They make their contracts and came intimate at first sight. It seems, known them for years. It was only the ather evening that I met a lady from San Francisco whose face had been in my mind for years. As soon as we met there seemed to be semething that drew us together. We were us old friends.

The most remarkable instance I ever heard is that of the daughter of Imac Fulton. Twelve years ago no resided in Effingham county, Ills. While there he buried a daughter named Maria, who was taken away just as she was bedding into womanhood. About a year later he removed to Dakota, where he still resides. About three years after his daughter's death he was blessed with another little girl, who was christened Nellie, it being the favorite name of his wife. When the little one became old enough to talk, she persisted in calling herself Maria. She became quite angry when told her name was Nellie. She said the name belonged to her, as her parents used to call her Maria. A matter of business took Mr. Fulton back to Effingham county, and for company he took Nellie along. The father was surprised at the intuitive knowledge the girl had of the place. She not only recognized the old home, but many people she had never seen whom the first daughter had been acquainted with. About a mile from the home was a schoolhouse where Maria had gone to school. Little Nellie had never seen the place, yet she gave an accurate description of it to her father and expressed a strong desire to visit it. Accordingly her father took ber out to the schoolhouse. As soon as was inside she marched straight up to the desk her sister had occupied and said, 'This is mine,' In telling the story Mr. Falton said that it seemed as if the dead had come back from the grave, but her mother would not have It so. She says, if that is true, she had but one child, and God gave her two.' -Pitisburg Disputch.

game wore on. The banker, who sat at the head of the table, was kept busy selling stacks of chips. The betting was heavy, and there were but two men who seemed to be winning anything.

The blue chips all came their way. It was simply a case of bullheaded luck. If a man held four kings, one of this pair would bob up with four aces or a straight flush or something of the kind and spoil all calculations. It was exasperating, but it couldn't be helped.

Meantime the two lucky players conversed cheerfully about their luck and what they intended to do with the moncy. "I shall," said one, "go down to a fur store and buy my wife that cape she has been wanting so long. I know it is rather late in the season, but this is an experience of a lifetime, and I don't

The banker pushed back his chair and said, "I am ready to settle, gentlemen," It didn't take long to settle with the men who had not been lucky. Then it came to be the turn of the lucky ones. 'How much have you got, Jim?' asked

"Three hundred and forty," replied Jim.

"And you, Bill?"

"An even 400," The banker took a slip of paper and did some figuring. Then he dove down into one of his pockets and produce some thin white slips of paper. "Here's yours, Jim." he said, pushing two slips across the table, "and here's yours,

Seeing Plants Grow,

In the laboratory the growth of a plant may be rendered visible by attaching a fine platinum wire to the stem or growing part. The other end of the wire, to which is fastened a pointed piece of char coal, is pressed gontly against a drum. The drum is covered with white paper and kept revolving by clockwork.

Of course if the growth is stationar; a straight line is marked on the paper. but even the slightest increase is shown by the inclined tracing on the paper.

By a simple modification of this arrangement, the growth of a plant can be rendered audible. The drum must be covered by narrow strips of platinum foil, say one-eighth of an inch wide and one-eighth between each strip.

If the strips of platinum be made to complete the circuit of a galvanic bat-tery to which an electric bell is coupled then the bell will continue ringing while the plant grows an eighth of an inch, followed by silence while the pointer is passing over the space between for the next growth of an eighth of an inch, and so on,

CHINA'S GREAT IMPERIAL SEAL.

Annu Under French Brotection Destroyed Her Badge of Servitude. Among the many unique curiosities in M. Jules Patemotre's collection at the French legation at Washington is an imprint of the great Chinese Imperial The loss of the original die which the imprint represents was one of the greatest disappointments in the career of this elever diplomat. He wanted it for his collection, but the orientals were a little too many for him that time, and this is how it happened:

The French had been carrying on the war in Tonquin during the early part of 1884 and finally succeeded in forcing China to surrender her claim of a rainty over the empire of Anam in to vor of a French protectorate. All the this period kad not only borne the tional seal, but likewise the imperiseal of China, as a mark of variable When, on June 6, 1884, however, Pate notre obtained the signature to the treaty giving Anam over to the protection of France, the great Chinese seal was brought before the convention of Anamica statesmen and French officers and diplomats. M. Patenotre in his report to the home office described the seene as follows:

We took out seats about a large table in the parlor of the French resi-There were naval officers from Admiral Courbet's fleet and several offi cers from the French garrison at Hue The great scal was laid upon the table It was 5 inches square and made of sol id silver, weighing about 13 pounds The handle represented a camel kneel-

The Anamite prime minister made a number of impressions from the seal and while this was done servants were preparing a small charcoal furnace at one end of the room. The Anamite were preparing to destroy the scal. I leaned over to the prime minister and told him that it was not yet too late to save this interesting relic, and I begged him not to consign it to the crucible He hesitated a moment and then held a brief consultation with Nguyen-Van-Tuong, the regent. The latter shook his head and said that the last token of Auam's servitude must be destroyed Five minutes later the great seal was nothing but a mass of molten silver."

And that is why there is only an im print of the seal in the French embassador's collection instead of the heavy silver, camel handled die.-New York Sun.

Mixed Juries.

It seems to me that in most cases the perfect jury would be one made up of men and women in equal numbers. The fundamental idea of the jury is that it affords a good average opinion on the case before it, and that this average is more likely to approximate justice than the decision of any number of legal experts. In view of the admitted differences between the mental operations of men and women, would not the introduction of the latter into the jury box give a juster average of human sentiment than is secured under the present system? There is another consideration, less important in theory, but probably of great practical value. Hunger and thirst and impatience of confinement often drive the masculine jury to decisions which must cause the goddess of the bandaged eyes to shed copious tears be hind the voluminous folds which seem her impartiality. By her established indifference to creature comforts woman would raise the moral tone of juries and compel decisions on abstract principles. When a protracted session was in pros pect, she would first make up her mind and then take out her embroidery and wait for the other jurors to come around to her position.—Kate Field's Washing-

A Peculiar Fish.

"There is a species of fish in the Indian ocean which have a very remark able peculiarity," said Thomas G. Tal-bot, a Philadelphia naturalist. "This is provided with a short snout, which it uses very much as a sportsman uses a gun. Swimming close beneath the surface of the water, it watches the flies flitting about directly overhead, and having selected one to its fancy suddenly thrusts its head out of the wa er and with unerring marksmanship discharges several drops of water at its victim. Confused, and with its wings drenched and rendered temporarily use less by the watery projectiles, the insect drops to the surface of the water, where it is immediately gobbled up by its voracious enemy. These fish are said to be able to bring down a fly in this manner from the height of two or three feet.' -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
