished political life of old was tempered by epigrams and even fun; all this seems to have disdisappeared; neither the Primrose dames nor their fair antagonists are the cause of any pretty speeches. Nobody offers to light their pipes at their eyes, as in the case of the electioncering duchess, nor do they receive any encouragement to do so. Even the sister of serious Mr. Wilberforce, when canvassing for her brother at Hull, indulged in a pleasant stroke of humor; when his partisan should: "Miss Wilberforce forever!" she repiled, "I thank you for your good intentions, but I do not wish to be 'Miss Wilberforce forever'!" One would have voted for that young lady's brother, whatever was his politice.-[Argonaut.

FOR WOMEN WHO WEAR WATCHES. If you are determined to wear your watch like the rest of womankind, thrust into your bodice, it is a good idea to have sewed securely to the lining of each waist one of the patent fastening hooks which have to be pressed in order to pass over anything. Clasp this over the big link at the end of your chain and you are comparatively safe. A strong-handed thief may break the chain, but caunot capture the watch. Another excellent plan would be to have a small pocket sewed to the lining of each bodice at the place where it is natural to slip the watch. This pocket could open towards the front and when the watch was thrust in. could fasten it by means of one of the patent loops to an eyelet crocheted on the lining of the bodice.-[New York World.

this she differs from Mrs. Bishop Warren, erstwhile, Hiff of Denver, who is an owner of cattle. Mrs. Warren is worth much more than $1,000,000. She used to give instructions in Denver as to how to run sewing machines. But the Idaho young lady began in as humble a way, and, mercover, had to depend on her own exertion almost solely from the start. She was born in Oregon and educated in San Jose, so that many on the Pacific Coast know her.

"When I was quite a little girl," she not long ago said, "my father was buying some horses in Oregon. Some friends of mine had given me a little money, and with it he bought a horse those she now wears annusing. Her and brought it home to me. From the increase of this one animal all my horses have come. With the money coat. From her throat turn back the that I got from some of the first horses sold I bought better stock, until now the stock on the Bruneau consists almost entirely of Normans. and half-bloods." Five years ago the young lady owned over 700 head, and coat, buttoued gaiters, brown dogskin it is said that she now owns several thousand.

> For more than a dozen years also she has sold annually from a hundred to several hundred animals. Like Mrs-Buckingham and the New York lady to which the latter alluded, the dauntless Idaho girl ships her products East by cav and trainload, they being marketed in the larger cities. Her brother, Henry Wilkins, and her father are also interested in horse and cattle raising, but Miss Wilkins carries out her own ideas in regard to her ventures, listening, as may be supposed, to advice which may seem sound. But she has now had so much experience that her indoment is considered, as was that of Middy Morgan, who died a few weeks ago, as good as that of anybody in her especial line,-[San Francisco Examiner.

FASHION NOTES.

Jewelry for street-wear is a thing of the past.

Striped fabrics are more popular than ever before.

Lace is used on almost all materials and for all occasions.

The Alsacian bow is a feature of some of the season's millinery.

Buttons of leather with lace medallions are used on cloth coats.

Poke-shaped bonnets tied with wideribbon strings are worn by stylish roung matrons.

Fink - and - blue - checked gingham dresses are trimmed with white lace and satin ribbons.

A dark skirt, a mull waist or one of percale, with a blazer, is one of the favorite hot-weather outfits of the day.

But little trimming is used on the most fashionable hats and bonnets, but that must be of the most elegant sort.

