TERRIBLY FATAL WRECK

OVER A PRECIPICE.

One Hundred and Four People Killed In a Mexican Railroad Wreck.

One of the most frightful accidents in the history of the Mexican railroads, resulted in the killing of 104 persons and the serious if not fatal injury of nearly a hundred others, occurred Thursday afternoon on the Inter Oceante railroad at a point about 25 miles from the City of Mexico, from the City of Mexico. A few days ago a great number of persons let the capitol and the towns in the vicinity to go on a pligrimage to the Catholic surino at Sacre Monte. Thekets for the pligrimage were sold at reduced rates over the Inter-Oceanie line and this road carried the bulk of the pligrims. Thursday a long train, on board of which there were 1,200 passengers, was returning from the place of the pligrim-tore.

was returning from the place of the pligrim-age. All went well until a point about midway between Temamila and Tenango was reached. On this part of the road there is a steep in-citne, the line at one place on it having a sharp curve where it runs close to the edge of a high precipice. This is one of the most dangerous places on the road, and was ren-dered more so by the fact that the track here was not in the best of condition. As the train began to run down the incline the speed began to increase, and it was soon running at a frightful rate. As the pilot wheels of the engine took the dangerous curve the locomotive swayed outward and then back. As the drivers went on the curve the engine again swayed heavily and then either jumped the track or turned a rail. It dashed across the scanty space between the rails and the edge of the chasm, and then either jumped the track of turbed a rai. It dashed across the scanty space between the rails and the edge of the chasm, and then plunged downward. One after another three coaches illed with passengers dashed after it and piled up in a mass of wreekage at the foot of the presentations and piled up in a mass of wreckage at the loot of the precipice. The next two conches also jumped the track, but did not go over the edge of the precipice. As the fifth coach left the metals, it twisted and broke the coupling connecting it with the coaches behind. These coaches kept the rails and passed safely around the curve. After running a considerable dis-tance they were stopped by the hand brakes.

when the engine and the three coaches fell When the engine and the three was a fearbrakes. When the engine and the three coaches fell to the bottom of the ravine there was a fear-ful erash, and mingled with it were the shrieks of the passengers. The passengers in the two derailed coaches at the edge of the precipice got out as quickly as possible, and many of them fell on their knees, and chered thanks for their escape from a most awful death. In the meantime a number of passen-gers in the other coaches had returned to the scene of the wreck and devoted themseives to the work of rescuing those imprisoned in the work of rescuing those imprisoned in the wreck. The sight here was a most grue-some one. The carriages were shattered and analy the debris could be seen an upturned face, the eyes fixed in the glassy stare of death, the features distorted with unknown fear. Again, what had been a face could be seen crushed out of all semblance to human-ity. Here was an arm, there was a leg that had been severed from a trunk lying perbaps

50 feet away. The train hands were Americans, and some of them as soon as possible telegraphed news of the disaster to Mexico city. The intelligence quickly spread and caused the greatest con-sternation among the inhabitants, many of whom had relatives or friends on the train. A relief train was dispatched to the scene, Aided by some of the men who were in the coaches that did not go over, the railroad em-ployes and the relief corps soon cleared away the wreekage sufficiently to allow the extrica-tion of the dend and wounded. One hundred and four dead and 85 wound-ed were taken out of the wreek. The injur-brought to the Offy of Mexico and taken to the military hospital, which was thrown open to the sufferers by orders from President Dias. Many of the dead will never be identi-fied, being so horribly mangled. So far as can be learzed, the accident was due to the negligence of the engineer. It is stated that when the train entered the in-cline he made no attempt to check its speed by the use of the air brakes. Had the brakes failed to work, the momentum could have here nheeked with the hand brakes; but per-sons on the train state that they heard no whisile for the application of the band 50 feet away. The train bands were Americans, and some

been checked with the band brakes; but per-sons on the train state that they beard no whistle for the application of the hand brakes. The engineer and freman are be-lieved to be under the wreck of the engine and tender, and why the train was allowed to run practically wild on one of the most dan-gerous sections of the road will probably never be known.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS. An Outline of the Work in the Senate and House.

SIXTY-FOURTH DAY.

The Senate to day adopted amendments to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropri-ating $25,280 to pay the bounty on sugar produced in this country up to August 28, 1888, when the new tariff law went into ef-1839, when the new tariff law went into ef-fect, on which bounty has not yet been paid, and to pay 8-10 of a cent per pound on all sugars above 80 per cent, polariscope test produced up to June 30, 1895. the United States courts. BIXTY-FIFTH EAX. The senate began to-day the process of un-winding itself from the tangle into which it always gets at the end of the short session, and such progress was made that little is felt felt about the appropriation bills being pass-ed before noon of Monday. The most im-portant step taken in the direction of wording an extra session was the withdrawal of the new section inserted in the sundry civil bill by the senate finance committee authorizing bow section inserver in the studie authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue short-time bonds, or certificates of indebtedness, to meet deficiencies, and forbidding further sales of bonds, except after public advertisement.

