A large number of Turkies and Chickens on hand for Christmas. Leave your orders early. The Real Malay.

The real Malay is a short, thickset, well built man, with straight black hair, a dark brown complexion, thick nose and lips, and bright, intelligent eyes. His disposition is generally kindly, his manners polite and easy. Never cringing, he is reserved with strangers and suspicious, though he does not show it. He is courageous and trustworthy in the discharge of an undertaking, but he is extravagant, fond of borrowing money, and very slow in repaying it. He is a good talker, speaks in parables, quotes proverbs and wise saws, has a strong sense of humor, and is very fond of a good joke. He takes an interest in the affairs of his neighbors, and is consequently a goosip.

He never drinks intoxicants; he is rarely an opium smoker. But he is fond of gambling, cock fighting and kindred sports. He is by nature a sportsman, catches and tames elephants, is a skillful fisherman, and thoroughly at home in a boat. Above all things, he is conservative to a degree, is proud and fond of his country and his people, venerates his ancient customs and traditions, fears his rajahs, and has a proper respect for constituted authority—while he looks askance on all innovations, and will resist their sudden introduction.—Swettenham's "Malay Sketches."

Chinese Horrors.

The poor wretches supposed to have been implicated in the Hwasong outrages were handcuffed, looking filthy, wild. ghastly, half starved, but a few days of Yamen prison life makes them more like beasts than men. Their handcuffs are taken off while in the court—an exquisite irony of hinted mercy—for they have to kneel all the time while before the court, and as they all begin by lying, swearing they were nowhere near the scene, and so on, the instruments of torture are quickly brought in A thin linked chain is coiled on the floor. On this the prisoner, bare kneed, must kneel. Then his head is dragged back and up, and his pigitall is tied high up to a rack; a pole is then thrust across his legs or the back of his knees and two soldiers stand on either end, crushing the poor wretch's knees into the chain coils, causing intense agony. This the English consul, Mr. Mansfield, could not stand and insisted the thing should be stopped.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The opinions of the misanthropical rest upon this very positive basis—they adopt the bad faith of a few as evidence of the worthlessness of all.—Bovee.

It is said that in many parts of Ireland there is one public house for 25 inhabitants.
