Generally when a man feels the need of economy he thinks it ought to begin with his wifn.

Pennsylvania's mining exhibit won 60 awards at the World's Fair, almost double the number awarded any other one State.

Edward Bok says that of 5000 poems which come into his editorial office during a year, not fifty, if printed, would be read with any degree of patience by the public.

Edward Bellamy has written the story of "How I Came to Write 'Looking Backward' " for The Ladies' Home Journal. He will tell in connection with the history of the book itself, how the idea of Nationalism first suggested itself to his mind.

Of the $300,000 appropriated by Legislature to pay Pennsylvania's expenses at the World's Fair, the amount yet in the hands of the treasurer of the State Board is $3,438.86. There was expended on the Pennsylvania building. including maintenance, $134,636.33. The expenses of committees, were $97,-422.54.

One of the jokes arising from that particulary fertile source of funny stories. Englishmen's misunderstanding of Americans and Americanisms, is told in the words of Sir Edgard Fitz Wales: "You Americans aw so charmingly thoughtful, ye know. After you've had your own summer, you know, you have an Indian summer for the pooah natives, I suppose."

Pennsylvania has 200,000 farms, which produce over $200,000,000 in crops. There are 5,000,000 live stock. The state produces nearly 2,000,000 tons of iron in the antharcite furnaces, nearly 3,000,000 in bituminous furnaces and 17,000 tons of charcoal iron. Over 628,-000,000 tons of antharcite coal have been mined in the state, and one oil field has yielded 150,000,000 barrels.

Cold weather carries with it at least one blessing. It destroys the occupation of the street fakir who sells patent nostrums and worthless jim-cracks. The street fakir, with his rolicking rigamarole and lying protestations reaches the long car of the public which Honesty cannot catch. People will rush up to him and hand him their quarters and half dollars for something that an honest man in their own town would sell them for a nickle. They want to be humbugged. The preternatural nimbus of quackery charms us and makes us love to be humbugged. If some one with whom they were well acquainted would give utterance to the rhodomontade, the people would simply But a stranger, with

THE TOLEDO WEEKLY BLADE. And book containing all the Nasby Letters for One Bollar.

In answer to a general demand from all parts of the United States, the TOLEDO BLADE has published in one colume, cloth bound, all of the "Nasby Letters" ever written by the late D. R. Locke ommitting perhaps a few unimportant letters on local or forgotten topics. Only a few of these letters were ever published in book form. Everybody has read some of them, but who has read all of them? The book contains over 500 large pages, and all the Nashy Letters written during a period of twenty-five years; also a portrait of D. R. Locke from his last photograph. It would sell at one dollar or more, but will never be placed on sale. One hundred thousand copies are now being printed and bound, and one copy will be sent postpaid by mail free to every person who this winter remits one dollar for the WEEKLY BLADE one year. Everybody invited to send for a specimen copy of the WEEKLY BLADE, which will give a full description of the book "The Nusby Letters." published in this country. It has the largest circulation of any weekly newspaper, and goes to every State, Territory and nearly every county of the Union. Only one dollar a year, including the above mentioned book free. Send postal to THE BLADE, TOLEDO, OHIO, for a free specimen copy of the paper. Send the addresses of your friends also.

air of mystery about him, will catch the gudgeons every time. If you do not really care to be humbugged, patronize your own people .- Punxsutawney Spirit.

The drawback to domestic felicity often lies in the fact that we get too familiar with one another. There should be a certain reserve even in the most intimate relationships. Members of the same family have no right to burst into one another's rooms without knocking. Wives have no more right to search their husband's pockets than they have to do the same little service for a distant acquaintance. You have no more right to rob the baby's bank than to force the vault of the First National. You have no right to read the young person's letters without permission, although you have a right to her confidence, so that she shows her correspondence freely. You have no more right to obtrude your conversation upon your wife, nor she hers upon you, when either is in the midst of a thrilling story, than you or she would have to interrupt the Queen of England at her reading. An "Excuse me" if a mother is obiged to interrupt her children's prattle is quite as good a way to teach etiquette as out of a book. The man who gets up and slams to the ventilator in a crowded car to suit his own convenience, or the woman who throws open a car window regardless of the comfort of her fellow-passengers, is no ruder shan Bess is when she ignores brother Tom's comfort at home, or Tom is when he pounces on the biggest orange on the plate when only Bess and be are at the table. When they make discourteous remarks to one another they sin against the true code of etiquette more than when they are impolite at a party or bolsterously unkind to a casual comrade, on the principle that he is more criminally careless who pounds a piano to pieces with a hammer than he who merely disfigures and mars the pine case it was delivered in.

Ancient Stationer

In medizoval times the stationarius, or stationer, held official connection with a university and sold at his stall, or station, the books written or copied by the librarius, or book writer. Such is the origin of the modern term stationer, one who now keeps for sale implements of such service, and not usually the productions of literary persons .- Harper's Bagar.
