Weather prognosticators tell us that there will be killing frosts from Sept. 27th to 30th.

Style counts much in Michigan, according to reports. A preacher was tarred and feathered and rolled down a hill because he did not dress stylish enough to suit his people.

If times don't get better the Ridgway Democrat will not be to blame, for in fourteen different items in that paper last week the cheering words were used, "for the good times are coming."

The Oil City Derrick is authority for the statement that if all the females in the United States were married there would be 1,422,410 males left who would have to go to some other county to seek wives. There is nothing discouraging about this for the girls.

Wm. P. Breckenridge, the Kentucky Congressman who made himself notorious in the Breckenridge-Pollard case, and who had the unadulterated audacity to ask the respectable people of Kentucky to renominate him for Congress, was defeated for the nomination last Saturday, after a hard struggle.

The Pennsylvania railroad reports that the quantity of coal and coke originating on and carried over its lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie for the year thus far has been 9,702,631 tons, compared with 12,834,162 tons in the corresponding period of 1893, a decrease of 3,131,531 tons, of which 7,830,721 tons were coal, a decrease of 1,856,608 tons, and 1,871,810 tons coke, a decrease of 1,274,923 tons.

Smith, of the Punksutawney Spirit, says: Man is an unappreciative animal. He likes to find fault so well that he will scarcely take time to enjoy the blessings which he has. If the starry heavens were visible but once in a life time, people would stay up all night to gaze upon the brilliant beauty of the city of God. But as they are visible almost every night few people ever stop to admire their transcendent loveliness.

A case occurred recently in the Court of Sessions at Rochester, which shows how completely a life of sin wrecks the soul and robs it of manhood and hope. A man eighty-five years of age was arraigned under an indictment for larceny, who when asked by the judge if he had any thing to say, replied: "I am guilty. I have been in prison thirty-five years of my life. I have no home nor friends. I want to go to Auburn and stay there till I die."

The Lock Haven Democrat is authority for the statement that grasshoppers are becoming very numerous in counties adjoining Clinton county. In some localities they are destroying vegetation at an alarming rate. Buckwheat, potatoes and beans have been destroyed by the pests; oats have been cut green to save them, and cattle are suffering for lack of pasturage because the insects have destroyed almost every vestige of green grass.

Martin Luther McQuown, editor of the Clearfield Raftsmen's Journal, secured the Republican nomination as candidate for State Senator in the 34th Senatorial district, which embraces Clearfield, Center and Clinton counties. Matthew Savage, editor of the Clearfield Public Spirit, is the Democratic candidate for State Senate in the same district. As the district is inclined Democratic Bro. Savage has the best start, but only the election can tell the tale.

A meeting of garment-makers was held in Pittsburgh recently to consider what could be done to better their condition. Some of the statements made go to show that this class of workers have just reasons to consider the matter of wages. In one case reported six men work in a room 8x10 feet in size. In this room they work not less than fourteen hours and eat and sleep. The wages earned are from 90 cents to $1.25 a day. It is said that sack suits of clothing for men are made from 80 cents to $1.00, the latter being paid for the better class of suits. In some cases 8 cents are paid for making a pair of trousers. These are samples and not extravagant ones. Who will deny it that such wages as are paid in these shops, such accommodations as are furnished the poor victims, and such hours as they must work are a burning shame to our country and our civilization? The people that are always looking for cheap clothing do not stop to consider how the garments were made so cheaply, nor do they care, just so they get a suit at the lowest possible price. Cheap clothing is in great demand in every town.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a regular session of Mountain Cliff Castle, No. 359 K. G. E., September 13, 1894, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom to call from our midst our beloved Bro. Sir Knight John C. Carberry, who was highly esteemed by all who knew him for his good principles and many virtues; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Carberry this Castle has lost a faithful Knight, faithful to his parents, his friends and his God.

Resolved, That while we deplore the loss of our departed brother, that we herein submit to the will of the Supreme Chief who giveth and taketh away according to his own good pleasure, and we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That we tender to his parents and friends in this dark hour of sorrow and affliction, our sincere condolences and the full measure of our heart-felt sympathy, and commend them to the care of Him who will surely give them solace and support.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of this Castle and be published in the official organ of this order, and that a copy be presented to the parents of our deceased brother; also that our charter be draped for thirty days.

Fraternally submitted,
EDWIN HOARE, P. C.,
ROBERT SAYERS, P. C.,
WM. E. REED, P. C.,
THOS. SPEARS, P. C.,
AMOS TYSON, 2nd G. Man,
Committee.

Wake Up, Girls!

