While the country roads are so badly drifted the traveling public would be put to great inconvenience if farmers did not allow them to lay down fences and drive through fields. It is a rare thing to find a farmer who is mean enough to forbid traveling through his fields under such circumstances.

An exchange truthfully says: The poorer a man the greater his desire to keep a dog. In truth, no man ever becomes too poor to keep a dog. His children may be shoeless and shirtless; his wife may be lying on a bed of pain; there may be no mixed growler; but there will always be a bone or a crust for the dog.

The newspaper is your friend in spite of your criticisms. It helps to build up the community that supports you. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Order them to Git.
Many persons think it an act of charity to feed the worthless tramps who make a living by begging. One of these wandering Willies called on an Altoona man for something to eat and when he was refused, drew a knife and struck at the man almost severing his thumb and cutting a deep gash in the palm of his hand. The proper way to greet most tramps is with a shot gun, and order them to git.—Clearfield Republican.

It will give veterans of Jefferson county a chance to tell their story of the war, space being devoted to personal reminiscences, historical sketches, &c.

Don't Trade with Peddlers.
Don't trade with peddlers nor transient firms who come here to locate for a week then skip. Some of them mean to beat you; any of them are liable to. Trade with your local merchant; he knows you and strives to please you in order to make your trade continuous. He helps pay your taxes and builds up the town. Not so with the roustabout fakir; he beats you to to-day and goes to the next town to-morrow where he tells of your gullibility. Don't you patronize him.—Ex.

Royal Entertainers.
Misses Geist and Clover entertained a number of their friends at the home of Miles King, Friday evening. A very pleasant evening was spent in conversation and the playing of games. The guessing contest resulted in giving Miss Clark the first prize, she having successfully guessed the names of twenty tunes hummed by one of the young ladies. Glenn Milliron secured the second prize. The refreshments served were of a fine order. The entire program for the evening showed the young ladies to be royal entertainers.

All of One Opinion.
Some well dressed ladies of Reynoldsville were discussing the latest fashions the other day and of course they talked about fine dress goods, of which they are good judges. They all agreed that Bing & Co. have the finest and largest line of dress goods to select from to be found in Reynoldsville. And as to quality of goods, the ladies agreed again that this firm leads all others. They all said they intended buying their goods from Bing & Co. because their prices are low and they are a reliable firm; "You can depend on what they say." One lady said: "We will make no mistake in buying from Bing & Co." Another one said: "You are right, that's the place to get your dress goods."—It.

Died Sunday.
Nelson Augustus Anderson, son of Mrs. Joanna Anderson of West Reynoldsville, died at 1:10 A. M., Sunday March 15, aged 16 years, 10 months and 13 days. The day before last Thanksgiving August took sick and had a long siege of it, several times he was so near the gates of death that little hope was entertained for his recovery, but he got better and was able to get out of the house a few times. Two weeks ago dropsy and heart trouble laid hold of the young man which ended his life at the time above stated. A few years ago, while acting as messenger boy for the Western Union Telegraph Company, August, boy-like, attempted to get on a moving freight train and kind hands picked him up from under the cruel wheels with his left ankle so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. The boy sold papers on the streets afterwards and became well known in Reynoldsville. The last words the boy uttered were: "Mamma, oh mamma dear." Funeral services were held in the M. E. church at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. W. Crawford. Remains were buried in Beulah cemetery.

Skipped to York State.
Love laughs at difficulties and will not be thwarted by the obstacles which arise from the marriage license laws of Pennsylvania so long as swift express trains run into a state where the nuptial knot can be tied without asking permission from the law. William Buchanan and Miss Nancy Rockey, of Allens Mills, had a little experience last week which was unexpected. The young people had fully decided that their love for each other was so strong that life would not be worth the living if they could not travel life's pathway hand in hand, so one of them popped the question—which one we cannot tell as this is leap year—and the wedding day was set for Wednesday of last week. All things were in readiness, even the brass band tuned up their horns to help make merry on the evening of the wedding day, and the prospective bride and groom went to John S. Barr's office in Brookville to ask the law to grant a permit for their marriage, and to the utter astonishment of the young couple the law said, "not now." "The young lady is not of age, her parents are dead, a guardian has never been appointed and you will have to wait until May term of court, have a guardian appointed and you can then get the license." Hard hearted law. However, nothing daunted, though the obstacles in the way were rocky, the Mr. and Miss resolved that they would not wait until May, and on Thursday morning they boarded a B. & P. fast express and skipped to Salamanca, N. Y., and were happily married.

