Prof. Stamey and Wingert are at Brookville this week on the Reynolds vs. Black case and in consequence the scholars of their rooms for this week are enjoying a vacation so far this week.

Any person that will not speak a good word for and boom his own town, should peep up his duds and skedaddle to some secluded spot where the chipmunk and woodchuck sing in concert with the hoot owl.—Ridgway Democrat.

An exchange says: Wagons can not run without wheels, boats without steam, frogs jump without legs, or newspapers carried on everlastingly without money, any more than a dog can wag his tail when he has none.

William Barrett, the young man who had his left arm badly injured on a circular saw on a portable mill near town the first of this month, came into town Thursday for the first time to have his arm dressed. The arm is healing nicely.

Mrs. Isabelle Brown, who lived near Sandy Valley, died Feb. 21st, and was buried in the Beechwoods cemetery on Friday, Feb. 23rd. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. Hill, pastor of the Beechwoods Presbyterian church. Mrs. Brown was eighty-seven years old.

Our store keepers must have done considerable business Saturday, judging from the number of teams in from the country. It has been sometime since thirty-five teams were tied on Main street, between the Arnold block and Hotel McConnell. This was the case Saturday afternoon.

We stated last week that Rev. P. J. Slattery had gone to West Va., for the benefit of his health. When he arrived at Washington, D. C., he was too sick to proceed on his journey and has since been confined to one of the hotels at Washington. When last heard from the doctor thought he would be able to return home in a few days.

Washington's birthday passed off very quietly in Reynoldsville. H. Alex. Stokes, Sam'l Tilton Reynolds and Major Epler were the only persons who manifested their patriotic spirit by decorating their buildings with the stars and stripes. In the afternoon the Keystone band enlivened the town for a short time with some delightful music.

James McKay died Wednesday, Feb. 21, and was buried in the Catholic cemetery Friday forenoon. The Ancient Order of Hibernians of this place attended the funeral in a body. The deceased, who was twenty-six years old, left a wife nineteen years old and a little baby to meet the difficulties of a cold world without a husband and father's aid.

In our election returns for West Reynoldsville we made several mistakes. There were two Justices of the Peace elected in the new borough and we omitted the name of Stanley G. Austin. For school directors the name of D. Bollinger, Democrat, should have appeared instead of R. D. Beer, Republican. Mr. Beer had 54 votes and Mr. Bollinger 55.

Archie J. McMurray, one of the publishers of the Brookville Democrat, was married last Thursday to Miss Lida L. Wether, of Clarion. The benedict is a sober and industrious young man with a promising and bright prospect before him. Accept our congratulations, Archie, and we hope you and your bride-half will successfully win the battle of life as you travel along hand in hand.

A little excitement was created on Jackson street last Saturday evening by an alarm of fire being given at the residence of P. A. Hardman. Several men were passing by who ran in and found a blaze that had been started by a lamp being set too close to a splasher over a wash stand in a bedroom. There was no damage done worthy of note. Mr. and Mrs. Hardman were away from home at the time.

The town council will likely soon pass a new ordinance compelling men who are arrested and will not or cannot pay their fine to work on the streets at one dollar a day until the fine is paid. This would be in accordance with a state law enacted at the last session of the legislature. This kind of an ordinance would be hard on law breakers, but it would be a good ordinance and should be passed.

According to the following item clipped from the Falls Creek Herald, it is evident some person in that locality objects to improvements in that town: "During the building of the Evergreen Hotel a watchman is kept on each night. The destruction of the other house was supposed to be the work of incendiary and Captain W. J. Leahy does not propose to have this hotel burned through any negligence of his."

An observant individual remarks that when a man drops a piece of meat on the floor, no difference how clean the floor may be, he will either give it a kick or pick it up and lay it to one side. He will never eat it. But let him drop his plug of tobacco on the street, and no difference how dirty the street may be he will pick it up, give it a careless wipe on his coat sleeve, or on the bosom of his pants and then taker chew from it with a keener relish than ever.

In this issue of THE STAR will be found the announcement of Jacob L. Fisher, of Punxsutawney, as a candidate for district attorney, subject to action of the Republicans of Jefferson county at the primary in June. The Punxsutawney Spirit, in speaking of Mr. Fisher, says: "Jacob L. Fisher is an energetic and ambitious young attorney who is well-known all over the county, and shows remarkable aptitude at anything he undertakes. He will make a vigorous fight for the nomination."

