His Reason.

In administering punishment in the navy different penalties carry with them reduction to a lower conduct class. Of these there are four, the fourth being the lowest, and one placed in it is deprived of shore leave for a period of three months. For breach the executive officer of the United States ship Juniata found it necessary to place a man on the fourth class, who decided to try to obtain a mitigation of his sentence. With this object in view, he sought and obtained an interview with the executive officer, when the following conversation ensued: "Well, L....., ou wanted to see me?" "Yes, sir, I iid. I wanted to know, Mr. Rwhy you put me on the fourth class?" 'Ah, you wanted to know why I put cou on the fourth class, eh? I'll teil you, L.—, I put you on the 'ourth class because I hadn't a fifth class to put you on. Now go forward." He went.

Bangkok is only one hundred years old, but it has over half a million of inhabitants. It has grown very rapidly, and is the largest town between Calcutta and Canton. It is surrounded by walls and canals. The town proper is on the left bank of the Menam, but vast suburbs prolong Bangkok to the right bank.

Not Taking Any Chances,

A certain judge in Chicago, who rather prides himself on his vast and knowledge of law, was compelled not long ago to listen to a case that had been appealed from a Justice of the Peace. The young practitioner who appeared for the appellant was long and tedious; he brought in all the elementary text-books and quoted the fundamental propositions of law. At last, the judge thought it was time to make an effort to harry him up. "Can't we assume," he said, blandly, "that the court knows a little law itself?

"That's the very mistake I made in the lower court," answered the young man; "I don't want to les it defeat me twice."-Argonant.

How Is It Used

A country tawn in one of our Middie States, in which is a sectarian college, was startled by the suicide of one of the college students. He had become a confirmed drunkard; and enfeebled in mind and body; consclous that his career in college was over, afraid to go home, in despair he sought death.

His brother was cent for to take the dead boy home. He found the President of the college, and said to

"My mother three years or more ago sent you her youngest son, her Denjamin. He was a healthy, honorable toy, who, when he left home, had never touched a drop of liquor. There is nothing to carry back to her but this poor diseased body. Who has done this? Who is gut ty?"

The venerable president was deep'y moved. "Not I," he said. "The facu ty were interested in him. When he began to go astray they remonstrated with him. I pleaded with him. Every influence that we could exert was brought to bear. But he went down as if drawn by some invisible hand."

Whose was this hand?

As the dead boy was carried down the street, a pretty young girl looked out of a window of her home, and saw the hearse. She remembered how, nearly three years ago, vexed at his blindness to be: char as and his eagerness for study, she had used a l her ittle wiles to attract him; how she had succeeded; how mad he was in his admiration of her.

There was a club in the college composed of students of free social habits. At their late suppers wines were used, and stakes were played for at their card tables. She had urged him to join the club, and had praised their "manly" ways: their freedom from boyish re traints. "They were men of the world; she never could care for any man who had not seen

He had joined the club, and this was the result.

The silly, frivolous girl gave a sigh, and then laughed nervously. It was a pity! She had lost an admirer. But who was to blame? Not she, She knew other men of the world who would not be driven to suicide by a few glasses of liquor!

She went on her foolish, cruel way. This is a true story, stripped of its worst details. In every college town there are young girls whose influence, unfortunately, is stronger over the students than that of their wisest and dearest friends. How do they ise it?-Youth's Companion.

When animals or plants are re-moved from their peculiar and natural districts to one entirely different in climate some surprising changes take place. As soon as possible after such removal they change their character and habits so as to conform with their new homes, or else cease to exist.
