John Hamilton, Deputy Secretary and Director of Farmers' Institutes, in a pamphlet on "Good Roads," says there are over 80,000 miles of roads in Pennsylvania, outside of the wards and boroughs and cities of the Commonwealth, and not including the turnpike roads under corporate control. For the year ending May 31st, 1895, these 80,000 miles of road cost the farmers of Pennsylvania just $3,898,573.06, or at the rate of $48.73 per mile. And yet how many roads throughout the State can be designated "good roads?"

In the August number of Current Events, the monthly news-review published in Hartford, Connecticut, the position of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe on the woman's suffrage is clearly defined. —Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, the famous philanthropist and suffrage advocate, telling of her sister's relations with the cause. This phase of her character has never received the notice it merits, and the article will interest all of Mrs. Stowe's admirers. The other features of the magazine are as complete as usual. At news-stands or mailed from Hartford for five cents in stamps. Trial subscription, 30 cents for one whole year.

In a recent lecture delivered in the amphitheater at Chautauqua, N. Y., the Rev. Charles E. Aked, pastor of Pembroke Baptist Chapel, Liverpool, England, said: "A holiday trip through your delightful country is such a crowded bit of glorious life that one finds it quite impossible to answer the question that is often put to the unintelligent foreigner, as to what are his impressions of America. The truth is, he is all impressions. He has too many of them, and he has not had time to sort them out. His experience is a constant succession of surprises. He goes from city to city, every one larger and more magnificent and more enterprising than the last. He goes from college to college, and from university to university, and from church to church, each one more abounding in zeal, each one more devoted than the other. And he falls in love—there is safety in numbers,—with the collective womanhood of a continent. But the one outstanding phenomenon of your life, from the surprise of which he never recovers, is the abounding wealth of information that you possess concerning the life of the old land at home. I will undertake to say that there is not one Englishman out of a thousand who knows as much of America as nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand Americans know of our English life."

Two things have already appeared in the present political campaign which ought to be depreciated by all honest and intelligent citizens. First, the disposition to make of the money question a sectional issue, and second to pit class against class. The financial interests of this country are fundamentally one, just as the commercial interest is one. There are certain local interests that may be conflicting, but these are subsidiary and temporary. When the West prospers the East prospers, when the West suffers the East suffers, and vice versa. Never was the commercial unity of the country more strikingly exhibited than to-day, and the financial interest is one with the commercial interest. These being the facts it is safe to say that those who attempt to make a sectional issue out of the money question are either incompetent leaders or self-seeking politicians. There must be no misunderstandings between these two sections of our country or the result might be disastrous. Had the North and South understood each other in 1860 there would have been no war. The same is true of the disposition to play class against class. No weight ought to be attached to the utterance of a man who talks glibly about the banker, Wall street, debtor and creditor classes, or who is equally glib in talking about repudiators and crazy silverites. The fact of matter is that the creditor class of this country is made up not only of a few wealthy bankers, but of an innumerable company of people of small means and thrifty habits. The debtor class is likewise scattered throughout this entire country and is composed of honest and thrifty individuals who are struggling to get on in the world. Whichever hurts the creditor must ultimately hurt the debtor, and whatever hurts the debtor must ultimately hurt the creditor. It is therefore demagogic gone mad to play these classes against one another and thereby seek to create hostile feelings, as well as arbitrary and unnatural divisions.

Trainer Tried to Escape.
There came near being another jail delivery last Thursday night. T. D. Rhines, watchman on Main street, heard an unusual noise about the jail near two o'clock, and being satisfied something was going on inside of it, woke Deputy Sheriff Gourley, and armed with a revolver each they entered the prison. They found three cell doors open, a hole in the "cage" large enough for a man to crawl through, and three men out—one in the cage, one in the attic, and one on the building roof. Dave Trainer, the horse thief, was one of the number. By the persuasive influence of the revolvers all were induced to go back into their cells. In crawling out of his cell Trainer had fractured two or three of his ribs.—Brookville Democrat.

The Two Ways—Which?
HOW TO BRING DOWN A SON.
Let him have plenty of spending money.
Permit him to choose his own companions, without restraint or direction. Give him a latchkey and allow him to return home late in the evening. Give him to understand that manners make a good substitute for morality. Teach him to expect pay for every act of helpfulness to others.

HOW TO BRING UP A SON.
Make home the brightest and most attractive place on earth. Make him responsible for the performance of a limited number of daily duties. Talk frankly with him on matters in which he is interested. Sometimes invite his friends to your table. Take pains to know his associates. Encourage his confidence by giving ready sympathy and advice. Be careful to impress upon his mind that making character is more important than making money.—EX.
