LATEST BRAZILIAN WAR NEWS.

The New York "Herald" has received the following dispatches from the Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs at Rio: "The Brazilian Javary, rebel ship, carrying their heaviest artillery, was sunk in the fort by Santa Catarina navy vessel operating in Santa Catarina under command of Gen. Argola, destroyed the rebel forces, which lost guns, carriages, munitions and horses, leaving many dead and wounded."

Brazilian Minister Mendonca said concerning the sinking of the Javary: "Its importance lies in the fact that the Javary was the second vessel in the possession of Mello. He could carry nine miles. She has been doing most of the destruction in the City of Niteroy, near Rio. She had done damage to the extent of millions."

Word comes from Rio that the situation there is critical. Peloto has again been mounting guns on the hills within the city limits contrary to his understanding with the foreign diplomats.

General Lombardment of the capital seems inevitable, and the fighting with small arms is almost incessant. The diplomatic corps has removed to Petropolis.

Heavy artillery fire continues daily. Fort Villa Rica and Lege have been greatly battered. A heavy gun at Fort San Joao was struck by a rebel shot and dismounted. During the bombardment on Saturday, a shell burst at Fort Lege, killing an officer and seventeen men. Parts of the city, owing to the falling of shells and machine guns, are in peril. There have been many casualties in the streets.

The foreign diplomats consider it impossible to take further steps for the protection of life and property, and the naval commanders concur in the general opinion which favors letting both sides proceed without any further interference. Admiral Mello is inclined to bombard the city after forty-eight hours rest.

It has become known to Peloto's administration that Mello intends to make an effort to get out of the harbor of Rio with his flagship Aquitana in order to meet Peloto's warships, which are coming down from New York, and give them battle on the open sea. Preparations to give him a hot reception have been made to run the gauntlet of the forts at the harbor's entrance, and being accordingly made with all haste. General Lombardment of the capital seems the inevitable and the fighting with small arms is almost incessant.

QUEEN LILL'S VERSION.

She Writes Blount of Her Woes in Hawaii.

The correspondence of Queen Lillokalanani with Commissioner Blount was given out by the State department and forms the fourth volume of papers on the vexed Hawaiian question. The queen details all of the events of her reign. She claims she was warned on December 17, 1892 that the American representatives were preparing for annihilation. She advised with the British minister on the subject and he told her to lay the matter before the diplomatic corps.

She claims the people had demanded the new constitution and they had elected a new legislature for that purpose. Early in January the queen told her household guards she was going to promulgate the new constitution and asked them to be ready to quell any uprising. She claims they pledged her their obedience. She says her cabinet officers promised to support her. She claims Mr. Colburn acted as a traitor by consulting a lawyer, Mr. Hartwell, on January 14 and telling him her intentions.

She informs Blount that Colburn's "treason" set the cabinet against her and gave the revolution the chance they were after. The story of the revolution is much the same as that given by Blount.

They claim a majority of the assembly and they will declare Mr. Powderly's office vacant to humiliate him. Then they will elect J. R. Sovereign of Des Moines, Ia., general master workman. ## STRIKERS GROW RIOTOUS.

They Stone a Lehigh Station and New Train Hands.

The strike on the Lehigh Valley railroad is still far from settlement. At Sugar Notch, three miles from Wilkesbarre, there was more or less excitement Sunday. A motley gang of men and boys gathered and made all sorts of threats against the men who were at work. The most unruly of the crowd threw stones through the windows of the station and compelled the operator to flee for his life. As Sugar Notch is an important junction of the road this episode delayed the running of trains for quite a while.

The strikers held a large and enthusiastic meeting in the afternoon. No desertions were reported, but four non-union men joined the ranks. The Brotherhood men realize that this is a battle to the death. If they cannot win this contest with all the Brotherhoods united, it will be useless to continue the various organizations. Brotherhood men all over the country are pouring in money to the local treasury, and the strikers will be well provided for for three months.

An attempt was made by an unruly crowd to drive a shifting crew from their engine on one of the Lehigh Valley branches, near the Hillman vein breaker. The excitement ran high for a time and stones and coal were thrown at them until a posse of deputy sheriffs arrived.

