Rubber Scraps

Cast-off rubber shoes are now & marketable commodity and many country peddlers add considerably to their gains by collecting them. They are usually taken in exchange for tinware or cheap trinkets. No cash changes hands in these transactions. When the peddler returns to his starting point he turns over his collections to the village merchant for more tinware, with perhaps a little cash, and goes out over a new route. The peddler may be in business on his own account or in the employment of the village trader, but in either case the latter has a chance to make a profit on the col-lections of scrap, which are shipped from time to time to a city dealer. The latter will offer his rubber stock whenever it reaches good proportions to a rubber reclaiming mill. When old shoes first became a merchantable ar ticle the price paid for them was 1 cent a pound, while the quotations have since averaged 5 cents per pound for months at a time. The trade 'n rubber scrap is now most thoroughly organized in the West and Northwest, In the Southern States, where little snow falls, the consumption of rub ber shoes is not sufficient to form a basis of trade in old shoes. Of the rubber scrap imported the large Mare comes from Russia. The in. orted scrap is not so desirable, however, as what is gathered at home. In spite of the good consumption of rubber footwear in New England there are uc dealers in scrap there in a position of commanding importance. This is due in part to the existence of nearby factories, which buy directly from the smaller dealers. In the West the principal center of the trade is Chicago.

An amusing litle story was told a good many years ago in connection with Gov. Mattox, of Vermont. At one time he was chairman of the committee appointed to examine candidates for admission to the bar of Caledonia County

He reported that one of the candidates was, in his opinion, unqualified, having answered correctly but one of the questions put to him.

"Only one? Well, what was that?"
asked the presiding Judge. "I asked him what a freehold estate is," replied Mattox. "Important question," said the Judge.

"And what was his reply?"
"He made it without the least hesitation," said the Chairman, with a twinkle in his eye. "Of course that fact is in his favor."

"Well, what did he say?" asked the Judge, with some impatience. "He said," returned the Chairman,

"that he didn't know."

The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of
