A bill has been introduced in the legislature forbidding the killing of pheasants for a period of ten years. This is being done in the hope that these birds may become more plentiful.

Several bills have been presented to the legislature to prohibit the existence of company stores, but the sub-committee of the mines and mining committee, appointed to consider the bills, has decided in favor of Hon. W. O. Smith's bill.

A resolution passed in the House a few days ago to inquire into and report the number of persons, not citizens of the United States, who are occupying our asylums and other charitable institutions supported by the State. The purpose is to have them returned to the countries to which they belong.

A new feature will soon be added to schools of all the counties of the State, through the medium of the Woman's Relief Corps, consisting of a salute to the National flag. The exercises will take up only a few minutes of the school time each day, besides helping to form the habit of love for the nation's flag.

The next leap year will be 1896, and then it will be eight years before another. The year 1900 will not be a leap year. The year is 365 days and six hours long, less eleven minutes. The eleven minutes amount to one day in 400 years, when leap year is disposed with. The year 1900 will, therefore, not be a leap year.

Photo-multigraph is the latest machine for taking pictures so that a man or woman can see themselves as others see them. The multigraph is not a common instrument yet, but doubtless will be in the future. It would be a good thing if some of the Reynoldsville ladies, who wear large hats to church and entertainments, could see themselves as they appear to others. Instantaneous picture representing the sitter from five different points of view is the work of the multigraph.

Dr. Parkhurst has coined a new word, and its aptness and clever construction are quite likely to make it famous. The eminent reformer's word is "Andromania," and of it he says: "There is an element in the feminine world that is suffering from what I shall venture to call 'Andromania.' The word is not an English one, for the reason, I suppose, that the English language makers never supposed that we should need such a term. It is constructed on the same principle as the word 'Anglomania,' which means a passionate aping of everything that is English. 'Andromania' means similarly, a passionate aping of everything that is mannish."

When in Harrisburg recently we were introduced to Hon. John R. Farr, of Lackawanna Co., author of the free text book law, who has also presented a bill in the present legislature for compulsory education. While in conversation with Mr. Farr he said "the people of this Commonwealth are inconsistent. They want a restrictive immigration bill, and yet many of the people object to compulsory education. What do they propose to do with the offsprings of the foreign element already in this country? Let them grow up in ignorance and they will be more of a curse to the country than their parents now are." Mr. Farr added that that was one object of the compulsory education bill.

Some years ago a man and woman lived in the southern part of Jefferson county who were both very industrious and by economy succeeded in gathering in a good crop of this world's goods. The woman had a longing desire to own a silk dress, but the male portion of the household said no. The woman toiled on without the silk dress or even the love and sympathy she was entitled to from the companion of her bosom. One day the Messenger of Death stopped at that house and the man was left a widower. He then realized what his wife had been to him and how mean he had acted about the silk dress. To ease his conscience the man bought a silk dress and had it made to dress her in for the tomb. Alas, too often, men and women repent over their meanness or selfishness as they look into the cold face of a wife or husband, and then try to make amends by giving the dead a respectable burial. Don't keep alabaster boxes of love and sympathy to break over coffins. Living is none so sweet as best, and flowers on the coffin cast no backward fragrance.

What do the dead care for the tender tokens, The praise, the floral offerings? But living, palpitating hearts are broken For the want of just these things.

William E. Hamaker, of this place, has had a letter and a long clipping from the World Herald, of Omaha, Neb., last week. The clipping, which was the last reprint, gave an account of the destitution and sufferings of the people in some parts of Nebraska. The letter, which we publish below, was written by a former Clarion county man.

KENESAW, NEB., Jan. 23, 1895.
B. F. HAMAKER—Please have this letter inserted in the local paper of your town and let it be an appeal to those of your people who have an abundance, and to spare, to aid us. Our crop was swept in 1893. In 1894 with the drought all small grains, potatoes and gardens were ruined. We then built on our corn crop, but on the 29th day of July a hot wind came and completely ruined it. We then cut it up for fodder and supposed it would carry our stock through the winter, but it is nearly all used up now, all will be by the middle of next month. So here stands us in the face three months that feed must be had for the stock, and not one farmer in four has the means to get it. Then comes the seed and feed in the spring that must be had. So all can see we are bad off indeed. Any assistance good people can give us will be thankfully received and never forgotten. Eastern Pennsylvania is shipping car loads of stuff for our needy, which is good, but our people here have received no aid as yet, except a few (and very few) clothing that has come from the Christian Herald's effort. Any aid sent me I shall see that the needy ones get it.
B. F. ARMITAGE.

Our Free Offer.
The long Winter evenings can be very profitably devoted to reading, but there are some things that we must read the year round. One of these is a local paper; the best in the country is before you. Another is a good home paper of general circulation, such as "Womankind," for instance, which comes once a month filled with the best things for the busy housewife. We are able, by special arrangements with the publishers, to offer, "Womankind" free for a year to every paid-in-advance subscriber to our paper, and are glad to do so, for we are convinced that no home paper in America contains more of practical value to woman. Bright stories, clever poems, the latest fashions, news of woman's work everywhere, articles on "Motherhood," "Cultivation of Flowers," a woman's parliament for the discussion of matters of interest, are a few of the bright features of "Womankind."
To the head of the house we offer on the same terms "Farm News," an able agricultural paper, edited by a practical farmer (Miller Purvis, Esq., late state lecturer of the Ohio Farmer's Alliance), and filled each month with suggestions from able correspondents, that make it an absolute necessity to every wide-awake farmer. This paper is yours for the asking, provided you are a subscriber to our paper.
Remember every paid-in-advance subscriber to THE STAR is entitled to his choice of either of these papers. Tell your neighbors about this offer.
Come in and pay a year in advance to THE STAR and get one of these attractive papers free.

His Own Grandfather.
The Clearfield Public Spirit gives the following explanation of how the editor of that paper became his own grandfather: "I married a widow who had a daughter. My father visited our house frequently, fell in love and married my step-daughter. Thus my father became my son-in-law and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. My step-daughter had also a son; he was of course my brother and at the same time my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter. My wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, was my own grandfather."

To the Holy Land.
Monday night the Pittsburg Times' six popular preachers left Pittsburg for New York and yesterday they sailed from New York on the Friesland on their tour to the Holy Land. The Times is one of the most enterprising and live daily papers published in Pennsylvania, and the delightful trip in store for the preachers at the Times' expense will be long remembered by the tourists and their hosts of friends.
