LOCAL LAONICS.

"Let's often talk of noble deeds
 And rave of the mad ones,
 And sing about our happy days,
 And not about the sad ones.
 We were not made to fret or sigh,
 And when grief sleeps to wake it,
 Bright happiness is standing by—
 This life is what we make it."

It is rumored that the B., R. & P. R'y will extend their line from Clearfield to Sinnemahoning to connect with the P. & E. at that place. The route would be through some good farming country and coal lands, and also open a vast amount of land covered with fine timber. It may only be newspaper talk.

District Attorney McCracken has been looking carefully after illegal liquor sellers during his incumbency, and has wiped out the unlicensed traffic in ardent spirits absolutely. He has also broken up several gangs of thieves. He has been diligent in hunting evidence to convict the "B. B. Brotherhood," or the Bennett, Bush and Bowers Gang, and claims to know the rest of them and to have the evidence to convict them. Good for "Billy."—Punxsutawney Spirit.

Dr. W. B. Alexander, the banker, received a fine line of ladies' trimmed hats last Thursday by express from Allegheny. He has not decided yet where he will open a millinery store. All that the banker knows about the hats is that the express agent delivered them and collected 35 cents express. There was no card or marks of any kind to tell who sent the forty hats. Inquiry was made among the milliners of our town but they had not ordered any trimmed hats from Allegheny.

Prof. Shoemaker, of Armstrong county, has started a singing school in the Lutheran church in the Paradise settlement. There are a number of good singers in that neighborhood and yet they want a teacher to instruct them. There are places where people are not much on the sing and yet they are not willing to hire a man to give them lessons. That is about the way it goes; people who can sing want to know more about music, and people who cannot sing, and think they can, don't want any person to teach them.

Changed Hands.

A. D. Deemer, of Brookville, purchased the Arnold brick block in Reynoldsville last Saturday from Dr. W. B. Alexander. Mr. Deemer proposes to open a store in the building about the first of next October. This block was erected by F. K. Arnold in 1880. The Seelye, Alexander & Co. bank, Jas. B. Arnolds' store, THE STAR office and the postoffice are in this block.

Two Accidents.

Two accidents occurred at the Hopkins mill since our last issue. Last Thursday Mike Kelly came very nearly having the thumb of his left hand cut off on the slab cutter. On Monday William Fergus had two fingers on his right hand badly lacerated on the lath mill. It was thought at first the index finger would have to be amputated close to the hand, but Dr. Neale says he can save it.

He is Confirmed.

Evan Trego McGaw, the new postmaster for Reynoldsville, received his confirmation papers last Saturday. He sent his bond Monday and it is likely he will be ready to take charge of the office about the fifteenth of this month. Miss Maggie Schultze will assist Mr. McGaw in the postoffice. Miss Schultze has had considerable experience in the business and is a very accommodating young lady. She will make an excellent assistant.

In Bad Company.

A bear and two Italians invaded this town last Friday in quest of pennies and nickles, but it did not take them long to get through the town, and their exchequer was not increased greatly by the visit here. If the bear had been alone it might have gathered in more pennies, for there is hardly a boy or girl, and some older grown, who would not have given brim a penny without much ceremony had he been alone and walked up and asked for money, but when the bear was so careless about its associates the pennies were not so rapidly forthcoming.

Will Hardly Return.

G. M. McDonald and W. L. McCracken removed their law office to Reynoldsville, and will occupy a room in the Nolan Block. Mr. McDonald made many warm friends during his stay in our little town. We regard him as a young attorney who will some day stand high in the profession of law. We are sorry to see him go but the day is not far distant when he will return to this town which will become the greatest business town in Jefferson county.—Big Run Echo. That is right, stand up for your town, but we can't help smiling at your hopeless ambition.

Death of John B. Wilson.

Judge John B. Wilson, father of Mrs. Geo. F. Cant, of this place, died at his home in Punxsutawney Saturday morning, April 7th, 1894. The funeral services were held Monday afternoon and his remains were followed to the tomb by a long line of friends, among whom were about seventy members of the Masonic fraternity, as the deceased was a Mason. Mr. Wilson was elected an Associate Judge of Jefferson county in 1875. He had reached the three score and ten mark in life's pathway. He was an honorable and esteemed citizen of Punxsutawney, where he had lived for many years. Judge Mitchell, who died last February, was an Associate Judge with John B. Wilson.

A Good Plan.

Rev. Johnson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has struck a novel plan to get shade trees planted in the lot at Presbyterian church. Next Friday is Arbor Day and the Reverend announced Sunday that any member who wanted to could bring a tree Friday and plant it, and the tree would be named for the giver. This will certainly be a great inducement to get the people to start a pretty grove back of the church. When the trees get large enough to shelter people from Old Sol's noonday heat it will be a pleasure, at least to the people who planted the trees or their friends, to walk beneath the outstretched branches of the Smiths, Jones, &c. If all the members take a tree that day the trustees will have to buy another lot.

White and Black.