Trade Maxims.
Thou shalt sell goods but six days of the week, and on the seventh thou shalt take a rest.
Thou shalt not covet thy competitor's business, for he may be nearer bankruptcy than thyself.
Thou shalt not put more sail into thy business than thou hast wind to fill.
Thou shalt not blame thy clerk for thine own mistakes, nor tax him for thine own neglect.
Thou shalt not sell goods for less than cost, unless the market has gone back on you.
Thou shalt weigh with a just balance, or a way will be found for thy punishment.
Thou shalt not trust a man to whom thou wouldst not lend $10.
Thou shalt not use thy business capital to speculate with, nor borrow from thy friends for that purpose.

Paddy O'Neil, the engineer that runs the compressors at No. 2, was seriously injured last Sunday morning by being struck with a lever while starting the compressors. He had just finished oiling up and turned on the steam when the engine centered. He took the lever which works a ratchet that connects with the fly wheel which is used for prying the engine off the center. He turned the wheel about four notches when the ratchet slipped, the wheel flew back catching the lever, throwing it up with great force, striking Mr. O'Neil in the side, face and arm, his face being badly out and bruised. He was taken immediately after the accident to the office of Dr. C. W. Hughes, where the wounds were dressed, he having thirteen stitches put in the side of his face and head. At this writing he is getting along as well as could be expected.—Eleanora correspondent Big Run News.

COLONEL H. BOYLES DEAD.

Father of Mrs. J. Van Reed—Was in his Nineteenth Year.

Col. Henry Boyles, aged eighty-nine years last month, father of Mrs. J. Van Reed of Reynoldsville, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hannah McKinney, at Sligo, Pa., early last Thursday morning after a ten-day struggle with pneumonia, which proved too much for a man of his age. Special meetings were being held in the Presbyterian church at Sligo which Mr. Boyles had been attending and by so doing he contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia and soon ended the earthly career of what had been a useful life. The deceased, who was born near Bellefonte in 1807 and had been a school mate of "Ex-Gov. Curtin, deceased, moved with his parents to Clarion county in 1822, in which county he ever afterwards resided as an honest, well-to-do farmer. He was very intelligent and, therefore, was useful in the community in which he lived. When in the prime of life he could handle a plow or make a good political speech. Ten years he served as Colonel of Pennsylvania Militia, being appointed by two different Governors, and when the war broke out between the north and south would have gone with his company to defend his country, but was rejected because he was too old. He was a Democrat up until 1856 and from that time has always been a staunch Republican, but never hankered after office. He was pressed hard once by his party to be a candidate for sheriff of Clarion county, which he emphatically declined. Mr. Boyles had been a member of the Presbyterian church three-score and five years. Eight years ago, in her eighty-ninth year, Mrs. Boyles, wife of the deceased, died. The remains of Col. Boyles were buried beside his wife in the Rimersburg cemetery Saturday. Three children, Dr. R. M. Boyles of DuBois, Mrs. J. Van Reed of this place, and Mrs. McKinney of Sligo, survive the old man.

Hoosier Philosophy.
It's a fool hoss that don't know who's boss.
A colt 'll frolic in the morning; an old hoss at night.
"Tain't allus the purtiest gal that kin make the best flapjacks.
A feller that's honest with himself 'll be honest with his nabors.
You want to watch the feller that's allus keen for a hoss trade.
A balky hoss an' a kickin' cow makes lots o' trouble on the place.
The crow is er mighty peart bird, but, fer all his fine looks, he sucks eggs jess the same.
Some folks kin 'tend to other people's business a blamed sight better'n they kin to their own.
"Taint the hardest ticks that allus drives a wedge in furdest; sometimes gentle taps'll make it stick a heap the best.

Good English.
Now and then we hear some supercilious person, who would like to acquire very cheaply the credit of being elegant in the use of English and profound in linguistic lore, criticizing the use of such words as "hap," for comfort, "gears" for harness, "poke" for bag, "spider" for skillet, etc. They are provincialisms, but are good English. They are given in Webster's Dictionary, and are occasionally employed by the best writers. But there is a word in common use in Pennsylvania for which there is no justification. It is not authorized by Webster or anybody else. That is the word "mind" used in the sense remember. "Do you mind the time?" The word "mind" has many meanings, but it cannot be properly used as a synonym for "remember."—Punxsutawney Spirit.

Farmers' Institutes.
James McCracken, Jefferson county's member of the State Board of Agriculture, has again taken charge of the institute work in this county and will endeavor, as heretofore, to make a success of it. He has been in this line of work for the past fifteen years, and of course knows how to do it. At least he is credited with this knowledge by the leading agriculturists of the county. Farmers' institutes have been arranged to be held at Mt. Pleasant, March 26, 27 and 28. At Westville April 1st and 2d.—Punxsutawney Spirit.
