Sir E. Maunde Thompson gives some figures to show the extent of the library of printed books at the British museum and the rate of increase at which it has grown. More than half a century after the foundation of the museum the library had not increased even threefold. In the year 1821 there were less than 116,000 volumes. But 20 years had not elapsed when these had more than doubled in number. In 1838 there were computed to be 235,000 volumes in the department. Twenty years later these again had more than doubled. In 1858 there were 550,000 volumes. Having once obtained an impetus, the mass rapidly increased, and at this moment the number of volumes is calculated to amount to the enormous total of 1,750,-000, not counting single sheets or parts of works that are accumulating.

The space which this mass of printed material occupies has to be reckoned in miles. The shelves of the reading room and iron galleries constructed around it, which are known as the new library, all told, extend to more than eight and twenty miles; those in the rest of the department to 11 miles. It may be no-ticed that this total of 39 miles is nearly the same as that of the shelving of the French National library, according to recent calculations. The prospect of increase of this mileage may be viewed with comparative equanimity in connection with the storage of the ordinary octaves of literature, but when one contemplates the rapid growth of newspa-pers the limits of the available space within the present buildings are almost within sight. - Westminster Gazette.

A Dog Story.

When the guest of the Rev. Edward H. Ingle in Roanoke, Va., I was asked by Mr. Ingle to make the experiment whether I could bring into my conver-sation with him the word "holes" with-out its being curiously noticed by his dog. I tried it more than once, not emphasizing the word or making it louder than any other words. The first time the word "holes" reached his ear the dog looked toward me with an expression of apprehension. The second time he rose, curled his tail between his legs, and stood watchful, as if to know whether he was to be further disturbed. The third time he left the room with unmistakable demonstrations of alarm and shame. Mr. Ingle told me, as the only explanation he could give, that the dog had dug holes in the grass on the lawn and had been sharply reproved and scolded for it, but never punished

We have a dog which will do the same thing, for precisely the same rea-son, on hearing the word "ducks." The little wretch killed a tame duck and was verbally flagellated.—London Spec-

Philadelphia Policemen

Although every Philadelphia policeman is provided with uniform, helmet, belt and club by the city, he is forced to purchase the revolver and black jack which go to make up his equipment. This circumstance is possessed of legal significance. Everything that the city authorizes the policemen to wear or carry is provided out of municipal funds, but the city has no authority to allow any man to carry concealed weap ons. This authority is given the policemen by the courts. However, the department of public safety is a factor in the question, because it accepts a certain revolver as the official weapon of the police force, and the policemen are expected to purchase the official revolver. Personal taste enters into the purchase in the way of embellishments, and some members of the force pay from $15 to $20 for a revolver that can be purchased bare of ornaments for $5. The official black jack is of infinite variety, but al-ways of equal utility.—Philadelphia

Missed the Leveliest Jewel.

A story of the carnival shows that an age of chivalry can coexist with an age of robbery. Mme Charlotte T—, a Halles saleswoman and, moreover, a widow, went out, as was only natural, to have a look at the procession. She found on her return that her jewels had been stolen in her absence, and as the jewels were worth £300 it was a serious loss. For all ills, however, there are compensations, and on the table the thief had left a nose, brief indeed, but gallant and gratifying to a degree. "A thousand regrets," so the note ran, "for not having found in this chamber by far its most lovely jewel!"—Paris Messenger.

No Policy at All.

"Honesty may be the best policy as a general thing," remarked Uncle Allen Sparks, "but if some men that I know of had been perfectly honest in answering the questions on their application blanks for tife insurance they would never have get any policy at all."—Chicaso Tribane. cago Tribune.

An Important Question.

If your friends or neighbors are suffering from coughs, colds, sore throat, or any throat or lung disease (including consumption), ask them if they have ever used Otto's Cure. No matter what other medicines have failed to do, try Otto's Cure. Large Sizes 25c. and 50c.

The Best Thing College Does For a Man.

Whatever may be in store for the American college as the predecessor of the American university, it can never cease to be an agency for the training of a man in the great business of living. It enriches his life; it deepens and broadens his view of truth; it ennobles his aims; it strengthens his choice of the right; it clarifies his vision of, and his love of, the beautiful. The col-lege pours oil into the lamp of character and makes its light more radiant and more lasting. When these functions are lost, if they ever be lost, they must be assumed by some other power. For, so long as the race continues, so long are its members to be trained to think, to judge, to reason, to act with independence and with justice, to work laboriously, and to be large and true and noble men. These qualities represent the best thing which a college can do for its students.—Forum.

A Question of Physics.

The omnibus was about half fall when the masher got in and took a seat next the pretty girl.

He had placed himself superfluously close to her, and she edged away, but little by little he crowded up to her un-

The situation was painful, and was complicated by the glare of the women on the other side. She wondered if they thought she liked it. The pretty girl turned on her pursuer.

It Stops the Crying. To keep babies from crying an ingen-ious device is resorted to in India. The moment a child begins to cry the mother places her hand over its mouth and nips its nose so that it cannot breathe. Then it is allowed to breathe freely again, but should it make use of the opportunity to again set up a howl it is at once suppressed in the same way. This is repeated till the baby imagines that the painful stoppage of the breath is caused by its own effort to scream, and so is careful to keep quiet. It is needless to say that this method will scarcely be adopted by doting American mothers.-Philadelphia Ledger.

Shirt Waist Coffers.

The scheme to have detachable collars with shirt waists is a very happy thought of somebody, and the quick popularity of this style of waist attests its general favor. One waist will easily retain its freshness to wear through two collars, now that the shirt waist is such only in name and does not neces sarily mean a bodice with a shirt front. Some dressmakers also make up the stylish shepherd's plaid silk waists to be worn with linen collars-white linen, of course, being preferred—though a few plain batiste collars have been seen. - New York Times.

In the Finnish Woods.

Our way lay through a forest ravaged here and there by fire. The mosses along the road were beautiful, and, indeed, everywhere in Finland where I went I saw much beauty on the ground, not merely in the way of flowers, but of leaves, some of which lie by me as I write, still glowing as when first gathered, and sprays of moss which are long feathering trails of marvelous loveliness. The lichens and fungi add purples, yellows and reds in every shade, so that the artist's palette might soon be exhausted in painting these rich carpets of gorgeous coloring .- "Vignettes of Fin-

Charity is a universal duty, which it is in every man's power sometimes to practice, since every degree of assistance given to another, upon proper motives, is an act of charity, and there is scare ly any man in such a state of imbecility as that he may not, on some occasions, benefit his neighbor.—Johnson.

English Ship Names.

The naming of ships is one of the difficulties that the admiralty overcome by using the old names over and over again. To adopt a new name into the navy seriously interferes with the service signal books. The old names are in the code, and are as convenient for the ships of today as for those of Nelson's time. But the introduction of a new name necessitates an alteration in all the books. That is why the old names survive generation after generation.—London World.

The small eigar cutters generally seen in tobacco stores seem to exercise a strange fascination over some people.