The annual encampment of the Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., will take place in Philadelphia, commencing to-morrow, March 1st. The annual convention of the W. R. C., of Pennsylvania, will take place in the same place and at the same time. E. Neff was elected delegate, and R. D. Beer alternate, from the G. A. R. Post at this place. Mrs. J. S. McCraith was elected delegate and Mrs. E. Neff alternate from the W. R. C., but none of the delegates from this place will attend the meetings.

The Schumann Lady Quartette is declared by the most competent musicians and musical critics to be the finest lady quartette in the West. The finished and artistic character of their work is the result of the long association, as a quartette, of four beautiful and finely cultivated voices. They possess a blending of vocal quality, absolute precision of concerted movement, distinct enunciation and a delicate adjustment of expressive shading rarely attained in this department of effort. This company will give an entertainment at the Opera house Friday evening, March 2nd. Reserved seat tickets on sale at Stokes's drug store.

Don't You Think So?

Too many boys run the streets at night. This can be avoided to a great extent by having a reading room or a Y. M. C. A. Think seriously about the matter.

Accepted the Call.

Rev. E. Lewis Kelley, who received a unanimous call to the pastorate of the handsome brick Baptist church at this place, has accepted the call. He will not preach regularly in the church until he is through school at Rochester, N. Y., which will be sometime in May. Rev. Kelley has the appearance of a bright man.

Benefit Entertainment.

The Reynoldsville Temperance Society gave an entertainment in Centennial Hall last Saturday for the benefit of a number of families in town that are in destitute circumstances. The entertainment consisted of songs, recitations and dialogues. The Keystone band furnished instrumental music for the occasion. The program was a long one. The proceeds amounted to $46.69.

A New Trial.

Mike Shinglebaugh, who was convicted of concealing stolen goods, has been granted a new trial. If he can get five hundred dollars bail he will get out of jail, otherwise he will board with Sheriff Gourley until the May term. We were informed that several citizens of this place informed the Court that he was an honest, hard working man and on that grounds he was granted a new trial.

Married Monday.

James Walker and Miss Minerva Jane Henry, of Rathmel, went to Brookville Monday to get the necessary license to allow them to enter the state of matrimony. Squire W. W. Crisman, of Clayville, happened to be in the prothonotary's office and George Hughes, of Rathmel, who was in the office at the same time, introduced the Squire to the contracting parties, and the ink was hardly dry on the license before James and Minerva were pronounced man and wife. The young couple will go to housekeeping at Rathmel immediately.

A Gallon of Blood.

Any one coming up Main street from the A. V. R'y station Monday morning could see blood every step or two on the snow. It got there this way: A colored man who works at the tannery had the toothache Sunday and he got an inexperienced fellow to try and pull the tooth for him. The fellow succeeded in breaking the tooth and extracting part of it. Blood began to ooze out of the hole made and it kept coming all night and did not stop until the man reached Dr. Reynolds' drug store Monday morning and then by medical skill it was stopped. The man said that a gallon of blood ran out of his mouth Sunday night. We did not see the gallon of blood and do not vouch for the quantity, but merely give the man's statement.

Installation Next Monday.

The regular monthly meeting of the town council will be held next Monday evening at which time Burgess-elect Lattimer will take the oath of office. Mr. Lattimer informed the editor of this paper that he fully expects to enforce the laws of our borough, and if they are too rigid for the people the ordinances will have to be changed or the people submit, for he cannot take the oath administered and do anything else but enforce the laws of the borough. He further added he believed the ordinances should be as strictly enforced the last months of a man's term as they are the first. We make mention of this so the people may know what to expect from our new mayor. The town council is talking of furnishing a room in the lock-up building to hold council meetings in and for the Burgess' office. If this is not done Mr. Lattimer does not know yet where he will have his office.

Horr's Lecture.

