A Sair, Sound Trust.

Not corporations alone make the best trusts, for morally speaking we place reliance in things most successful, and thereby establish a most substantial trust, and this is the way to do it. "My wife," says Mr J. W. Ames, Pairmont, Neb., suffered intensely with sciatica, and was beipless. I tried many things to no purpose. Although the doctors said 'no' a got a bottle of Bt. Jacobs Oll and tried it. It stopped the pain and in a short time she and no use for erutches." Now here is a trust founded on the surety of cure from the experience of being cured. Let any doubting Thomas take the same course and make a trust for himself.

A Plan to Get Rid of Department Red

Tape in Postoffice Expenditures. Postmaster General Bissell's plan to place the postal service of 10 largest cities of the country under the practical management of their postmastars will be a radical innova-tion in the system of the department if it is adopted. The Honse Committee on Post Offices will devote itself to the considera-tion of the matter forthwith holding a special meeting at which the postmaster general will be invited to appear and ex-plain the proposed change. This scheme will involve no increased expenditures but is simply designed to secure an adminis-tration of the postoffices without the friction and red tape incidental to the present sys-iem in which the department oversees the excenditures ann details of office manage-ment. their postmastars will be a radical innova-

According to the explanations made by Assistant Postmaster General Jones it is proposed to deduct from estimates for the postal service the amounts which the depostal service the amounts which the de-partment would probably assign to the 10 reading cities and have Congress make a separate appropriation of a certain sum for each one. This money would be at the command of the several post easters to fraw upon and utilize as they saw fit, giving to them the same power held by the man-agers of private business concerns. The postmaster general favors it because it will relieve the department of much roublesome work without putting addition-si burden on the postmasters.

PAPER-COVERED NOVELS.

A Dealer Makes Both Ends of the Business Pay-Cheap Reading in Demand.

There are good profits to be made by dealing in second-hand books in a city like New York, and one dealer has found out how to "eat his cake and have it too," which careful mothers tell the children cannot be Jone. This dealer, with an eye to the pennies, will take a paper-covered novel, published at 50 cents, but which he has bought for 30, and sell it for 35 cents, with the understanding that the buyer is to return it when read. When the book comes back he pays 20 cen s for it, and puts it for sale again at 30 cents. The second buyer returns the book and receives 15 cents, and for a third time the book is on the shelves, this time marked 20 cents. Again it comes back, the reader takes 10 cents, and the book. if by careful patching it can be kept in decent condition. change owners half a dozen will times, leaving to the dealer a profit of a nickel every time it comes to the Books have often, through store. careful handling, puid 200 per cent. on the original investment and at the end found their way back to the shelves of the dealer, who has the profits and the book.

Another system then comes into play. Books will be sold on the "twofor-one" plan. In this scheme a buyer will take two books at, say, 30 cents each, paying 40 cents in cash; when these have been read they are returnable, and the dealer will give any 20. cent book in the place for the two brought back. When this 20-cent book is returned a 10-cent volume may be taken in exchange, and when this last comes back a nickel and thebook will bring out another 10-cent th book. This process may be kept up as long as the buyer sees fit. The thrifty dealer is always ready for a trade.

Of course, it sometimes happens that a buyer in the first instance will keep the book, but as the store caters to a class of customers who can hardly be termed collectors, but who like highly seasoned literature, the chance of a diminution in profits in this way is exceedingly slight. In this par-ticular branch of the second-hand book business the demand for love stories and "blood-and-thunder" literature is large and steady. Huxley, Tyndall, Emerson, or Swineburne find little favor among the readers and scant ceremony on the shelves, but "Old Cap Collier" is a stanch favorite, while Gaboriau, Fergus Hume, Conan Doyle, Zola, A. C. Gunter, and Sylvanus Cobb always command a respectful hearing from the men and boys. The girls, and there are lots of them who are ready customers, favor "The Duchess," "Ouida," Mrs. Southworth, and Laura Jean Libbey.

Once in a while some of the yellow covered "Beadle's Dime Novels" of thirty years ago stray into the place, but they stay there only a short time, as "Snaky Snedgrass, the Sorrowful Scout," and "Painted Pete, the Pottawatomic Prisoner," are quickly dragged away to lighten the gloom of a winter's night and to form the basis of many a castle in Spain inhabited by maidens in distress surrounded by a hideous crew of yelling "varmints" or "redskins." Common. every-day Indians were never good enough for the yellow novel heroes to kill.

An idea of the magnitude of this out-of-the-way branch of trade may be gathered from the fact that on the shelves of one of the two "stores" shelves of one of the two "stores" BEANS-run by this enterprising tradesman are no less than 8,000 pape -covered novels, and in addition to this they are piled away in corners, stacked against the walls, and one room in the rear of the place is practically Mined CaBrade-per hundred... 3 00 ONIONS-YellowGlobe¥ba the rear of the place is practically given over to them for a repair
