 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1895.

An independent local paper, published every Wednesday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co., Pa., devoted to the interests of Reynoldsville and Jefferson county. Non-political, will treat all with fairness, and will be especially friendly towards the laboring class.
 Subscription price $1.50 per year, in advance. Communications intended for publication must be accompanied by the writer's name, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Interesting news items solicited. Advertising rates made known on application at the office in Reynoldsville, Pa.
 Lengthy communications and change of advertisements should reach this office by Monday noon.
 Address all communications to C. A. Stephenson, Reynoldsville, Pa.
 Entered at the postoffice at Reynoldsville, Pa., as second class mail matter.

Advertising began in England over two hundred and fifty years ago. It is said that the first advertiser gave notice of the loss of his horse and offered a reward for its return, and that the advertisement was successful.

A new lot of cleverly executed counterfeit money is now reported to be on the market and secret service officers, who are on the alert, are following up every clue in the effort to locate the confederates who act as the medium for placing the bogus notes in circulation. It is believed that a well organized gang is engaged in this work. The counterfeits being circulated are described as some of the best that have yet made their appearance.

Governor Hastings signed the Fow bill, abolishing the form of oath by kissing the book. It provides three ways to take an oath, laying hand on open book, uplifted hand and holding book in hand. The approval of this bill abolishes a law almost as old as this nation. Mr. Fow's bill was endorsed by the State board of health because of the great danger of spreading infectious diseases by the indiscriminate kissing of the Bible by witnesses and others in criminal courts.

The Epworth league, the young people's society of the Methodist Episcopal church, whose phenomenal growth in five years to a total of 16,000 societies, with a million and a half of members, has been one of the most striking of recent religious developments, will hold a great four-day convention in Philadelphia on May 23-26, under the auspices of the fourth general conference league, which embraces all the chapters within the Baltimore, Pittsburg, Erie, West Virginia, Washington, Central Pennsylvania and Philadelphia conferences. Every society is entitled to send two delegates.

Man is constantly beset by keen-eyed, vigilant and jealous enemies in his journey through this world, says the Altoona Tribune, that it will be a very difficult matter for him to complete his course without having felt the scorching breath of slander. No matter how honest may be his intentions or how upright his conduct, always some will be found who curl the lip at mention of his name and insinuate the worst if they do not indulge in direct charges. But he who keeps a direct course, keeping himself unspotted from the world and indulging in no sinister or hidden conduct, will retain his own self respect—priceless possession—and in the end the general verdict of his countrymen will do him justice.

Some people have no objection to doing wrong but they hate to get caught. They strut about and try to pose as guilt edged society swells, and among their own kind boast of their victories and conquests. But the minute they are found out their courage ebbs away. They avoid publicity. They suddenly think of their families and relatives and what a blow it would be to them to let the public know of their doings. For themselves they profess not to care but are very solicitous for their friends, for whom they did not exhibit the least regard prior to their detection. They or their chums besiege the newspaper offices to keep the revelations out of print, and the law offices to efface the records so that no memorandum of the offense may be kept. If the disgrace to families and relatives was duly considered previous to the wrong doing the world would be much better and many heart aches would be saved.—Ex.

The question has been wisely asked, "Why is it that, even with the nearest and dearest, praise is so begrudged, while blame is so freely bestowed?" In nine cases out of ten the former does infinitely more good and excites to far greater exertion than the latter. Nevertheless, as a rule, the fondest parent, the kindest teacher, the most faithful friend, often hesitates to praise, while seldom failing to censure when the occasion calls for it. There is ever the feeling latent that the recipient will be unduly elated by any approbation bestowed, and parents and teachers sometimes hesitate on that account to express unstinted commendation, while brothers and sisters and even friends often at heart really begrudge the satisfaction and perhaps self complacency they might evoke by giving expression to the admiration they may honestly feel. While flattery is ever obtuse and easy to obtain, honest praise is a rare commodity seldom given even when most deserved and grudgingly withheld when most needed. How often a child feels "there is no use trying" simply because his feeble efforts for the right obtain no recognition, while his faults are constantly recapitulated.

Looks Like Business.

All the saw mills on the Sandy Lick and Red Bank creeks are now running, and the work of manufacturing lumber is being pushed with vigor, the operators showing considerable confidence in the future of the lumber traffic by their push and energy. From Reynoldsville to Coopers the ponds are filled with large stocks of logs, and it has been several years since there was visible such a fine and clean lot of timber as seen by the passenger on the Low Grade railroad between the points named, and a rough estimate of what the several operators and firms have set out to do aggregates more than 40,000,000 feet. This activity is the one bright spot in the business outlook for this side of the country, as it means employment for a large force of men who have found times quite dull for more than a year past.—Brookville Republican.

Gentleman—I feel it my duty to send you a letter of thanks for discovering such a wonderful medicine as your Hood's Compound Extract Celery. Before using this remedy I was so much run down from effects of Grippe that I could not do a stroke of work, had pain in the back, no appetite, and could not sleep, but since taking six bottles of your Celery I feel like a new man. If you choose you may print this letter of testimony. JOHN COOLEY, 240 Seventh Street. Sold by Stoke, the druggist.

We could have you read for one hour, if we had the space, describing the many valuable bargains we can show you. If you don't want to buy call and look us over and convince yourselves that we never advertise something we have not got.

Now a word about our MERCHANT TAILORING DEPARTMENT. We bought our woolsens by the whole piece and can make you a Strictly All-wool Suit for the small sum of $16, $17, $18, $19 and $20 and, as everyone knows, Mr. Kernott (my cutter) you can depend on a first-class fit. We use only the best trimmings. Call and look our goods over in this department, and remember that we buy all our goods of the manufacturer and not from auction houses as some of our would-be clothiers do.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping for a continuance of same, I remain

BELL, the Reliable

Clothier, Hatter, Furnisher and Merchant Tailor.

P. S.—In our Merchant Tailoring Department we carry piece goods and not samples, affording you a better chance to see what the cloth looks like
