C. A. STEPHENSON, Editor and Pub.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1895.

An independent local paper, published every Wednesday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co., Pa., devoted to the interests of Reynoldsville and Jefferson county. Non-political, will treat all with fairness, and will be especially friendly towards the laboring class.

Subscription price $1.00 per year, in advance. Communications intended for publication must be accompanied by the writer's name, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Interesting news items solicited. Advertising rates made known on application at the office in Arnold's Block.

Lengthy communications and change of advertisements should reach this office by Monday noon.

Address all communications to C. A. Stephenson, Reynoldsville, Pa.
Entered at the postoffice at Reynoldsville, Pa., as second class mail matter.

If you want your children to stay at home make home at least as pleasant as the street. Provide them with amusements and good books. Be kind. Be reasonable. Don't snap or snarl. Children will go a good ways for a smile and a kind word, and if they have to seek for them amongst the little arabs in the alley, there they will go. They know good society when they see it, and they like sunbeams in rags better than scowls in silks and laces.—Ex.

Railroad managers have been trying to get rid of men who are in the habit of getting drunk, and they may now make war on the use of tobacco. An exchange says: The employees of the Boston & Maine railroad received the following notice, signed by the superintendent and approved by the general manager: "Your attention is called to the fact that you are not allowed to use tobacco in any form whatever while on duty, nor on trains or in stations when off duty with uniform or badge on. This rule is imperative, and must be regarded at all times."

A boy who was recently sent to a boarding school has just sent the following letter to his loving mother: I got here all right and I forgot to write before. It is a very nice place to have fun. A feller and I went out in a boat and the boat tipped over and a man got me out and I was so full of water that I didn't know nothing for a good long while. The other boy has to be buried after they find him. His mother came from Lincoln and she cries all the time. A hoss kicked me over and I have got to have some money to pay the doctor for fixing my head. We are going to set an old barn on fire to-night and I should smile if we don't have bully fun. I lost my watch and am very sorry. I shall bring home some mud turtles and I shall bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get 'em in my trunk.—Ex.

There are good and bad men of all nationalities, says the Punsxutawney Spirit, but we have learned from experience to have the sincerest respect for the Swedes. They are honest. Honesty is a national characteristic with them. On our mental blackboard we have written down this sentiment: "If a Swede owes you a dollar, you will get it." And we do not remember a single instance that has tended to shake our faith in this conclusion. The Swedes are industrious and enterprising. You never see them scheming to get anything for nothing. But wherever they are there is thrift. The sound of the hammer and the whir of wheels is heard. Thriving cities and fertile fields follow them. The Swedes illustrate the truth of this: He will get there soonest who goes straightest.

"Witnesses," says the Philadelphia Record, "should not be hectorated and insulted by ill bred and underbred lawyers. The judge should be on the alert to protect them and to make their respective courts the scene of order and decorum." That is certainly true. There ought to be good manners at court. There is nothing in the law or the constitution that permits a black-guard attorney to badger and bully a witness, and no good can come out of it. But still it is a very common practice all over the country. If a shrewd lawyer can unmask a lying witness by keen wit, and lay a snare for his feet that will trip him up, that is all right. But he should do it with the polish and politeness of a prince.—Kittanning Republican. Jefferson county has one or two lawyers that need calling down occasionally.

The marriage license act as amended by the legislature of 1893, went into effect Tuesday, Oct. 1st, in every county in the State. Its operation has been retarded two years by a clerk in the transcribing room of the House of Representatives writing the figure "five" for a "three" in the original bill. The marriage license act as passed in 1885 was amended in 1889 so as to require the marriage ceremony in the same county in which the license was granted. The amended act which has gone into effect, provides that a marriage license may be secured in one county and the parties be married in any other county in the Commonwealth, providing the party solemnizing the ceremony transmit a duplicate record to the other county. The amendment will be of the greatest benefit to those about to marry who can more readily reach the county seat of an adjoining county than their own. The forms to be undergone in all counties by applicants for license are the same as required by the original act.

A Tireless Letter Writer.

How many of our readers stop but a single moment to think what a constant and tireless letter writer the man is who gets up every week the local page of the county newspapers. Week after week, month after month, and year after year, he goes on with his work, giving the news of the town and neighborhood, sad or joyous; chronicling births; telling of marriages; recording deaths; noticing the coming and going of people; giving the details of enterprises of various sorts; in a word, making a record of the successes and failures, joys and sorrows, hopes and fears, pleasures and disappointments of a whole community. If any individual were to undertake to write a letter to a friend each week, giving only half the news afforded by the local paper, he would give it up after the first effort. But the local editor keeps on at his work, and in some mysterious way finds in it a satisfaction and often a real pleasure, if not much money remuneration. Of course he tires occasionally, but after a day's rest he takes up the work again, and when people won't come and tell him the news he goes out and hunts it up. Few persons realize what the country editor does in the way of presenting the doings of his neighborhood in readable form.—Brookville Democrat.

Tenth Annual Reunion.

The 10th annual reunion of the 105th Regt. P. V. V. will be held at Reynoldsville Oct. 17, 1895. All old soldiers are cordially invited to attend and on arrival in Reynoldsville will report at the office of E. Neff, on Main street, register their names and No. of the regiment in which they served, and receive tickets for dinner.

JOHN M. HAYS,
Sec. 105th Regt. Ass'n.

Never allow cows to drink water that you would not drink yourself. Milk from common cows when grass fed contains nearly 87 per cent water. The cow has no filter in her to purify water and if the water is impure the impurity goes straight into milk. If a cow drinks 100 pounds of impure water, 87 per cent impurities of that water will be found in the milk.

Look over your city lists, make out what you want, let us give you prices on same goods. Everything being equal, patronize home. We guarantee prices. ROBINSON & MUNDORFF.
