C. A. STEPHENSON, Editor and Pub.
 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1896.

An independent local paper, published every Wednesday at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co., Pa., devoted to the interests of Reynoldsville and the surrounding county. Non-political, will treat all its patrons, and will be especially friendly towards the laboring class.
 Subscription price $1.00 per year, in advance. Communications intended for publication must be accompanied by the writer's name, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Interesting news items solicited. Advertising rates made known on application at the office in Arnold's Block.
 Lengthy communications and change of advertisements should reach this office by Monday noon.
 Address all communications to C. A. Stephenson, Reynoldsville, Pa.
 Entered at the postoffice at Reynoldsville, Pa., as second class mail matter.

About ninety-nine out of one hundred men who urge a paper to expose this or that wrong on the part of public officers or citizens are just courageous enough in the presence of the accused to condemn the paper for doing what it did.

The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Editorial Association, which should have been held in Harrisburg on the third Tuesday of this month, has been postponed until Wednesday, February 20th. The proposed Libel Law and other important matters will be brought before the Association for discussion.

The Clearfield people now feel like kicking themselves because they did not get the large woolen mill, now humming in Reynoldsville, to locate over there when they had an opportunity to do so several years ago. The Clearfield Spirit in its issue last week mentioned the amount of work the woolen mill has on hand for this year and then added: "What a pity our business men didn't believe in this industry at the right time." No use crying over "spilt milk." The people of Reynoldsville are glad you didn't believe in it "at the right time."

Don't lie to candidates. When a man asks you for your support tell him the straight facts about it. Then, whether elected or defeated, he will give you credit with being a candid man, and is bound to respect you, even if he does not love you. Many a candidate is led to spend a good deal of time and money and energy that he might be spared if people were frank and candid. When a man's hopes are buoyed up by false promises he naturally falls hard when defeated and comes to the conclusion that all men are liars. Every man has the right to vote as he pleases, and no sensible man can find fault with him for it.—Punxsutawney Spirit. We certainly agree with Bro. Smith. There are too many men who, if they don't deliberately lie, leave candidates under the impression that they are their friends and encourage them to think they will work and support them, when they have no intentions of working for them, and at the same time are working for some opponent.

James G. Mitchell, of Hamilton, Jefferson county, present Senator from the 37th Senatorial District, and candidate for re-election, was in Reynoldsville several days ago. Senator Mitchell was a credit to his constituents in the last Senate and should be re-nominated. In its issue of December 1st, 1895, the "Farmers Friend" contained the following concerning Senator Mitchell's work in the Senate: "The Thirty-seventh Senatorial district, composed of the counties of Indiana and Jefferson, has been very ably represented by the Hon. J. G. Mitchell, of Jefferson county. "Captain Jim," as he is familiarly called by his circle of Grand Army friends, was one of the most energetic, active and capable Senators during his term of office. He was always found at his post of duty and was affable, obliging and considerate to all persons having anything to do with him. Representing an agricultural district, it was but natural that he should espouse the cause of the farmers. During his whole term of office as Senator he was active and vigilant in enacting legislation in the interest of agriculture. During the last session of the Legislature he voted for and supported the Tax Conference Revenue bill, which was in the interest of farmers. It was largely through his energetic efforts that the bill to pension judges was defeated in the Senate. He made a personal canvass among the Senators against this bill and secured the assistance of a sufficient number to accomplish his purpose. He was an important factor in securing an increase of the appropriation for the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of enforcing the anti-oleo and pure food laws. Without this appropriation it would have been almost impossible to enforce the laws relating to pure food and dairy products. He stood like a stone wall against the proposition, advocated by so many, to reduce five million dollars appropriation for the benefit of the common school system. This appropriation, more than any other, reaches the masses of the people and is helpful to the rising generations. Too much credit can not be given him and the other persons who so nobly defended this appropriation and succeeded in defeating its enemies. The friends of agriculture could always count on the loyal support of Senator Mitchell for every position in the shape of legislation presented in their interest."

Geography Recreation.

A few days ago one of Reynoldsville's good housewives was out shopping. Imagine the following to concern her, and those whom she met.
 She first went to (bay of Mass.) meat market; bought some steak, and examined the sausage; but refused to buy any of it because of the (islands of the Pacific). She and the clerk had an argument about the (islands).
 They finally called the butcher and asked him what (group of islands) was in the sausage. He replied (river of Mo.) The butcher, not caring to have her leave his shop angry, requested her to remain a few minutes and see a (cape of Newfoundland) between a (river of Minn.) and a (river of Australia). After that event she walked out and met (river of Australia), the Dr. Of course, she told him what she had witnessed. Doctor had been out driving and felt a little (country of S. A.); but said he, "I saw something this morning that beats that; while driving past a farm house I saw a boy trying to make a dead (country of Asia)." Just then a small boy eating a (islands of the Pacific) attempted to (desert of Chinese Empire).
 The lady laughed so heartily that she dropped a nickel through a crack in the walk. Doctor asked the boy to get it for her. The boy being in a hurry to go out to (mts. of Cal.) replied: "It (Peninsular of Asia) there for anything I care." The lady, remembering her promise to her children, bought an (river of Africa) for one, and a (ridge of Pa.) for the other, and hurried home where she found her (river of Australia) boys trying to (Sea of Europe) their faces, as they wished to look like a (river of S. A.) whom they had seen during the (burg of Blair Co.).

A Fallacy Exploded.

The Pittsburg Times man who recently wrote upon the rarity of New Year's birthdays can find another exception in the person of James McCurdy, of Beechwoods. Mr. McCurdy was in town last week, and incidentally remarked that he was 80 years old on January 1, 1896. The Times man also said it was a tradition that persons born on New Year's day were always saucy, but this again is an exception in Mr. McCurdy's case. A more amiable, even tempered and upright man never lived.—Brockwayville Record.
