The Republicans of Armstrong county re-nominated Hon. D. B. Heiner for Congress at their primaries last Saturday.

The Courts have decided that citizens have a right to be in the election room, but outside the guard-rail, while the board is doing the counting. This being the case hereafter there will not be any secret counting of votes after the election polls are closed.

Madeline Pollard is to get $15,000 from Congressman Breckenridge, if she can. The jurors in the case were out less than two hours and decided to award Pollard $15,000. One jurymen voted on giving her the full amount asked, $50,000, and another voted to award her one cent. Thus the twelve men differed in the amount from a penny to $50,000. The final amount was reached by an average of the amounts voted on.

In the pension district in which this part of the state is included, of which Captain George W. Skinner is agent, with headquarters at Pittsburg, there are 46,248 United States pensioners on the rolls. Of the total number, 40,748 are paid by mail, which requires a large force of clerks addressing letters and making out vouchers all the time. Those who call in person for their money number 5,500. All pensions are paid quarterly. Each quarter the amount paid out is about $2,000,000, making over $8,000,000 paid through the Pittsburg office every year.

Just now when we are told by the farmers that the peach crop has been injured by the cold snaps in April, and the country is filled with unemployed men; when many are really in need of the necessities of life; when Coxey's army marches on to Washington; when Congress don't do much but fight and draw pay; when our country is filled with the cheap laborers of other countries; when in fact some people can see forebodings of a coming war. Even upon this all there is now considerable speculation as to whether the 17-year locusts will make their appearance here this year.

Newspapers may devote column after column and ministers may preach sermon after sermon on the contemptibleness of gossiping and slandering, and yet there will be people found in every community who take great delight in such mean work. If people would pay as little attention to such little, low, degraded curs that roll gossip under their tongues as a sweet morsel, as Edgewood, L. M. Simmons' large St. Bernard dog, does to the little dogs that run beside him and bark and snap and growl as he runs the streets of this town, perhaps the gossipers, like the little dogs, would get disgusted and stop. It is not uncommon to see a little dog snap and bark at Edgewood as he walks along the street and he pays no attention to them. Occasionally he will stop and look at them and then walk on unconcerned.

The first utility of frequent and regular advertising consists in this: there is at all times a considerable class of persons, whether in country or town, that has no fixed place for the purchase of necessary articles, and are ready to be swayed and drawn towards any particular place which is brought persistently to their notice. Indifferent to all, they yield without hesitation to the first who asks. Then, in the country, a considerable number of persons who wish an article advertised and do not know any particular place where it is to be got, being thus furnished with the address of a dealer who can supply them, naturally open a communication with that address which perhaps leads to much ulterior business. People in the country are also liable to be favorably impressed by the frequent sight of a name in the newspapers. The advertising party acquires distinction in their eyes, and thus they are led, in making a choice to prefer him. But by far the most important effect of advertising is one of an indirect nature. It conveys an intimation that the party is anxious for business. One who is anxious for business is unavoidably expected to be an industrious, attentive, civil person who keeps the best of articles at the lowest rates, does everything in the neatest and most tradesmanlike manner and in a general way uses every expedient to gratify and attach customers. People like to purchase under such circumstances, and the system of advertising assuring them that such circumstances exist at this particular shop, they select it accordingly.—Press and Printer.

Tooth Ache.

What a queer thing a tooth is when it once commences to ache. It will jump and jerk around until you think the top of your head is coming off and you resolve to have the blamed thing pulled, and just as your hand reaches the knob on the door of the dentist's office you discover that there is no ache there, so you resolve to remain with the tooth for a little while, and go home. Along about eleven o'clock, after the dentist has gone to bed and you yourself want to catch a few hours rest along comes the tooth-ache. You put your hand on your jaw and knit your brows. Then you apply hot cloths and rub on all the reliefs you ever heard of, but still it makes you dance around, whistle, sing and scold at the same time. Not a wink of sleep do you get that night, nor does any person else rest who happens to live in the same house. But when the sun comes peeping over the eastern hills, the darkness of night disappears, and the dentist's office is open again, you find your ache is gone.

A DuBois Woman.

We published an article last week about a white woman and a negro who were traveling together presumably as man and wife. The Emporium Echo clipped the article from THE STAR and added the following:

"The couple are quite well known here. The woman is a former resident of DuBois. Her name was Dwyre before she was married. Thomson, the colored man, is the famous ball player who once played with the Emporium nine. They resided here the past few months as man and wife."

The Trouble Over.

A prominent man in town exclaimed the other day: "My wife has been wearing out her life from the effects of Dispepsia, Liver Complaint and Indigestion. Her case baffled the skill of our best physicians. After using three packages of Bacon's Colery King for the Nerves she is almost entirely well." About Prescriptions.

The best of medicines are none too good for sick folks. It's bad enough to be sick without running chances with second grade drugs. That's the reason we buy only the very highest quality of everything. It's a great satisfaction to us to know that every prescription we send out is just as good as drugs will make it. No matter what you paid for it you couldn't get it better.

STOKE, Registered Pharmacist.

Life is a Lottery.

Perhaps. But you can't afford to take any chances when you're sick. Don't let the druggist enrich himself at your expense. Lookout for impure drugs. They are cheaper, of course,—for the druggist—but how about you? Then again, how about accuracy and skill in compounding your prescription? That counts for something too, don't it? We pride ourselves on combining all these features.
