A NOBLE FIGHT. AN EMINENT SOUTHERN LAWYER'S LONG CONFLICT WITH DISEASE.

Twenty-five Years of Prosperity, Adver-sity and "uffering. The Great Vic-tory Won by Science Over a Stubborn Disease.

(From the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution.) Foremost among the best known lawyers and farmers of North Carolina stands Col. Isaac H. Sugg, of Greenville, Pitt Co., a man who has been on the edge of eternity and whose life had been measured by minutes.

"It has been twenty-two years since I became a resident of this town " said Col. Sugg in telling his story to a reporter : "even then the first symptoms of Gravel were asserting themselves but were slight. Gradually, however, my disease developed, and fight it as I would it seemed to gain a stronger foothold day by day until my misery was complete. For sixteen years I never knew what it was to be free from pain, not pain as an ordinary man thinks of it, but nizing, excruciating, unon-lurable pain. Tortured from head to fool, at times thrown into spasms when it would require the units] strength of four men to hold me until I was stupified with stimulants and opiates. I could not sit, lie or stand in any one position but the shortest time. Sleep was out of the question unless brought about by the strongest stimulants or opiates. Oh, how many, many times have I thought of putting an end to that life of suffering. But then my mind would revert to my wife, my children, my home, and I would restrain my hand with the hope that some other means of escape would be offered. I searched the archives of madicine for relief. Doctors were consulted, lithia waters, mineral waters, drugs oplates and stimulants of all sorts were tried without avail. Why, I sent clear to the West Indies for medicine and yet the result was the same.

West Indies for medicine and yet the result was the same. ⁴³ Kept at my work as long as I could but nature gave way at last and I succumbed to the inevitable. My entire nervous system had been shattered by the stimulants and oplates I had taken, my blood hal actually turned to water, my weight had dropped from 173 pounds to 123, and it seemed to everybody that the end was in slight. Why, I could not bear the gentle hand of my wife to bathe my limbs with tupli water. I was sim-ply living from boar to hour. I had made my will, settled my business and I waited for the last strand of life to song. ¹⁴It was at this time that a somewhat simi-far case as my own was brought to my no-tice. This man had suffered very much as I had, his life had been despatred of as mine had and yot he had been cured. Think what that little word meant to me. CURED. The report stated that the work had been accom-plished by a medicine in Front a for white gated the report thoroughly and found that it was true in detail. Then I procured some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began tuking them and began toget better. I began to sleep like a health a child, sound, calm and pound using the bad bein detter. United Friends, of Armenia. One letter dat ed Bitlis, September 26, 1894, gives the infor-mation that news has been received from the region back of Moosh that forty-eight villages are said to have been wholly blotted out. Another letter dated Bitlis, October 3, 1994, states that the day previous a letter from Moosh had been received which told of the outbreak of a virulent form of cholera, which was killing from twenty-five to thirty persons daily. It is caused, it is said, by the stench of carnage which has taken place not far back in the mountains. The number of massacred will reach between 8,000 and 10,000. The government tried to get the people here to sign a petition to the sovereign, expressing satisfaction with his role, and disclaiming sympathy with the Armenians who have "stirred matters up." The people have re-fused to sign the address. Another letter dated Constantinople, Octo-ber, 31, 1894, states that from information re-ceived from Bitlis, twenty-seven villages have been annibilated in Sassum, and 8,001 med, women and children have been massac-red by the troops and Kurds. The measure have been annihilated in Sassum, and 8,000 men, women and children have been massa-ered by the troops and Kurds. The massare occurred in the early part of September. The massacre was the result of an affray between some Kurds and Armenian villagers, from whom the Kurds had stolen their flocks. The sultan ordered infantry and cavalry to the scene to put down the Armenian rebel-tion. tion.

Shot his own Son.

T. S. Brown, a well-known resident of Stan-ley, Va., shot his son William Thanksgiving evening, as he claimed, in defnse of his wife, the stepmother of William. The young man, who had shown some dislike toward his step-mother, attacked her with stones, one of which struck her in the side. His father, falling in his effort to make him desist, fired twice for frighten him and then to save his wife fired a third shet, inflicting a dangerous wound on his son. He then surrendered him-self to an officer.

A Carlons Spot.

On White Oak Mountain, which is one of a range that extends for several miles southwest of Anniston, Ala., in one of nature's most wonderful freaks It is a tremendous hole or bowl known to the few who have been aware of it's existence as "The Lime Sink." The "sink" takes the place of the peak of the monntain and is almost perfectly round. Its diameter at the top is estimated at a quarter of a mile and its bottom which is level, comprises an area of about three acres. The walls average a height of from eight hundred to a thousand feet and are very precipitous, an ascent being possible only at certain places. The bottom is covered with large trees and heavy undergrowth, as are also the sides where they are not too rocky and steep. Vines and wild flowers grow on the bottom and sides in the greatest profusion and the spot is a very picturesque one. From all appearances the "sink" has been there for a century. It is situated about eight miles from Anniston, but being in a wild and unfrequented portion of the mountains few people knew that it was in existence. peculiar hole furnished the basis for considerable excitement a few days since. Fire broke out on the mountains near it, making a great smoke and burning away stumps which supported several large rocks. These fell and rolled with a mighty rumbling that was heard plainly in Anniston and Oxford, whereupon some practical jokers with vivid imaginations told of this mysterious basin, and started reports that it was the crater of a sleeping volcano which was shaking off its lethargy and preparing to get in action. There was a great deal of talk about it. Some started out to investigate but found it was too far and came back, while others said they were as near as they wanted to be. Many people felt very much relieved when they found that it was all a hoax.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Great Milkman,