House,-To-day was wasted in the house House.—To-day was wasted in the house so far as the purpose for which the day was set aside was concerned, namely, to consider bills reported from the committee on public buildings and grounds. It carries a total ap-propriation of $5,604,956, an increase of $2,-020,000 ever the house appropriations. Senator Quay today secured the adoption by the senate of his amendment to the sun-dry civil bill appropriating $150,000 for the movable dam at the junction of the Beaver and Ohio rivers. He also secured the adop-tion of a resolution extending until Septem-ber the time for taking evidence as to the value of the Monongahela navigation com-pany. NEWS FROM THE CAPITOL.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

Items of Interest About the City of Washington.

One of the most pleturesque figures in social life at the National Capital is Gen. Stewart Van Viiet, the oldest living offleer ef-the United States Army. To see him, rug-ged and rosy, creet in carriage and firm in step, one would say that he is the very prime of life, and yet in conversation with him he will carry one back many pages in American history. Some years ago he retired, and has since lived in luxury either in his elegant home in Washington, or at his lovely Sum-mer home on the Shrewsbury, near Long Branch. He is still fond of good company and a good dinner, and is occasionally tempt-d to join oid friends and admirrer at a din-ner like that of the old Holland Society in New York, or the Clover Club or the Astee in Philadeiphia. Few Americans more bean-tifully illustrate the glories of a green old age.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, is the most re-markable of taikers. It is a bistorical fact that during the fight against the repeal of the Sherman silver law. Sonator Allen taiked for 15 hours with never a break in his words or in the logic of his argument. His speech last week was only four hours and ten minutes, and he did not seem to be exhausted, either as to physicial strength or ideas. All during the afternoon the words poured forth in a stream of sentences, which all ended with a rising inflection, and which seemed as carnest and enthusiastic as if he were taiking to an interested audience. Reduced to statistics, he taiked ahead of the rate of 150 words every minute, 9,000 an hour, on and on, ad infinitum.

In the file room and document rooms at the Capitol, secreted under piles of useless Government publications and the accumulat-ed dust of year, lie many precious papers and books whose existence is forgotten, or at least unknown. Not long ago one of the cierks of the House of Representatives found some autograph letters of Washington in the midst of a pile of old records which his superior officer thought he "might just as well get rid of." At another time he discovered in a pigeon-hole the original of the letter Martha Washington wrote in response to a resolution Washington wrote in response to a resolution declaring it to be the sense of Congress that the Father of His Country should be buried in the crypt of the Capitol, in which she gives her objections to the plan.

When the news of the disaster spread, wive and children hurried from Waldo and Madrid. Not until evening were stretchters able to descend, owing to the poisonous vapors. In the curse of half an hour sev-eral dead were sent up Later in the evening 11 dying miners were discovered in a bunch. They were probably overcome in an effort to escape. The explo-sion is thought to have been due to the break-ing into an abandoued chamber, charged with gas. One of the rescued, John Stupper, says that be heard the explosion, and himself and five yournades started for the main slope, but could not get out, and went back into the mine to a pool of water, where they immer-sed themelves, and by agitating the water managed to get air enough to live on for the four hours of their confinement, but when the rescuing party reached them they were in the isst stages of asphyxiation. The mine was worked through a single in-sline shaft extending 2,000 feet in at an in-incline of 2) degrees, and seems to have been isfective, as respects ventilation. The mouth of the shaft is the sole means of sgrees.

CASTELLANES ARE HAPPY.

Thy Family of Anna Gould's Coming Husband Liberally entertained.

The Marquis and Marquise de Castellan and Count Henri de Castellane, parents and brother of Count Jean de Castellane, ol brother of Count Jean de Castellane, of France, who is to marry Anna Gould, will go back to France full of high ideas regarding the ilberality of New York hospi-tality. Their waking hours have been con-stantly utilized since their arrival on Sunday answering social invitations. Count Jean de Castelliane gave a bachelor dinner in the Astor dining room at the Wal-dorf. Everybody drank the health of Anna Gould, and each guest went away with a superb diamond scarfpin in his pocket as a souvenir. A special dispensation has been roceived from the Pope, sanctioning the union and the papal benediction will doubtless fol-low. Miss Gould has received numerous pifts of great value. She denies the reports that she is to become a Catholic.

STRINGENT SALOON LAW.

Local Option and Restrictive Measurs Passed.

The Nicholson temperance bill passed the Indiana House of Representatives by a vote of 75 to 20. It is a very stringent measure, although it lost some of its force by being amended. It provides for local option in this way: That a majority petition against a saloon in a certain community will prevent one being established there for two years. It provides against music in saloons, and a saloon cannot be run in connection with any other business, a direct blow at the restaurant with a bar attached. It also does away with screens, and all saloons must be operated on the first floor, a provision to knock out wine rooms. The bill will have no trouble in pass-lag the senate. although it lost some of its force by being
