

Subscription $1.00 per year, in advance. C. A. STEPHENSON, Editor and Pub. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1895.

An independent local paper, published every Wednesday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co., Pa., devoted to the interests of Reynoldsville and Jefferson county. Non-political, will treat all with fairness, and will be especially friendly towards the laboring class.

The blessedness of youth consists in opportunity; that of old age in the golden fruit of opportunities improved.

On your life-way, plant whenever you can, instead of the thorn, the fig tree; instead of the briar, the Myrtle. Show by your faithful culture that flowers, the very flowers of heaven, can bloom along the busiest path that it may be yours to tread.

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." One may possess large wealth, high social position, and superior intellectual talents and attainments, and yet live a low, narrow, mean, base life.

It is not disgraceful to make a mistake. Those who never make mistakes never do any thing worth mentioning. The attitude of men with reference to their mistakes is sometimes disgraceful. One who cannot see his own errors, even when they are pointed out, will not make much improvement.

It has been stated that Hon. W. O. Smith, editor Punxsutawney Spirit, will not be a candidate again for the legislature. The Brookwayville Record says: "It is a pity to lose a good representative in the prime of his usefulness."

A little personal pique, a bit of wounded vanity, a sudden flame of anger often undoes the most substantial and faithful work, and nullifies the most intelligent and wise action.

We Can't Do Without the Merchants.

One might as well talk about doing without schools, or husbands might as well talk about doing without their wives as to talk about doing without the merchants.

They never have what you want" we hear one woman say: "They ask too much for their goods" another remarks, and, like the printer they are continually at fault—in some people's eyes. But, truthfully, now, isn't it the fault often with the people? Some send to the city for certain lines of goods, (as true as some merchants send out of town for their printing) and the merchants at home not finding a ready sale for that line—because so many buy in the cities—can't afford to keep "stocked up" with such goods just for the people to look at, and then when the person who "can't get what she wants at home" rushes into the home store and wants a piece of goods to match her city purchase and doesn't get it, then somebody is mad and declares to her friends that she can "never," and she emphasizes the word, "get what she wants at the home stores."

If such people would patronize home trade our merchants would then be able to keep in stock about everything a person would want. If we hadn't merchants at all we would have a nice time getting goods delivered just as we should want them. In regard to the matter of prices many people do not know how to do shopping. That in itself is a matter that often determines the economy or the extravagance of the buyer. We don't mean that "shopping" is standing around for hours trying to get a ten cent article for nine cents. This matter of shopping should be so cultivated that it will become an art.

Indeed, it should be recognized as part of a girl's education to shop wisely and well. Even the most careful mothers give this all-important matter but little thought. Music, art and the languages are added to a substantial education with perhaps a few lessons in cookery thrown in; but where is the teacher or the parent to be found who thinks it necessary to so train a girl in the art of shopping that she will be brought to consider thrifty management not a bore but a most womanly accomplishment that, once acquired, will bring with it a delightful feeling of self-reliance.

Another matter that will help one in shopping successfully is in keeping posted on the advertisements. The up-to-date advertisement is an educator and a careful reading of them every week will often save a woman time and money and tiresome walking around from store to store to find what she wants. Read the ads and they will help you.—Punxsutawney News.

Rubber Seed Oil.

A suggestion of a new source of income from the india rubber tree is contained in a pamphlet by Senhor da Cunha, recently published by the state government of Para. According to this author, it is probable that before many years elapse an important trade will be developed in the seeds of the rubber tree, which are very abundant and yield an important quantity of oil, which is said to compare favorably with linseed oil. Up to the present time this oil has been extracted only in small quantities, but with the more systematic regulation of the rubber industry which the author predicts it is expected that the rubber tree seed will be included among the valuable resources of the country. If it is indeed true that such oil can be made from the seeds of the rubber tree, and one that is similar to linseed oil, it may be that there will be produced the ideal rubber substitute. It is a well known fact that the nearest approaches to a substitute for india rubber have been made from linseed and kindred oils, and perhaps the oil of the rubber seeds will be exactly what the trade has so long been looking for.—Rubber World.

Food Makes the Man.

Food is force. As a rule, few people know how to eat. They fail to realize that the quality of all mental action is determined by the quality of food. Lack of energy and buoyancy of spirit is often as fatal to good work as is illness itself, and there is no question but that hygienic cooking produces directly the one or the other. There is such a thing as "a cooking menu"—the scientific solving of the problem. The universal temperance reform will begin when good cooking becomes the rule rather than the exception in every household. The extra elaboration of pastry should give way to excellence in the preparation of simple foods, of steak perfectly broiled, good bread, a realization of the value of fruit, and a tea and coffee made in a way that retains their flavor and stimulus. With hygienic food, reasonable early hours of sleep and an intimate acquaintance with fresh air, a clearness and vigor of mind can be constantly held that will act on affairs with successful energy.—Journal of Household Economics.

Curious Customs In Japan.

Japanese folks have six or eight pockets cunningly inserted in the cuffs of their wide sleeves. These pockets are always filled with a curious miscellany peculiar to the droll little people. As common as twine in Young America's pocket is the prayer amulet written on delicate sheets of rice paper and composed by the bonzes. In accordance with the abiding and funny faith of the Japanese women these prayers are swallowed, paper and all, like a pill, in all cases of mental and physical distress. Another essential never missing is a number of small squares of silky paper, which are put to the most unexpected purpose—to hold the stem of a lotus or lily, to dry a teacup, wipe away a tear or blow the absurd little nose of the doll-like little woman. The very smartest people of Japan use this style of handkerchief for practical purposes. After using, a ball is made of the paper, and it is thrown in the street with disgust.—Farm and Fireside.

Do Men Get on Their Knees?

Did you ever know a man to get on his knees in proposing marriage? Can you imagine a man—a man, we mean—making such an abject fool of himself? If he is worthy of the girl, he brings as much to the proposed union as she—perhaps more. Why, then, should he humiliate himself? His proposition cannot be other than flattering to her. It is a serious matter and should be treated seriously. She will respect dignity, respect self respect. On the other hand, if a man is unworthy of the union he seeks, no amount of pleading and cringing can possibly glorify him in the girl's eyes. It cannot kindle admiration for him, cannot bring him up to her level. Isn't it about time to eliminate from our books and from our conversation this idea of the lover getting on his knees?—Munsey's.

The Gulf Stream.

According to Captain Maury, the gulf stream runs up hill. He shows that after emerging from the gulf of Mexico this famous current of warm water broadens out toward the north and becomes correspondingly more and more shallow. Thus, its depth off the island of Benini is about 200 fathoms, while off Cape Hatteras it has shallowed to about 100 fathoms. He calculates the ascent at ten inches to the mile.

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn., says, "Shilo's Vitalizer saved my life. I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used." For dyspepsia, liver, or kidney trouble it excels. Price 75cts. Sold by J. C. King & Co.
