The wealth of the United States exclusive of Alaska, at the close of the census decade 1800, as shown by the investigations of the Eleventh Census, aggregates the enormous sum of $65, 037,091,197. In this amount is included the value of only actual tangible property at a fair commercial value, and it is distributed according to ownership, without regard to location.

In Germany they manage wife beaters with an artiess severity that seems much more sensible and practicable than the Delaware whipping post fashion. When a man is convicted of beating his wife he is allowed to continue his work, is looked after by the police, and arrested every Saturday and locked up until Monday morning, when he is again delivered over to his employer. His wages are given to his wife. If he won't work he is taken to jail, where he has to work harder than outside. The more one studies this plan the more sensible it seems.

And now the strike is on, let us hope for the best and not get discouraged if business is not as good as it has been in other days. It has been said that the severest test of manhood is never found in good times, but always in hard times. It is not the man who has success when others are doing well, but it is the man who keeps up his courage and struggles on when everybody else is wavering or going down, who is the hero in the sight of God and men. It is an easy matter to make good time when both wind and tide are in man's favor, or when one is moving with the current: but it requires character and skill and daring to make head in spite of opposing forces, or to work successfully against the current.

There are numerous conceptions of pleasure and comfort. Most people find, with or without experience that the real comforts of life are to be had at home. For there the devoted wife is the presiding deity: there the children prattle and play; there the young girl approaches and reaches womanhood; within its sacred precincts youth puts on manhood; there are the reunion of hearts, hopes and prayers; there can be found real rest; there are the peace and affection typical of the better life; there are the germinating and binding together of hearts and minds and souls in a bond as strong as a chain of steel and as levely as a wreath of beauteons flowers; there the memories which glow and exist with life itself; there the influences which strenthen and bless and guide in after years, whatever we do and wherever our footsteps roam.

The Pennsylvania State Editorial Association will ask the next Legis- please say they were advertised. lature to pass an act to provide that all laws shall be printed once in every paper in the state as soon as signed by the Governor, as done in several other states. This is certainly a matter that is deserving of careful consideration by our law makers. It will not only distribute state money among the various princing offices of the state, but it will give the people an opportunity to become acquainted with the laws enacted. The Punxsutawney News sums it up as follows: "In the state of Pennsylvania masses of people never become acquainted with all laws enacted. They read about one now and then, especially if it is an important bill, when it is introduced, but before it gets into the hands of the Governor it passes through a firey ordeal in which it is amended until the original text of the bill almost losses its identity, and the average reader of newspapers can hardly keep track of the amendments, first, second and third readings and final passage. Some, of course, may at once raise objections to the enactment of such an 'advertising bill,' on the grounds that it would be too expensive. Let us see. There is a journal published, we believe, called the 'Legislative Record,' giving the daily proceedings of the House and Senate. How many people outside of the State Legislature read this Record? How many would take the time to read it if they got the chance? The publication of the Record is a big expense to the State and does nobody any good: then, why not dispense with a useless thing and spend the money in a way that would be a benefit to everybody. By the publication in every paper in the State of the laws as passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor would post almost every man, woman and child upon all the new laws immediately after they are signed, and the cost of such advertising would be distributed throughout the state and not go into the hands of one man, namely, the State Printer. The cost of printing the Legislative Record would, in our opinion, more than pay for the general advertising as suggested by a committee from the State Editorial association." people outside of the State Legislature

He Wasn't Afraid of the Water

Evangelist Jacob Booth, of Reynoldsville, who has been conducting revival meetings in the Baptist church during two and a half weeks, closed his labors for the present, last Sunday evening, His efforts were crowned with success. eleven converts being baptized and reecived into the church last Sunday, while two more made a profession and will probably join. Besides this number, four were accepted upon letters from their former homes. Of the eleven baptized Sunday, three were immersed in the pond at Rolfe and a fourth who entered the water, changed his mind at the last moment, fearing that he was unworthy. To the numerous spectators it looked as if his courage had oozed away at contact with the ley fluid and such a report has been gener ally circulated and believed. Rev. Booth assured a Breeze representative that this is a mistake and that the young man's withdrawal at the last moment was due solely to his sense of unworthiness,-Johnsonburg Breeze,

About

Prescriptions.

The best of medicines are none too good for sick folks. It's bad enough to be sick without running chances with second grade drugs. That's the reason we buy only the very highest quality of everything. It's a great satisfaction to us to know that every prescription we send out is just as good as drugs will make it. No matter what you paid for it you couldn't get it better.

Life is a Lottery,

Perhaps,

But you can't afford to take any chances when you're sick. Don't le the druggist enrich himself at your expense. Lookout for impure drugs. They are cheaper, of course,-for the druggist-but how about you? Then again, how about accuracy and skill in compounding your prescription? That counts for something too, don't it? We pride ourselves on combining all these features.