A white woman who appeared to be intelligent and was not bad looking went to the A. V. R'y station last Thursday afternoon about three o'clock and asked Mr. Farrell, the ticket agent, to let her into the ladies' waiting room, which is kept locked between trains. She said she wanted to catch the evening train. It was not long until a large well dressed negro joined her and they stayed there until the 8:48 train for Brookville, to which place they bought tickets. The woman had a little boy with her. They had a lunch with them which they ate at supper time, but before partaking of the lunch the woman went to a nearby hotel and got a drink of brandy and after she returned the colored man went for a sup of liquor. Some people were uncharitable enough to think the couple were eloping, notwithstanding the difference in color. Such things have happened in this broad universe. From whence they came and whither they were going they did not make known to any one in this place.

Too Cute for his Father.

Several years ago a citizen of this place found two of his sons in a room on the second story of their home indulging in a smoke out of pipes. The father invited the boys into the parlor, told them to fill their pipes with tobacco and smoke the contents, and if they spit before the pipe was emptied they would get a whipping. The pipes were started and the smoke ascended to the ceiling in circles and otherwise. The one boy swallowed the tobacco diluted saliva and ere long he began to get pale behind the ears and gave up his pipe and had pressing business on the back porch. He was not sea-sick, oh, no! but he had something akin to sea-sickness, at least he felt as if he would certainly die. The other boy, the younger of the twain, was a little too cute for his father. When his mouth was filled with spittle and his father was not watching him the boy would pull his vest open and empty the contents of his mouth between his vest and shirt and let the juice trickle down his side. By this cunningness he was able to empty the pipe without swallowing any of the tobacco juice and also escaped a whipping. That boy has burned up considerable tobacco since that time, but the boy that got sick from swallowing the tobacco juice has not indulged in a smoke since. If the father's scheme had worked all right perhaps the cute chap would not be smoking either.

Brass Bands.

The editor of the DuBois Courier and the correspondent of that paper from this place do not seem to be of the same opinion concerning the Reynoldsville Keystone band and the DuBois Excelsior band, each one claiming the band of their town to be the best music producing organization. We are of the opinion that the Reynoldsville Keystone band could win the prize at any tournament if the Excelsior was the best band put up against them, but it is hardly worth while to expostulate over the matter. The better way would be to give them a trial when the band tournament is held in DuBois in June and let it be settled by competent judges. The Excelsior is a good band but the Keystone band is a better one, we verily believe. The Reynoldsville correspondent, however, is a trifle previous when he says that if the Keystone band is not awarded first prize at the band tournament at DuBois in June, "it will not be by fair dealing."

What has become of the Prescottville band? This band, which is an excellent one, does not appear as often on our street as it did in days gone by. Come down some evening, boys.

A Woman Tramp.

It is as common for tramps to gather around coke ovens in the winter as it is for flies to annoy a bald headed man in the summer, and there has not been any dropping off in the tramp nuisance the past winter, but there was a little departure from the usual tramps at the Reynoldsville coke ovens last week. A woman tramp, who could smoke a pipe of tobacco with her brother tramps, spent several nights at the coke ovens. She would beg during the day and board at the coke ovens at night. Of course the world expects better things of the gentler sex than to be common tramps, but why not accord a lazy woman the same privilege that a lazy man enjoys, viz., beg for daily bread. We venture the assertion that if women would make it a custom to go from door to door begging as men do, they would not get as many "good hand outs" from the woman folks as the man-tramp does. That is one of the strange features of a woman's tenderness. They don't like to see a strong man go hungry, but they could turn a woman away and not worry about it.

Buried Yesterday.

Mrs. Frances Rea, mother of G. M. Rea, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Abraham Fye, Sunday evening, April 8th, at the age of 86 years. She had been confined to bed for almost a year before she died. Her remains were buried in the Baptist cemetery yesterday afternoon, Rev. J. E. Deany performed the burial ceremony. She had been a member of the Baptist church for many years. The deceased was married twice. Her first husband's name was Crawford, to whom one son was born, T. T. Crawford, who now lives at Big Soldier mine. Mr. Rea was a widower and Mrs. Crawford a widow when they were married. To them for children were born, three sons and one daughter. One son preceeded Mrs. Rea through the gateway of death. G. M. Rea was one year and a half old when his father died.

The Star Appreciated.

If there is anything an editor enjoys it is to have people pay their subscription, which is an evidence that the paper is appreciated, but when a little note is enclosed with the remittance, similar to the following, which we received from Washington, D. C., last week, the editor feels that his labor is not all in vain:

"Enclosed find check for one year's subscription for THE STAR, which is welcomed here every week. Its contents is devoured as eagerly as a fine Thanksgiving dinner by a hungry tramp. We almost feel when we read it as though we were still residing in the city of Reynoldsville."

"I Want Two Items."

