WERE THEY MARRIED!

A Young Couple Duly Dissected and Talked Over.

They were coming away from the theater, and they fell to discussing the young couple who sat in front of them. "They are evidently married," said the girl in the Persian waist. "I noticed that they didn't exchange a word while the curtain was down. "Nonsense; they are merely engaged," said the girl in the black gown.

"I heard him tell her that he did not consider the leading lady even pretty." "Perhaps they are merely brother and sister," suggested the young man of the party.

"No, they weren't," said the girl in the Persian waist; "he'd have gone out between the acts if he was only her brother, while an engaged man wouldn't want to leave ber, and"-

"A newly married man would not dare to," broke in the girl in the black

"She took off her hat as soon as she came in," remarked the young man.
"That looks as if she was married and in the habit of consulting the feelings of some one else."

"Or that they were not really engaged yet and she wanted to show him how considerate she could be," said the girl in the black gown. Or that she was merely conscious of having pretty hair, " said the girl in the Persian waist. "Will you wager a box of chocolates that they are not mar-

"I—I'd rather you ladies would settle it between you," said the young man hastily. "You have so much more insight in such matters, you know.

"There they come now," said the girl in the Persian waist. "Let us notice what they do, and perhaps we can decide. If they are merely friends, they will stop for cream, soda and"- "If they are engaged, she will tell him how hungry she is, and they will stop for supper," said the young man bitterly. "While if they are married," went on the girl in the Persian waist, "be-

Double Quick.

An ancient resident of Willowby, whose conduct in one of the battles of the civil war had brought him under suspicion of cowardice, was naturally indisposed to admit that he had played any but a manly part.

"I didn't run away and stay till 'twas all over; no such thing," he al-ways affirmed. "I retreated in good order; that was all. 'Twas a time for retreating, if ever there was one, and accordingly & used my judgment and retreated.

This statement was regarded as more or less satisfactory up to the day when a military gentleman came to visit a cousin in Willowby, and in the course of a conversation held at the village store one-evening heard the oft repeated

Well, my friend," he said, looking say you retreated in good order, but I should like to ask one thing. About how fast did you go?"

said the other man, surprised into telling the unadorned truth, "if I'd been at home and going after the doctor I reckon folks would have thought somebody was pretty sick."-Youth's Companion.

German Thinkers.

Other European nations will find it hard to bring their schools of philoso-phy to the level reached by the German thinkers. The contemplative turn of the Teutonic mind, the quiet habits of the national life, the very climate, all tend to develop that leisurely mode of thought which is part of the north German character and one of the greatest enjoyments known to its possessors. The French mind, quick as it is, and fascinating and prompt at grasping an idea, is too volatile, generally speaking, to the profoundly philosophic. But the German, who carries his native simplicity and good nature everywhere, even into the most elevated questions, allows himself to feel and think and grow poetic over everything.—Ernest Renan's Let-ters.

Big Parade In New York. At Lincoln's funeral, April 25, 1865, there were about 15,000 soldiers in line; at Grant's funeral, Aug. 8, 1885, there were 18,500 in line, with 25,000 in the veteran and civic divisions. At the centennial parade, April 30, 1889, there were 50,000 soldiers in line, and at the Columbian parade on April 28, 1893, there were 12,000 men in line. At the Evacuation day parade, Nov. 25, 1883, and the Bartholdi statue parade there were fewer men in line.—New York

CANDLE POWER.

How to Measure the Lighting Force and Effect of a Flame.

This question and its answer have been until recently of interest to scientists only. But since one method of lighting is competing with the other for superiority the question of lighting power has seemingly become a public matter. How many candle power? The question is very simple and yet mysterious to the layman. For measuring the lighting power the most reliable results are obtained by means of a grease spot. In its most simple application the experiment can be tried easily at home. A sheet of white paper with a grease spot in the center is put into a frame and placed between two flames of different lighting power —for instance, between an ordinary candle and a lamp.

When the frame is equally distant from the two unequally bright flames, the grease spot can be seen plainly on both sides. By moving the frame with the sheet of paper slowly toward the less brilliant light—that is, the candle —it will arrive finally at a point where the grease spot has apparently disappeared on both sides of the paper. This deception must always occur when on both sides of the paper an equal brightness prevails and no side light exists. Having reached this point, it can be ascertained how much stronger is the light of the lamp than that of the can-

If the candle is 20 inches distant from the paper and the lamp 60 inches and yet the brightness on both sides of paper is the same, then the light of the lamp will be as strong as that of nine candles. The calculation is based upon the distances, the figures of which are multiplied by themselves and then divided-here, for instance, 60 times 60 divided by 20 multiplied by 20 equals 9.

This, of course, is the most primitive method for measuring light, but it is the principle for all the delicate instruments used in the laboratories.-Pearson's Weekly.

Writers' Pride.