Fourteen years ago Herr Bolle, a oor German peasant, came to Berlin with two cows and began selling pure milk. He met with success at once, and to-day his establishment is the largest in Berlin and one of the largest and best in the world. His carts are greeted familiarly by the people, "Here comes Bolle." One thousand men and sixty women are employed by him. In place of two wagons there are now 200, and 150 horses.

The milk of 1500 cows is used from 60,000 to 70,000 liters being delivered daily. In his buildings and grounds the most immaculate cleanliness prevails. In one department the milk is sterilized, in another the pure sugar is extracted, to be used for babies' food. So great is the care, that a baby who begins with either morning, noon, or evening milk, receives the same always-every one of the innumerable customers receiving individual care.

The milk is poured into compartments of the spotless carts, which are then locked, and the milk drawn off through faucets, to prevent the possibility of adulteration by any dishonest carrier.

The scrupulous care extends even to the homes of the employes, for whom nurses are provided in illness, while schools, halls, fresk-air funds and so on, are organized and sustained by the wise forethought and benevolence of Herr Bolle. The very clothes worn by employes are washed in a model laundry on the grounds.

Herr Bolle is now more than eighty years old, a very short, white-haired man. His whole success has been owing to the same honesty and clearheadedness which led him, a poor peasant, to take his two cows to the great capital of Germany and sell 'pure milk" in defiance of established custom. - The Chautauquan.

What a Frenchman Believes.

The Frenchmen's belief in their superiority to the rest of the wo.ld in every branch of human activity almost amounts to a dogma. With the average Frenchman it is an artiof faith that if France were blotted out, not merely the gavety of nat ons, but civilization itself, would suffer eclipse. Every art and every science is supposed to take its fountainhead in France.

Countless Frenchmen, for example, and M. Thiers among the number, have believed that the discovery of the law of gravitation is due not to Newton, but to Pascal, and a French author of a treatise on the history of chemical theory begins it by de laring that chemistry is a French science and was founded by Lavoisier of immortal memory. Even M. of immortal memory. Even M. Casimir-Perier, in his message to the Chambers, could not abstain from declaring that France was "the center of intellectual light." It would be a harmless trait of character if it was confined to the pursuits of peace and did not extend to an insatiable thirst for military glory.

M. Guizot, who knew his country. men well, once said that there was no folly for which they were not ready, prov ded only it was a milltary folly, and that it was almost impossible for a French statesman to pursue a policy of peace and not to be accused of unpatriotic motives. Here lies the danger of the present eltuation. -- Macmillian's Magazine,

Something Mussing.

The other night a young couple, newlo married and evidently fresh from the country, put up at one of the leading hotels, and after being assigned to a room, went up stairs. A few minutes later the young man came down stairs, and, approaching the clerk, said:

"That room is very nice, and all that but there is something missing that should be there." "What is it?" asked the clerk, surprised. "Well," answered the young man, leaning over the desk and whisper-ing. "to tell the truth, there is no comb and brush there."

It was as much as the cierk could do to keep a straight face. "You haven't travelled much?" he inqured. "No," answered the man; "this is the first hotel I've ever been in."

"Then," said the clerk, "the comb and brush are in the washroom on this floor-for public use, but we do not supply tooth-brushes."

The Shark Fighters.

"A gentleman was telling a party of as about the way visitors are enter-tained down at Nassau, Bahama," said A. H. Lewis, the well known corre-spondent, at Willard's. "They have a species of sport down there that makes bull fighting as insipid as noodle soup. It is nothing less than catch-weight-go-as-you-please-to-a-finish events between sharks. The harbor of Nassau abounds in sharks of the man esting variety, ranging in length from four to ten feet, and they are always ready for a scrap on a hint of provocation. There are always fellows loafing around the quays who are willing to give strangers the delectable pleasure of watching a shark fight. The way they do it is interesting. When their services are engaged they procure a live pig and take it out in the harbor and tie it to the top of one of the buoys. A lot of white paper or chips of wood are then thrown into the water to attract the sharks, and the boat, which is always one of the harbor tugs, steams off a little way to harbor tugs, steams off a little way to give the strangers aboard a chance to see what follows. The sharks come from all directions, and proceed to leap up for the pig. Their unsuccess-ful attempts to get use interesting porker set them wild and they go to lighting each other. Sometimes as many as 300 of the voracious fish are engaged in a battle royal and numbers are killed."-Washington Star.
