 WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1894.

An independent local paper, published every Wednesday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co., Pa., devoted to the interests of Reynoldsville and Jefferson county. Non-political, will treat all with fairness, and will be especially friendly towards the laboring class.
 Subscription price $1.50 per year, in advance. Communications intended for publication must be accompanied by the writer's name, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Interesting news items solicited. Advertising rates made known on application at the office in Arnold's Block.
 Lengthy communications and change of advertisements should reach this office by Monday noon.
 Address all communications to C. A. Stephenson, Reynoldsville, Pa.
 Entered at the postoffice at Reynoldsville, Pa., as second class mail matter.

Twenty voters were registered last week. This makes a total of 705 voters in this borough.

The Pittsburg Times claimed yesterday that at the closest figures there were 200,000 strangers in Pittsburg Monday and they were still arriving.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania decided in a recent case that the owner of cattle is bound to restrain them, and is responsible for any damage they do if allowed to run loose.

Edward Bok says that the hard times have driven thousands of women into writing, and that the "readers" who have to read the manuscripts sent to magazines are taxed to their utmost capacity.

Selfishness is poor economy. He who constantly demands attention to his own interests, without due regard to the interests and rights of others, is certain to find himself wanting in many things, after while.

The return postal card, that is, the double one with the prepared attachment for the answer, is a failure, as the post office authorities predicted that it would be, and although only 12,000,000 of them were printed several years ago, the demand has been so small that the greater part remains on hand.

General D. H. Hastings, Republican nominee for governor of the old Keystone state, will give Reynoldsville the go by in making a campaign tour of the state, which he begins the 17th of this month. Dubois and Punxsutawney are on the route now mapped out. He will be at the above places Oct. 8th and 9th.

We agree with the man who said: "Young manhood is one of the most interesting spectacles in the world when it is clean and pure and swayed by virtuous impulses. Young manhood guzzling beer and whiskey, patronizing dens of infamy and degrading itself in various other ways is the promise of a miserable and friendless age."

In ancient times if a man had any announcements to make he used to write them in crude characters on the walls. If he didn't want many people to notice what the announcement was he wrote it very high, but if he desired to give it some publicity, he wrote where people could see it. Nowadays, if merchants or others want to give publicity to any announcement, instead of writing it on the walls they have it inscribed in printer's ink in the columns of widely circulated newspapers, where they are sure that everybody will heed and give attention. Judicious advertising in the columns of THE STAR is sure to bring a profitable return.

The bronze statue of William Penn, which weighs 60,000 lbs., will be hoisted to the top of the City Hall tower, Philadelphia, next month. The statue is 37 feet high and when elevated on the tower the hat will be 547 feet above the street. The statue is an immense piece of workmanship which cost $25,000. A number of our citizens have stood beside the bronze representation of Wm. Penn. Hoisting the statue will practically complete the City Hall which has been twenty-three years in building and has cost $18,000,000. It is a mammoth structure. We have walked on the top of the building, which gives a person a magnificent view of the Quaker City. There will be a public celebration when the statue is hoisted.

When you are feeling blue and disgusted and the burdens of life seem greater than you can bear, let your mind roam about a little and take a sort of a general view of this lazarus-house of woe. Here you will see a man who is being slowly consumed with consumption or cancer, there an anesthetized patient being cut open by the doctors, and somewhere else grief-stricken parents are seated by the bedside of a dying child. Each labored breath rends their hearts like a dagger thrust. Give your imagination a little more scope, and a million cripples troup past, followed by a vast army of hollow-eyed beggars. Here is an asylum in which a thousand helpless imbeciles are laughing and howling—there a penitentiary where hundreds of healthy men are shut out from the joys of the world. Think of the hospitals where thousands of people burn with fever or writhe in pain. Think of the groans and tears and all the bitter variegated miseries of this world, and then ask yourself "What am I kicking about? What sort of a chump am I that, with good health and enough to eat, I have not gratitude enough in my heart to enjoy God's sunlight and be glad I am alive?"—Ex.