There is a blockade of four freight trains at South Wilkesbarre and all the crews have abandoned their engines. One train containing 29 coal cars leaving South Wilkesbarre for Fairview was stopped by the strikers and part of the train pulled out, leaving four cars and two crew men behind. The two latter threw their flags away and joined the strikers.

The 7:15 o'clock passenger train due here from the West was ston a north of this city the same evening. The depot has been closed for fear of violence, new men are coming in and others are leaving. The outlook at present is anything but encouraging to one side or the other.

The Pennsylvania market freight from Jersey City bound South on the Central railroad collided with a Lehigh coal train at the Washington street crossing in Perth Amboy, N. J., and engineer Malloy, of the Lehigh, who had taken the place of a striker and who was making his first trip was killed.

A number of the deserting crews who were seen at Wilkesbarre said they had been subjected to an almost continuous fusillade of stones and coal from Sugar Notch to Wilkesbarre and most of them were so thoroughly frightened that they were glad to quit on the spot.

DESTITUTION IN CANADA.

400 Indians Perish From Hunger and More Will Die.

The greatest destitution prevails among the Indians all over Canada, and from Labrador to British Columbia comes tales of suffering. Priests and missionaries are vainly endeavoring in a small way to relieve the misery and suffering which has only commenced with the arrival of the snow in great and part of the train pulled out, leaving four cars and two crew men behind. The two latter threw their flags away and joined the strikers.

It is already known that more than 400 Indians have perished because of hunger. It is expected that thousands more must inevitably starve before the winter is over.

$2,000,000 Contagion.

The most destructive fire known in Springfield, Mass., for years started in the block owned by J. K. Dexter and Henry S. Dickinson, at 93 Worthington street. The flames when discovered had gained considerable headway from the fact that the fire seemed to have started in the center of the building some time before it appeared on the outside of the block, and the flames soon spread beyond the control of the firemen.

John Doolen's building, next to the Dickinson block, went next and then the Mayor block. The Abbe block was then attacked and soon the Hotel Ginnower was completely surrounded by fire and speedily caught. The probable loss is estimated at $2,000,000.

The Fair May Be Saved.

There is a possibility that the principal World's Fair buildings will be retained another year. At a meeting between the officials of the Exposition and members of the South Park Board of Commissioners representatives of the Exposition promised to prepare a schedule of buildings at Jackson Park which they leave the authority to turn over to the Park Commissioners. The latter promised to decide what sum of money they would accept from the Exposition in return for a release from all ordinances, contracts or bonds, which relate to the restoration of Jackson Park to its original condition.

Portuguese Characteristics.

The men of Portugal are as fond of show as are the women. Their fingers are nearly always loaded with rings, and about their bodies hang chains as thick as ropes, from which are suspended bunches of trinkets.

The Portuguese dandy is fond of anything that draws attention to his most-esteemed person. Above his showy vest he wears a cravat of rich colors, and in his buttonhole a full-blown rose. I know I am safe in saying that most of the promenaders whom I have seen on Sundays in the chief thoroughfares with riding whips in their hands and handkerchiefs spurs on their heels have never set foot in a stirrup. The spur is to them a sort of sign of nobility which they arrogate to themselves, a relic of the privileges of the old chivalry.

Where is the Portuguese, be he mulatto or calico, whose ancestors did not wear golden spurs at the battle of Ourique or of Aljubarrota? I have noticed that a good many officials work in spurs as if about to go to battle, and when these knights of the quill peacefully reader up their fine, bureaucratic souls to God, I have no doubt that their spurs will be laid on their tombs.

But have we any right to dwell so long in a half mocking spirit on a people of such numerous and trust-worthy moral qualities, and who, but for their unfortunate indolence and their exaggerated egotism, might be held up as a model to other nations? For the Portuguese are naturally good, hospitable, honest in their dealings, generous and brave, and we are very certain that in the event of any threatening of the independence of their country we should once more see this heroic nation, in whom slumbers a powerful national spirit, rise as one man against the invader, as in 1388 and 1809.

IN MISERY WITH DYSPEPSIA

I was in misery with dyspepsia. Some times I had no appetite, and when I did eat I had a heavy meal I felt much worse for hours after. I did not seem to have any ambition was restless at night, and in the morning tired and nervous. My digestion was irregular and unsatisfactory. My wife urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result is that I have never felt better in all my life than now.