Hon. R. G. Horr lectured to a large and appreciative audience at Centennial Hall last Wednesday night on "The Labor Problem." It was announced that his subject would be "Has it been proven that the Baboon is our Cousin?" Mr. Horr did not know what subject the Reynoldsville committee had selected, but was under the impression it was the labor subject. He was very much surprised when he arrived here Wednesday afternoon and was informed what subject had been selected. He had not delivered the lecture for several years and was not anxious to deliver it. He said his best lecture was "The Labor Problem," and the people need not judge by the subject that the lecture would be a dry affair. This is the reason the subject announced was not delivered. For an hour and forty minutes the ex-Congressman entertained his hearers and gave them something to think about. He cannot be called an eloquent speaker, yet for practical logic, keen discrimination and genuine wit, few surpass him. His arguments are to the point; they are so honest and appeal to every-day experience that they seem to leave little room for doubt or discussion. His illustrations are drawn from the ordinary, every-day affairs of life, which rendered them exceptionally clear and convincing.

Struck a Snap.

According to a story now being circulated two Reynoldsville young men have struck a real snap. There has been a fight on at Troutville for some time about widening the street of that village. The matter was to be voted on at the February election and one of the fellows anxious to widen the street, decided to help his side on by importing some voters into the place who would vote his way. The man with this in view, visited some nearby towns and gathered up men who were out of employment and offered them work or their board if they would vote for widening the street of his town. It is said he got a number of voters into that neighborhood sixty days before election day. The two Reynoldsville young men promised to vote to suit the man if he would board them until the first of May, and the fellow accepted the offer. The young men had sixty days board before the election and need not worry about something to satisfy the inner man until after the April showers have passed. The man lost at the election and now every meal time the presence of his star boarders will be a reminder that his little scheme was not a glorious success—only for the fellows who are getting three square meals a day for casting their ballots for a wider street in Troutville.

Washington's Birthday at Rathmel.

For sometime the Patriotic Order Sons of America of Rathmel made calculations on having a big time at that place on Washington's birthday, and they were not disappointed, although the affair was not as great a financial success as they had hoped it would be. The above named order has built a hall at Rathmel during the past year that would be a credit to any town. The proceeds of the supper and lecture last Thursday is to be used to furnish the lodge room. An elegant supper consisting of oysters, pressed meats and many other good things, was served in the hall. After supper Rev. H. R. Johnson, pastor of the Reynoldsville Presbyterian church, delivered an excellent lecture on the "Danger line of Socialism." While the lecture was one that showed deep thought and contained much for the people to consider, yet it was interspersed with humor sufficient to evoke considerable laughter. A large crowd partook of the supper and listened to the lecture. The people of Rathmel know how to get up good meals and also know how to treat the people who attend any gathering at that place. All things considered the affair at Rathmel last Thursday was a grand success.

Four Poets.

Times are dull and money scarce but poets are plenty at this season of the year. We have on our table four different pieces of poetry that we have been requested to publish. Two of the poems came from Rathmel, one from Sandy Valley and the other one was composed in our own town. Some of these days ere long we will have our poetical editor examine the productions just referred to and if they are deserving of space we will publish them in order as handed in. We hope people who hand in anything to THE STAR for publication will not feel offended if it does not appear. We are aware of the fact that they are few if any, productions, be they poetry or prose, but what the author really thinks is just about as good, in fact better than many things published in newspapers. In some case that may be true, but the columns of a newspaper can not be open to everything handed in for publication. People will get offended as easily when their productions are refused space as a mother will if you hint that her baby is not pretty.

Music Hath Charms.

The second of the popular course of entertainments under the auspices of Young Men's Organization of the Ninth United Presbyterian church took place at Carnegie's Music Hall Tuesday evening. The Schumann Lady Quartette of Chicago was the attraction, and they appeared before a large assemblage. The Quartette enraptured the audience completely. Their appearance was a signal for applause and their retirement the occasion for a hearty encore. Their beautiful blending of tones, their clear articulation, combined with delicate shading, seemed to leave nothing to be desired except to hear them again and again. The voices of the four ladies are unusually harmonious and they sing together with perfect expression.—Pittsburg Dispatch. At Reynolds opera house, Friday, March 2nd.

Work of Diphtheria.

George W., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Botzer, aged four years and six months, died Feb. 17th of diphtheria and was buried in Beulah cemetery on Feb. 18th, besides the remains of his brother Charles, who died Jan. 31st, 1894, of the same dread disease.