If the girls would only wake up and study the world for themselves, a great deal of the wretchedness which seems to belong to this mundane sphere might be avoided. There is entirely too much of an inclination shown by parents and their daughters to take a man on trust. A nice looking fellow appears on the scene. He wears good clothes; and seems to have money enough to go a-wooing in regulation fashion, and forthwith his pathway becomes a bed of roses. If there are any family thorns they are carefully kept from pricking his lordship. Perhaps some member more sensible than the rest insists that it would be wise to look into the daily methods of this would-be lover. The practical suggestion is hushed in a twinkling. What! attempt such a move? Why, it might quench the tiny flame, a mere flicker as yet which should be fanned into a blaze, else how is the daughter of the household to follow in mother's footsteps, and set up an establishment of her own? Girls, you don't want a man who is afraid of good, honest work, and there are lots of them who are; you don't want to have to spend the very best of your youth in living to reform a man or shield him, so that you will not become a claimant for the pity of your friends; you don't want a man who is stingy, and what girl with two grains of sense is not sharp enough to discover this trait in the lovers, neither do you want a spendthrift; you don't want a jealous husband, for he is about as dangerous to live with as a lunatic.—Ex.

A Lesson on Bicycles.

"Wall, I'll be dinged if you hain't got one on 'em, too!" remarked an old gentleman from the western part of the county, as he stepped into a Lock Haven man's office Saturday and caught sight of the proprietor's bicycle. "Say," continued the old gentleman, as he curiously eyed the 'cycle, "is that one o' them wind mashes that run themselves, or d'you have to pump 'er along yourself?"

"Have to pump 'er myself," replied the owner, whereupon the caller continued:

"Wall, ef I was gittin' one o' them things I reckon I'd want one o' the kind that you pump full o' wind an' it runs itself. I met a young feller out east of town ridin' on one, an' he showed me how it worked. His was a wind mash-ee, an' it had about run down, so he showed me all about it. It had big rubber pipes around the wheels, an' when them pipes was pumped full of wind all he had to do was to jest put his feet in the stirrups to stiddy her, an' away she went, good for 20 miles. Fifteen dollars he said his mash-ee cost, an' I tell you it was a nice one!"—Lock Haven Express.

"An Intra-Mural View," a very artistic brochure, has been received from The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, publishers of The Ladies' Home Journal. As the title indicates, the booklet gives us glimpses of the interiors of the Journal's offices, and some idea of the work carried on there. The main building, entirely occupied by the editorial and business offices, was designed by Mr. Hardenbergh, the architect of the Hotel Waldorf, New York, and was completed in January, 1893. The exterior is attractive and the interior elegantly appointed and admirably planned. The numerous illustrations, showing the commodious and well fitted offices, and the accompanying text, giving us some insight into the work in the different bureaus, requiring a force approximating four hundred employees, indicate the wonderful success which The Ladies' Home Journal has achieved in an almost incredibly short time. The first number was issued in December, 1883, so that less than eleven years have elapsed since Mr. Curtis conceived the idea which has developed into so vast an enterprise. In this short time its merit and steady improvement in all departments have received such recognition that its circulation has reached the enormous average of about 700,000, the largest magazine output in the world. The brochure also describes at some length the work of printing and binding the Journal, which is carried on in a separate building. "An Intra-Mural View" will be sent to any one who will address The Curtis Publishing Company, and inclose four cents in stamps for postage.

It has always been a mystery why a jury gives a verdict of "not guilty but pay half the costs." The following is an explanation given by a lawyer:

"This form of verdict is peculiarly a Pennsylvania institution, and it has excited a deal of wonderment among people generally, who do not understand its significance. The law requires the judges to charge juries in quarter sessions cases to make a disposition of the costs whenever the verdict is 'not guilty.' They may put the costs upon the defendant, or on the prosecutor, or they may divide them between the prosecutor and defendant in such portions as they see fit; or they may put the costs on the county. It would be hard to tell what the astute member of the legislature who originated the idea had in mind, but the probable explanation is this: Under our system of sending petty cases of assault, malicious mischief, etc., for trial in the quarter sessions, a large number of frivolous cases make their appearance at every term, and, of course, a bill of costs is attached to each one of them. Quite often the parties are both more or less blame-worthy, and one or the other is mulcted in the costs. If the verdict was put in this form, "just guilty enough to pay the costs," it would be more intelligible and express exactly the idea intended to be conveyed. A good many of these petty cases are throttled by the grand jury (at times more than half of all they investigate) but still justices send them in believing that they are required to do so."
