National Council of Many Societies Meets in Washington.

The formal opening of the second trennia session of the National Council for Women of the United States began at the Metropolitan the United States began at the Metropolitan Hotel, Washington, D. C., Monday. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, its president called the meeting to order. The council is a representative body composed of delegates from all the various associations of women throughout the country. Twenty associations are represented. The triennial address of President May Wright Sewall, of Indiana, concluded the morning session.

Mrs. Sewail, in the course of her remarks said the clubs organized by women in all the leading cities had thus far bees isolated, but it was hoped that a convention would be called within a year to form a national iederation of women's clubs. A reception was held at the Ebbitt house, at which the officers and $x.officio vice presidents of the council greeted the delegates and visitors attending the triennial.

ed the delegates and visitors attending the triennial.

Beligion was the topic at the evening session. It was divided into two parts, the first controlled by the National Free Baptists' Woman Missionary society, and the second by the national council itself. Mary A Davis, presided, Mrs. Francis Stewart Mosher, of Michigan, spoke on "The Ethical Adjustment of Woman's Home and Societical Duties," and Emeline Burtingare Chency, of Maine, discussed "Practical Christian Living."

Mrs. Isabelia Charles Davis, of New York, recording secretary of the council, read a report giving an abstract of the work of the standing committees of the council to secure the recognition of women in church conferences. Mrs. Mary Dickenson, of New York, then spoke on the attitude of the leading religious denominations toward woman's growing service in the churches.

The council will hold three sessions daily for the next two weeks.

early hour saturday morning, estating aloss of not less than $75,000. A number of the students were asleep when the fire was discovered and made narrow escapes; some of them were compelled to turn out in the cold wind clad only in their night clothing.

Shortly before 6 o'clock the college janitor discovered flames coming from the root of the building which was a three story brick structure. The alarm was immediately given, but in a few somules the entire building was in the power of the flames.

Many of the students, who are mostly young laties, were not out of bed, and when they discovered that the building was on fire a panie ensumed. Everybody tried to get out at the same time. A number were compelled to leave the dormitory in their scanny night clothes, and as the air was cold, suffered considerably before they could reach places of safety. The borough fire department responded to the alarm, but when the hose carriage reached the building the water plugs were found to be frozen. The building was practically in ashes before the department got to work.

The college buildings were in the center of the town and were extensive and in excellent condition. Improvements were recently completed on the buildings to the amount of condition. Improvements were recently completed on the buildings to the amount of $15,000. Last fall the institution, which was formerly known as the Beaver Female Semi-nary and Musical Institute, was made co-educational, with an attendance of about 100 students.

The institution was established in 1843. Hon. Daniel Agnew, ex-chief justice of the supreme court of Penusylvania, was one of the prime movers and took a deep interest in its welfare. Bishop Simpson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, also looked after the young institution. In 1859, Dr. R. T. Taylor was elected president, which position he held until about a year ago, when he was succeeded by President Alexander. In 1873 extensive additions and improvements were made and othe number of students so increased as to make the college of great importance to Beaver and vicinity. Last year, as stated, additional improvements were made.

The faculty and directors held a meeting and made arrangements to continue the school in another building. It is probable that steps will be taken at once to rebuild the structure. The institution was established in 1843.

A Church of Ice.

The officers of the Neptune line steamship Patapsco, which arrived in port recently from Rotterdam, via Sun-derland, witnessed an early morning scene in mid-Atlantic which First Officer Popham says was beyond description and any human power of reproduction. The beautiful sight was caused by the sun shining upon a huge iceberg about 7 o'clock on the morning of August 2, and continued for fully fifteen minutes. The iceberg was 270 feet high and 550 feet long, and was on the edge of a dense fog. It was shaped exactly like a church, having at one end a towering spire that was pierced near the top of the spire in im-maculate white.

About fifty feet from the top the sun's rays blended into a soft pink that was most beautiful to behold. Back of the spire was a slanting roof that the action of the fog and sun caused to appear in a deep blue. Near the spire was a perfectly shaped Gothic arch, in which had been melted a fissure so like a window as to almost make one believe it was built there by a mechanic. The sun shone through this in all its brilliancy and dazzled the eyes of those aboard ship. The fog formed a deep background near the water and made a marine picture that could never be painted. Besides all this, the sun, painted. Besides all this, the sun, shining on the many small projections of the berg, made the whole look as though millions of sparkling diamonds had been piled together. The officers say that many statues and fantastic figures were discernible about the mountains of ice. The seamen and officers were were dead by the beauty and grandeur, of the scene Beltimore grandeur of the scene.-Baltimore

BRAVE COLONEL LARKE.

With His Arm Badly Broken He Writes and Works Every Day.

Col. Julian K. Larke, the Crimean war veteran, met with an accident recently. In which he demonstrated that the heroic soldier is born and not evoluted by a rigid system of drill. He is one of the bright writers on an afternoon paper and has charge of the real estate department. On one of the cold-est days of last week, when the breath seemed to freeze and leicles gathered on the mustache and beard, the Colonel, chipper as a chipmunk, although he is over 60 years old and is all scarred up with wounds received in battle, called at the Real Estate Exchange, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. In descending the steps from the streets that lead to the exchange he slipped on the frozen ice and fell heavily on his left shoulder. Like a nimble athlete of thirty years he picked himself up, and, after finishing his business at the exchange, he went to his office, and wrote a column. coolly smoking a long Havana, known as the "Smuggler's Delight." His brother members of the quill noticed that while he was writing his left arm hung limp and motionless at his side. Finishing his copy and calmly knocking the ashes from his cigar he said: "Now I will look at my arm." He tried to lift up his left arm, but he discovered that it was not only broken, but considerably fractured. His shirt and coat sleeves were soaked with blood. Several wished to run for a doctor, but he simply said:

"Oh, it is nothing; I'll go out and have it set." He lighted a fresh elgar and went out and found a surgeon, who tried to lecture the brave old veteran, who has fought through wars, because he neglected his arm so long. "Go home early and stay there a week, said the surgeon, after he had splintered the broken arm. The surgeon lit-tle knew the vitality of the Colonel and his devotion to journalism. The next day he turned up in the office and wrote five columns of statistics, the data of which he had been gathering for some