Allice Coher, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cocher, who live about three miles out from Reynoldsville, died Feb. 24th of diphtheria. Her remains were buried at the Syphrit cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Lecture Course Closed.

The lecture course for 1893-4, under the auspices of the Reynoldsville Lecture Association, is now a thing of the past, and we believe, generally speaking, the people who bought season tickets were well pleased with the course. The committee aimed to give the people the best that could be secured for the amount of money they had to secure the lecturers. Some people thought fifty cents was too much for one lecture, which was the price charged during the entire course. In the first place even four good lectures could not be engaged without a certain sum of money was guaranteed to the committee. Over two hundred persons promised to take season tickets at $1.75 per ticket for four lectures, and five if the Association could give it to them. In justice to the people who gave the guarantee the Association put the price of admission at fifty cents. The first of the course was the Lotus Glee Club, Nov. 21st. Then followed four lectures, John Temple Graves, Dec. 20th, on "Reign of the Demagogue." Major Henry C. Dane, Jan. 12th, "The Great Naval Battles of the Rebellion." Chaplain C. C. McCabe, Feb. 9th, "The Bright Side of Life in Libby Prison." Hon. R. G. Horr, Feb. 21st, "The Labor Problem." These men are all good lecturers and are on the go continually during the lecture season. A lecture course like the one just closed cultivates in the people who attend a desire for more such lectures, and has a tendency to elevate society, not degrade, as do some of the cheap shows that travel through the country.

The Lecture Association met Friday night and settled all accounts for the past season and were just thirty-eight cents behind. The receipts were $488.25 and expenditures $488.63. While there is no money in it for the members of the Lecture Association to give these lectures, their only remuneration is the satisfaction of giving the people an opportunity to hear good lectures, yet the Association appreciates the support given the course for 1893-4 by the citizens of Reynoldsville. The second year was better than the first and it is expected the third year will surpass the second.

Small-pox at Toby.

Dr. J. B. Neale, of this place, who is medical inspector for the Western slope of Pennsylvania, which embraces the counties of Jefferson, Elk, Cameron, Clarion and McKean, received a message from Benjamin Lee last Thursday ordering him to Toby, where a case of small-pox had been reported, to quarantine infected house. Dr. Neale returned to Reynoldsville Monday afternoon and gave us the following report: The man who had the small-pox was an Italian by name of Autolfoni Luigil. He sailed from Havre, France, on the American steamship line, on the morning of the 12th, and arrived at Dagus at 2:30 p. m. of the 13th. He spoke to his associates of not feeling very well, but thought it was due to the voyage. On Saturday he acknowledged being sick, and on Tuesday last was placed under quarantine. He died on the 23d at 9:30 p. m. and was buried on the 24th at 5 p. m. The number of houses infected, 1; number of houses quarantined, 2; number of cases at date of report, 0; number of persons in infected house, 11; number of persons under quarantine, 19. Three watchers are employed to guard the houses by day and three by night. The houses quarantined are off by themselves in the north-east corner of the village. The Doctor ordered every person over three months old, regardless of position or color, in Toby, Dagus and Centerville to be vaccinated.

Almost Suffocated.

[Punxsutawney Spirit.]
The family of John N. Sink, of Clayville, came very nearly being suffocated by gas last Sunday morning. It was about 5 o'clock when Mr. Sink's daughter got out of bed and fell over on the floor. Mr. Sink arose to see what was the matter, and noticing the stifling condition of the atmosphere, threw open the windows and went down stairs and turned the gas out. His mother also went down stairs and both were overcome, and fell to the floor senseless. His wife was also affected in the same way, and the whole family lay there about an hour before they came to their senses. The gas was burning, but it came on very strong during the night, depriving the air in the house of its oxygen to such an extent as to produce partial asphyxiation.

Not Paid up to Monday.

Two weeks ago we published an article headed "Is she an impostor?" and did not give any names because the girl referred to comes of a respectable family who are not responsible for her actions. A number of stories have been circulated about what was done with the money collected. Up to within several days ago the money had not been paid to a Squire, as reported, neither had it been paid over to the Sons of Temperance, nor the parties for whom it was collected, nor had it been refunded to the parties from whom it was solicited.
