Self praise don't amount to much, even though it be for county superintendent.

It is announced that the Supreme Court of this State has rendered a decision to the effect that a property owner who has been notified to repair a sidewalk can be held responsible for any injury that may befall a pedestrian by reason of his neglect.

A kind word costs nothing. In business it is just as easy to be kind as to be crabbed, just as easy to be repulsive and from a business standpoint kindness, gentleness and courtesy are always profitable. It is the courteous man who stands the best chance of success. It is the cross, uncivil man whose business will never likely go with much vim until the Sheriff gets hold of it.

Knowledge of others is imperative for the prosperity and welfare of every human being. We are social beings. The social life becomes as necessary as the individual life. All human progress is possible, only because of human intercourse. To know others thoroughly, we must associate with them. There are fortunate and unfortunate associations. A careful selection must be made. Study the book of humanity, but in forming your estimate of a man, look rather to the heart than to the intellect. A man of massive brain may not prove a valuable acquaintance, but the influence of a kind, loving heart can never be lost. Heart friends are the true friends. Know them, of all others.

"Everything comes to him who waits," says an old adage, but old adages are not always to be relied on, and we are very much inclined to doubt the truth of this one. At all events, it must have been in the "long, long ago," when people were content to sit and wait for something to "turn up," or for fortune to scatter gifts into their listless hands. In the latter days of the present century when railroads, steamboats, telegraphs, telephones, electric lights, web printing presses, cheap newspapers, free postal delivery and other wonderful inventions and discoveries are prolific, the man who would keep up with the procession cannot lose much time by sitting down to wait, but must get up and hustle.

The bill passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor providing for the maintenance of parents by their children is of importance to the whole State. The new law says that in addition to the remedies now provided by law, if any male child of full age, being within the limits of this commonwealth, has neglected or hereafter without reasonable cause shall neglect to maintain his parents not able to work or of sufficient ability to maintain themselves, for any alderman, justice of the peace or magistrate, upon affirmation, made by said parent or parents, or by other person or persons to issue his warrant for the arrest of the person and bind him over with sufficient surety to appear at the next court of quarter sessions, there to answer the charge of not supporting his parent or parents. Upon conviction, the court shall direct the payment of such sums as it may deem necessary, not exceeding $50 per month, for the maintenance of such parent or parents, and the party shall stand committed to jail until such sentence is complied with, or good security is given that said sum will be paid.

Hon. W. O. Smith, editor of the Punxsutawney Spirit, who has occupied an easy chair in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg two terms, and in all probability will be a candidate for another term, and who is raising a family, gives vent to the following advice about children: "One of the greatest evils of the age and likely has been of every age since primeval man crawled out of his cave and hunted a snake for his breakfast, is that of scolding children. This habit becomes chronic with many women. They are eternally finding fault with them, never have a word of approval or encouragement. Their commands are numerous and fierce. 'Do this, or I'll whip you,' or 'Don't do that, or I'll knock you over,' are so constantly dinned into a child's ears that it becomes indifferent to them, and is very little disturbed by the oft-repeated threats of punishment. In this way mothers lose all control of their children. The little ones should be governed with a stern but affectionate discipline. Punishment should never be promised unless deserved, and should be as sure as fate when promised. The certainty of punishment is much more effective than the severity of it."

 Perhaps there may be lamps to clean among your duties. If so, perhaps you will like to learn that if a new wick, before being used is soaked in vinegar and allowed to dry, it will never smoke. And that your chimneys should never be washed, but rubbed clear with a cloth dampened with alcohol. When your burners get black and sticky, carry them to the kitchen, pour vinegar into a pot, add a tablespoonful of salt and leave the burners to boil in this. They will come out nearly as fresh as new.