Some people get an idea into their craniums that it is not much of a job to fill one page of a paper with news every week, and occasionally are conceited enough to say if they were running a paper they would publish a paper worth reading. Dear reader, if you are one of those people, have you ever tried gathering or writing even a column of news for a paper? We believe there are very few people who have any idea how much manuscript it takes to fill a local page of a newspaper. A young lady of our town who is well educated and is in a position to gather news without much trouble, was elected to edit a little paper for the Epworth League of this place, the paper to be read at the League at its semi-monthly meeting. The first edition of the paper was read before the League last Wednesday evening, but the paper has "gone begging" for a new editor. The young lady can now appreciate an editor's position. She racked her brain for items, but items were not so easily picked up. Tuesday night before the paper was to be read, the young lady dreamed almost all night about items for her paper. One time during the night she moaned and made so much noise that her father went into her room and asked her what was the matter, and she answered, "I want two more items for that paper." Not only were items hard to find but some people got miffed at what was said in the paper, which surprised the editress, for she had no intention of offending any person.

The young lady has no desire to enter journalism. The one edition gave her a sup of the nectar that newspaper men find in their cup continually.

Stole a Family.

Larceny cases are not uncommon nowadays, but stealing a family is not so common. Last Tuesday while an Italian named Guseppe Palermo of Anita was at work in the mines a fellow countryman named Guseppe Rolmondi went to his home and stole the first named Italian's wife and three children and skipped with them. Palermo went to Punxsutawney and made information against Rolmondi, charging him with kidnapping his three minor children and abducting and running away with his wife. The runaway party stopped at DuBois where an officer found them getting ready to leave on the 1:05 P. M. train west on the A. V. R'y. They were taken to Punxsutawney where they had a hearing before Squire Wilson. William Fairman Esq. took charge of the case for the plaintiff, and although Rolmondi could not understand the English language to any extent, yet Fairman made him understand that he must give up the woman and children and pay costs or go to the Brookville jail or he would be hung. The Italian objected to being hung, he did not want to give up the woman nor was he delighted with the thought of going to jail. The parties compromised this way: Rolmondi was to have the woman and two younger boys and pay all costs, while Palermo was to retain a fifteen year old son, who was working in the mines, and the little girl. Rolmondi took the woman and two children and departed for new fields.

Public Installation.

The ladies of Guiding Star lodge No. 27, A. P. L. A., of this place, held a public installation in the G. A. R. hall last Friday evening, Mrs. D. M. Dunsmore, District Deputy, was the installing officer. A program of recitations, select reading and quartette, was rendered. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, coffee, cake, cold slaw, potato salad, oranges, pie, &c., was served. The small sum of ten cents admitted people into the entertainment and entitled them to as much supper as they could conveniently store away. The ladies who were installed had drilled so thoroughly that the ceremony was gone through without a mistake. Mrs. Wm. Copping was one of the new officers and her "little dog Kizer" followed her to the hall and when the ladies were going through the ceremony "Kizer" paraded the room with them, contrary to his mistress's will. Some of the people present did not know whether it was a dog or the Guiding Star "goat." About one hundred and fifty people attended the installation.

Following is a list of officers installed: W. M., Mrs. H. Hartman; W. D. M., Mrs. J. Anderson; F. S., Mrs. M. Bartle; R. S., Mrs. J. A. Barkley; A. S., Mrs. A. Stiles; Treas., Mrs. A. M. Woodward; C., Mrs. Robert Thomas; A. C., Mrs. W. W. Ford; I. S., Mrs. Sarah Woods; O. S., Mrs. E. Bergeson; Chaplain, Mrs. Wm. Copping.

Mohney; treasurer, John Benson; Warden, Richard Miller; Conductor, John Anderson; O. G., Wm. Anderson; I. O., A. H. Hoon; R. S. N. G., J. C. Ferris; L. S. N. G., Frank Shaner; R. S. V. G., E. E. A Good Pitcher.

Alex. Whitehill, an erstwhile Reynoldsville boy who started in with the Sioux City base ball club this season on trial, pitched for that team against the Pittsburg team Saturday. The Pittsburg Post in commenting on the game, calls Alex. Whitehill the "hayed pitcher." The Post says:

"If ever a pitcher found a harder row to hoe to show what he can do in fast company than Alex. had yesterday, his name has escaped the baseball historian. There was everything to crush the life out of all ambition possessed by a young man with inclinations toward the diamond. But Whitehill overcame them all and landed his team a winner by a score of 3 to 2. During the game Pittsburgers tried all means to rattle the country boy, but without success. They might as well have howled at a lump of ice. The Soos made their last run by Alex. knocking the ball along left field fence for two bases and reaching home on a sacrifice, thus scoring the winning run. Alex was greatly assisted in defeating Pittsburg, not so much by skillful fielding or good hitting, as by encouraging words from the Soos."

Visitors' Day.

We received a communication yesterday from "A Visitor" who was present in Miss Mabelle Kenerson's room in the Prescottville school on visitors' day, which reads as follows:

"A goodly number of parents and citizens attended. The work of the pupils was examined with much interest by those who were present and needed only to be seen to be commended. The colors of which the papers of the 'A' and 'B' grade were decorated were orange and blue, while those of the 'C' grade were pink and green. Among the drawings we observed the busts of Bryant, Garfield and Whittier, also a scene in a sugar camp and many other views."