Old-fashioned striped dimities, speckled with red or blue, make up very prettily for morning negliges, with a girdle and bows of cheap satin ribbon.

and began to sink. Capt. Minch, his family and the officers and began to sink. Capt. Minch, his family and the officers and crew of the boat to the number of secenteen got in the wooden yawi and the others took to the metallic one. The Re-serve sank in ten minutes, and hardly be-fore she had gone out of sight the metallic yawl capsized. The other went to her as-sistance, but only succeeded in rescuing two of her occupants, Capt. Minch's son and the steward. The nineteen survivors started for white Fish, sixty miles away. The wind was about west when they started, but veced to the north, making considerable sea. But the yawi weathered the breakers all night and until 7 the next morning, when about ten miles from hife station No. 10 and about a mile from the slore it capsized. Stewart says that he saw none of the occu-pants after thas. He struck for the shore, but the crice of the children, screams of the women and moaning of men was terrible for a few nomening. Then all become silent. Stewart was in the water two hours. He struck shore about ten miles above the sta-tion and had to walk there before reaching anyone to render him assistance. A search failed to find trace of any other survivor of the wreek and there is no question they were all drowned. Twenty seven were tot. The following persons were on board when the vessel went down: This ovening we received orders to be ready to march at 6 o'clock next morning, and were also notified that those on picket would remain, as also the camp guards.

"At daylight Sabbath morning, Feb. 5, the corps was in line. Appearances indicating that we might return here, we took nothing but our blankets. We marched to the Yellow House, three miles away, then south down the Wel-don railroad about four miles; then they were all drowned. Twenty-seven were lost. The following persons were on board when the vessel went down: Cantain Peter Minch, the owner, with his wife and two children. Charles and Florence, Mrs. Mary Engleberry and Bertha Engleberry, of Vermillion. The rew con-sisted of Albert Myers of Vermillion, en-tain: W. H. Lasmen, of Cleveland, child engineer, Fred Engalis, first mate, Charles Lebeau, second mate: Charles Wells, assis-ant engineer, Burt Smith and Ray Apple-bee, stewards, Schuyler Stewart, watchiman; Daniel Forbes, look-out; Carl Myers, wheel-man, son of the captain; John Satchen, 8, D. Holden and Horsee Burroughs, firemen; Martin Klasser and Robert Simpson, greas-ers; Daniel Stickney, R. T. Longfield, M. Coffee and John Wilson deck hands. The Western Reserves was a steel boat of 2,000 tons, valued at $220,000. southwest to Rowanty Creek, two miles. The rebels had rifle-pits on the opposite bank and had slashed the creek full of timber, making it difficult to cross, but we got over somehow, routing and capturing most of them.

"After this we marched possibly six miles until we struck the Vaugh road. Here Gen. Warren had a narrow es cape from being killed or captured. He was so close to a squad of about 39 rebels that he asked where they belonged. (They were mostly dressed in our uniform.) They replied with a volley, one bullet going through the General's coat. They captured a few of our men, when a squad from my regiment was sent after them, who killed two and captured others. It had been freezing all day. About sundown we went into camp on a large plantation, the owner of which told me that we were the first Yankees that had camped on his place. He was a perfect type of the old Virginia gent-leman; "afo' de wah, sah," stove-pipe hat, blue swallow-tailed coat, brass buttons, etc. A big Irishman in the regiment wanted to trade coats with him, which he took as a deadly insult; and Pat innocently added to his wrath by asking him if a little darky boy that was running around there was his son. As the man was very darkskinned, Pat's question drove him crazy mad. "About 11 o'clock that night we were waked up, and started back on the Vaugh road in the direction of Petersburg to Hatcher's Run, about five miles. The Second Corps had captured the robel works here during the day. When we came near Hatcher's Run we halted in an old tobaccofield, without fire, and did not know where to get anything to make a fire and all we could do was to walk about and shiver until daylight-about two hours. This day was cold and we suffered very much on account of it.

"About 8 o'clock p. m. the Second and Third Division of our corps adwith two men, but by night we ware all together again. We lay on the frozen ground that night, but before morning it began to steet, rain, and freeze, and the next day was torribly, bad, and will be long remembered by many a poor fellow that had the misfortune to be wounded that day. Our loss in the regiment was four killed, 84 wounded, and 14 missing.

Feb. 18 our camp guards and every-thing we had left behind were brought to us, about eight miles from our for-mer camp. During this time the weather was cold and it was very hard on the men lying on the cold ground. Soon we began putting up ' uts, which was the fourth set of houses that Winter." J. H. The Czar is Weak and Fat.

