There is a call for a general strike in the Connellsville coke region.

We are told that pleasure is the track over which the train of life speeds on to happiness.

The Clearfield Public Spirit says: There should be some way or some law enacted that would give courts the power to send for Justices who return petty nonsensical cases to court and sentence them to pay the cost, and if possible send them up until their terms expire and thus give the people power to elect men of sense.

It is said there is in the State of Kansas 20 well built towns without a single inhabitant. Saratoga, in that State, has a $30,000 opera house and a number of fine business houses, and yet there is not a single soul to claim that city as his home. At Fargo a herder and his family constitute the sole population of what was once an incorporated city. —Ex.

Abraham Lincoln's sentimental perplexities are to be shown in an article of singular interest which John Gilmer Speed has written from unpublished letters of Lincoln to Joshua Speed, for the next issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. The article will show that the great President was not steady in his affairs of the heart, that he floundered in his love, and finally induced his friend Speed to marry and tell him (Lincoln) whether marriage was a failure or not.

There are many suspicions which need crushing in the bud. We fancy our friend is cool to us; we imagine some one has slighted us; we suspect our neighbor of having spoken ill of us. Most likely we are mistaken—and in any case, we could never profitably search into the matter. Our trust in our friend, or our own self-respect, should lead us to put away such thoughts, to abandon such suspicions. Some one has perhaps dropped a poisonous word of scandal into our ears; let us banish it from our thoughts with scorn. Circumstances may tend to cast suspicion on one whom we honor; let us continue to trust him in our heart of hearts. We may fear that some one has committed a fault, which however, does not concern us in the least, and in which we are not called upon to interfere; let us expel the idea as an unwelcome intruder.

Young men, the first question your employers ask themselves when business becomes slack, and when it is thought necessary to economize in the matter of salaries, is, "Who can best be spared?" It is the barnacles, the shirks, the make-shifts, somebody's proteges, somebody's nephews, and especially somebody's good-for-nothing. Young men, please remember that these are not the ones who are called for when responsible positions are to be filled. Would you like to gauge your own future for a position of prominence? Would you like to know the probability of your getting such a position? Inquire within! What are you doing to make yourself valuable in the position you now occupy? If you are doing with your might what your hands find to do, the chances are ten to one that you soon become so valuable in that position that you can not be spared from it; and then, singular to relate, will be the very time when you are sought out for promotion for a better place.

There is a great mistake in nagging at the faults or defects of a child or friend, instead of stimulating or cherishing the good quality, which thus encouraged might so luxuriantly thrive as to overgrow and stifle the fault. Better cheer the good, than forever to bark at the wrong. The most contemptible character in the family is the one who is always hitting the others' weak points. All the family toes would not so often be sorely stepped upon, if each good gift were magnanimously acknowledged, each fault gracefully overlooked. Then home might be a sure retreat from outside cares and crosses. Home life is too often turbulent with unhappiness, fault-finding, harsh retort and squabbling over trifles. There is sometimes one of the family, like a household angel, soothing the grief and bringing out the good in each. These joy-bringers are nightingale souls awaking the sweetest bird song from every dumb, despairing heart. This rubbing up faults, hitting sore spots, is sometimes done heartlessly, often ignorantly. A woman most carefully considerate of her birds, chickens and cows, in the house, perhaps, will forever be stirring up some discomfort, hunting for some shortcoming. She belongs to the ham-man and tongue and poker brigade.

Long List of Criminal Cases.
 [Brookville Republicans.]

Contrary to our statement last week Court opened with quite a long list of criminal cases to dispose of, a number of cases having been returned to Court after our inquiries were made. In the list to be disposed of are sixteen assault and battery cases, ten F. and B., three rape, three keeping bawdy-house, four false pretence, three larceny, two aggravated assault and battery, two selling liquor without license, two pointing fire-arms, one robbery, one perjury, one furnishing liquor on election day, one furnishing liquor to minors, one riot, one felonious and malicious mischief, one forcible entry and detainer, one against constable for refusing to make return of money made an execution, one against overseers of the poor for refusing to provide relief, one surety of the peace, one desertion and failure to support, and three burglary.

This is the first regular term of Court presided over by Judge Reed, and the readiness and ease with which he directs the business of the Court distinguishes him as a well trained and finished lawyer and accomplished Judge, while his quick comprehension of intricate questions and his swift and accurate judgment are a great source of satisfaction, not only to the members of the bar, but also to all citizens and tax-payers who like to see the business of the Court expeditiously conducted.

A Cave-in at Walston.

The down-pour of rain yesterday caused the little stream that flows through Walston to get on a tear. The water tore down through the streets in a swollen flood and at a spot near the store a cave-in occurred and tons of loose earth and debris were washed into the mines beneath, followed by the rushing water. Workmen were in the mines at the time and they were caught in the flood without a moment's warning, for immediately after the bottom of the stream dropped through the miners were surrounded with water up to their waists. Some had very narrow escapes from death, but fortunately none were cut off from escape and all were finally rescued. The accident is a great damage to that part of the mines as it is full of water and it will take some days to pump it dry. The hole made in the ground is large enough to set a house in.—Punxsutawney News.

Come quick and pay me. I do not like to run out on the street and dun you, as it looks bad. J. A. WELSH.

Judge Reed recently granted the petition of citizens of McCalmont township dividing that district into three election precincts. This is a matter of great concern to the voters of that township, many of whom have been heretofore compelled to travel from four to six miles to the election place, an inconvenience that kept many persons from the polls.—Brookville Republican.
