"It is very foolish to give your children a good advice, while you are setting them a bad example,"

The forthcoming report of the superintendents of public instruction will recommend that a school census be taken in order to determine how many children are not attending school who ought to be. He will show that the increased state appropriation to the school has resulted in longer school terms and better salaries and that the free text book law has been a great benefit.

Too much haste always involves serious waste. Nothing should be done so rapidly that it can not be done well. This is an age in which there is a wide spread tendency to secure large results rather than perfect results; and the temptation attacks almost every thing. It is very dangerous, and should be resisted. Whoever is careful to do things well, will be pretty certain to do all he ought to do.

This is an age in which suggestion and criticism are almost universal Things which are and things which ought to be are discussed, and fault is found with almost every work and every worker. The demads of the age and its emergencies upon every one who is actively interested in public matters are more than enough for his full attention and utmost energy. A great part of his labor must necessarily be that of arranging and methodizing his duties. Then, whatever he does will be criticised, and what he does not do will be the cause of complaint. But these facts make this an age of opportunity for heroism. The opportunities for noble and heroic efforts are many and sublime. And he who studies well his opportunities, and labors according to his best abilities, is engaged in the activities of an important era. Out of the present turmoil, honest thought, true fidelity and earnest effort will bring forth a future of sublime accomplish-

There are people-yes many peoplealways looking for slights. They can not carry on the daily intercourse of the family without finding that some offense is designed. They are as touchy as hair-triggers. If they meet an acquaintance who happens to be pre-occupied with business, they attribute his distraction in some mode personal to themselves, and take umbrage accordingly. They lay on others the fruit of their irritability. Indigestion makes them see impertinence in every one with whom they come in contact. Insome impertinent word or momentary | Mine Boss. taciturnity mistaken for an insult. To It is far wiser to take more charitable view of our fellow-beings, and not suppose that a slight is intended, unless the neglect is open and direct. After all, too, life takes its hue, in a great degree from the color of our own mind. If we are frank, and generous, the world will treat us kindly; if, on the contrary, we are suspicious, men will learn to be cold and cautious to us. Let a person get the reputation of being "touchy," and everybody is under restraint, and in this way the chances of an imaginary offense are vastly in-

The current number of the Century Magazine contains an article on "Tramping With Tramps," one portion of which ought to be specially interesting to Pennsylvanians. The author is Josiah Flynt, and as the title of his paper indicates, he gained the knowledge which he now communicates to the public by intimate association with the fraternity of tramps in all sections of the country: "It is in Pennsylvania, however, that the tramp is best fed, while I still maintain that he gets more money in New York city. I do not know of a town or village in the Keystone state where a decently clad roadster cannot get all that he cares to eat without doing a stroke of work in payment. He can travel, too, more freely than elsewhere, for the railroads intersecting the state are the most friendly in the country. There is not one which does not harbor "deadbeats," at least at night. The jails are also a great boon to the fraternity. In the majority of them there is no work to do, while some furnish tobacco and the daily papers. Consequently, in winter, one can see tramps sitting comfortably on benches drawn close to the fire, and amoking their after breakfast pipe, as complacently and calmly as the merchant in his counting room. Here they find refuge from the storms of winter, and make themselves entirely at home."

George Hughes bet on Lawrence Neal, of Ohio, for Governor and lost. R. L. Taafe bet with him on Billy Mc-Kinley and won a ride on a wheelbarrow from Mr. Taafe's residence to the pool room of James Hughes and back. The event is to take place the first day that the mines are idle, when one and all both great and small will be out to witness the procession. Music will be furnished by the Rathmel Cornet band. Something dropped last Tuesday that has caused an enormous amount of political quietness in this neck o' woods. night. The jails are also a great boon

If the people of Reynoldsville wish to shine we had better not waste any time in play when there is such a crying need for better education and more religion. Now as the servant of Christ and your servant I beseech you all to refrain from anything that will hinder the progress of our church. I know you love this church and wish to see it prosper, and do not think any one of you would willingly disgrace it. If we become worldly, just rest assured that we shall not prosper. Our church will not grow as it should, we shall all have the faults of the world and keep this little church that should be happy and peaceful in constant trouble

Do you not know that the Presbyterians ought to be the best and happiest of all people?--and you will be if you obey the words that God gives me to speak to you. Will you not rally around the church and give it the energy you are offering the world? You observe that I am not angry with any one in the church or outside of it, for I believe these were all well-meaning young people who thought they were doing something for their own good-and I am glad they are interested in themselves but hope they will not follow these old fashioned amusements that have done so much harm. Let Reynoldsville get out of the ruts and be an example to our neighboring towns.

Rumor has it that I said some things about the proposed dancing school that I did not say. I have acted prudently and said but little and that little kindly. This address contains the substance of all I have said or wish to say.