A near kinsman of the czar, who visits Russia frequently, and who is well-known for his frankness as well as fairness, told a writer for Harper's Magazine recently that many of the things done by the alleged order of the czar were repugnant to that ruler's feelings. The prince's conver-sation might be summarized in this way

"Alexander has no idea of doing wrong to any one. His heart is full of kindness. He is happy only when surrounded by his family circle. It is true that the foulest maladministration and persecution are going on all about him, but he, poor feilow, is incapable of seeing them. He hears only the reports of ministers, who know that he does not like to be The poor man is so burdworried. ened with fat that he can scarcely do any work; his temperament is sluggish. he lacks intelligence; when he signs papers he has no idea that he is doing more than an exercise in penmanship. He is physically and mentaily incapable of supervising any department of the government - not even the military, and as a conse-quence the country is left entirely to officials, who divide up power among themselves and do what they can to remain in office."

CARE OF SOFT WOOLS.

The plain sheer veiling and other soft wools that run the printed muslins and lawns so closely in popularity keep clean quite as long as their cotton rivals, but when the time comes for their freshening, the cleaners, as a rule, require a fortnight or so for the process, and this, very frequently, at a time when the weather is the hottest and these very gowns the most needed. A recipe given by a Frenchwoman has just been heard of -one that a deft maid can easily manage at home. As the writer knows nothing at all of the results of this "French process," it would be better to try it on some wool gown whose pristine glory is over, and not on a new dress that has become slightly soiled. This is the recipe: "Rice is used instead of soap. Boil one pound of rice in five quarts of water. Set it to cool, and when lukewarm, immerse the fabric, rubbing in the rice as the laundress does her soap. Then pour the water off, leaving the rice at the bottom. Rub the goods through this thicker rice-water, then rinse in one nearly clear of the rice solution." Plain water ""ems to take no part in the process, but as much water may be used as is found needful, provided the first proportion of a pound of rice to five quarts of water is carefully observed .-- [New York Post.

Ten aged French-Canadian couples cele brated their golden weddings at St. Cuthbert, Montreal, Canada. The scene was an imposing one. The ten couples have, all told, 405 grandchildren and great grandchildren, many of whom were present.

IT has been said oftentimes that a green Christmas makes a fat churchyard, but a wet Fourth of July is the aderwriter's joy.

vanced and drove the rebels some dis tance before we went in.

"Our regiment was on the left of the line and our company on the left of the regiment, and instead of a line of battle the regiment deployed like a skirmish-line. We drove them a mile or more through the wooks, over fallen timber and tree tops, until we came to where there had once been a saw-mill and a large pile of sawdust. Some of our boys were on the sawdust when they made a charge on our line. The regiment on our right had fallen back. which let the rebs in on our flank. The bullets were coming from front and flank and it was getting both hot and close. The rear was the only open place, and we went back in a hurry umping over logs and brush, and all the while the rebs seemed to be un-necessarily close. We soon overtook part of our division, when we rallied and gave them a few volleys, which au ed them to stop crowding us. "When we had gotten nearly back to where we started we found the Second Brigade of our division in line with fixed bayonets to prevent our going further. This brigade was composed of the 187th, 188th and 189th of N. Y., one-year regiments, and were the same that fired into our men Oct. 27, 1864, at Hatcher's Run. Here in front of them were the men and officers of two divisions and one bri gade of our division trying to form a line of battle. While form,ng the rebels bullets were coming thick which excited our Second Brigade s that they began firing right among the mass of men in front of them Men and officers fell all about, per haps more than fell from the rebel fire After they had fired, many of ther threw away their guns, and the whole brigade started as fast as they could go for the rear and got behind th works, where some of those who stil had their guns continued to fire at ou men as they came back. Then the made another break for the bridge and the other side of the creek.

"When we got back to the works w topped the rebels and began to for