Dickens has told us of the keen emo tion that overcame him on seeing in print his first "effusion," as he styled it, which he had dropped stealthily one evening at twilight, with fear and trem-bling, into a dark letter box, in a dark office, up a dark court in Fleet street; and how, when it appeared next morning, he went for half an hour into West-minster hall, "because my eyes were so dimmed with joy and pride that they could not bear the street." Charles Mathews the elder describes the delig' t with which he gazed on the first proof of his translation of "The Princess of Cleves," which appeared by monthly installments in The Lady's Magazine, as 'boundless," and how he fancied the eyes of Europe were upon him, and that the ladies who subscribed to that periodical would unite in calling on the editor to insist on "C. M." declaring himself. Poor Haydon has left a vivid woord of the fluster of elation with which he greeted the result of his having dropped a little-composition into the letter box of The Examiner. "Never," he writes, "shall I forget that Sunday morning. went the paper knife—cut, cut, cut, Affecting not to be interested, I turned the pages open todry, and to my certain immortality beheld, with a delight not to be expressed, the first sentence of my letter. I put down the paper, walked about the room, looked at Maebeth (a print on the wall), made the bea, buttered the toast, put in the sugar, with that inexpressible suppressed checkle of delight which always attends a condescending relinquishment of an anticipated rapture till one is perfectly ready. Who has not felt this? Who has not done this?"—Chambers' Journal

It was just before the bandeau as an item of hat decoration retired into obscurity. A pretty-damsel with a black Gainsborough, well tilted at an acute angle by the pale blue bandean that rested on her finffy hair, sat in a crowded Broadway cable car, opposite a shabby old figure in a shawl, who slumbered diffully, giving out a suspicious rum odor. Suddenly the sleeper roused herself, stared stupidly at her vis-a-vis for a moment, and then, lurching forward in her seat, said with a watery smile, "Yer hat's on crooked."

The damsel turned her head away in flushed indignation, but the elderly dame would not be misunderstood. She eaned still farther forward, and, pointing a wavering forefinger at the offend-ing bandeau, reiterated: "It's you. Yer hat's on crooked!" The passengers by this time took an active interest in the bandeau as well. The Gainsborough maidsn looked helplessly around, made a wild signal to the conductor and took refuge in ignominious flight.-New

A Dog's Attachment to a Cow.

A remarkable instance of affection between a dog and a cow is related by a suburbanite. His little black Scotch terrier became infatuated with a small Jersey cow in his neighborhood, and every morning he would run off to the pasture where his bovine sweetheart was kept. He would slip out the side way and walk along with the cow. He often missed his breakfast and often did not taste a mouthful all day. When she munched grass by the roadside, he pa-tiently sat on his haunches until she moved along. Sometimes he was confined at home to break up the habit, but as soon as he was released off he would go at a full run for the pasture, singling out his love from the herd of cattle and following close at her heels. He would jump up, lick her feet and show signs of greatest joy when he came to While the cow on her part did not appear to appreciate his attentions she did not hook him away. Finally the family grew tired of keeping a dog that remained away during the day and only came home for his supper and to spend the night and gave him to persons living some distance in the country. The cow, who had never seemed to notice any of his demonstrations of affection, missed his companionship when he was one. She would come to his former home at evening, put her head over the palings and low. She did this at interfor several months.-Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune.

Good Advice to "Old Subscriber." Once again I am compelled to imoress upon my correspondents the neces ity of brevity in their communications. For the benefit of those who may have a difficulty in condensing their observations I would suggest among other things the omission of preliminary flourishes.

It is gratifying to me to hear from every correspondent that he (or she) has been a diligent reader of Truth since its first number, that he regards it as the most valuable and influential of papers, that he has implicit confidence in my intelligence, judgment, sense of justice and desire to do the right thing, and that he comes to me with every expectation, etc., but with incessant repetition even this sort of flattery is apt to lose its flavor.

I reckon that if all the compliments were taken out of my letter box my daily reading would be shortened by at least two hours, which is the same thing as if one whole day per fortnight were added to my life. How many days, then, must be wasted in writing these compliments? For all our sakes, I beseech my correspondents to come to the point at once, and when they have stated it to sign their names and make way for somebody else. —London Truth.

The Ring California Gave Pierce.

One of the most curious as well as most valuable of American rings was presented to President Pierce in 1855 by the citizens of California. It is of massive gold, weighing upward of a pound. The circular portion is cut into squares, which are embellished with beautifully executed designs, the entire group presenting a pictorial history of California. The seal of the ring is really lid, which swings upon a hin is covered with the arms of the state of California, surmounted by the stars and stripes. Underneath is a square box divided by bars of gold into nine separate compartments, each containing a pure specimen of the varieties of ore found in the country. ### AS TO WAITERS.

The Frenchman's Politeness and the Ne gro's Aptness In Table Service.

The recent discussion of the subject of tips to barbers occasioned a great many talks about tips to waiters and led to many disputes as to the relative proficiency of waiters of different nationalities. In one of these, wherein the chief disputants were arguing the re-spective merits of the negro, who was declared to be always beforehand of a diner's wants, and the Frenchman, whose politeness was particularly com-mended, the statement was made that one could even forgive bad service in a French waiter because of his ceaseless efforts to be nice and to convey the impression that his one desire in life was to serve commendably his patron of the moment, though the meat be tough as tensile jujube. It was contended that the Frenchman was so accurate a judge of human nature that in spite of the carelessness of the cook or the poor quality of the fare he made sure of his tip by giving some nice tidbit toward the end of the meal and intensifying his politeness concomitantly. I willingly leave a small gratuity," said his supporter, "for the sake of receiving attention that approaches private service. I dislike to have things slapped down before me with the independent slap of a sovereign American citizen. The dishes may be more substantial that are put down by the smug white native or the negro, but I would rather do with less victuals and have the service of the attentive Frenchman, with his 'sir' and 'if you please,' "

"I would rather," said his vis-a-vis, "have less food and less politeness, too, than suffer the attentions of your French waiter, whose deftness, I find, permits him to dump a plate of soup in your lap in order apparently to give him op-portunity to say 'Excuse me.' "-New

Senses of Smell and Taste In Fishes.

The senses of smell and taste appear to be well developed in the great majority of the fish species. Tobacco thrown by mackerel and halibut, but is immediately rejected. Nearly all varieties of fish, and more especially the "ground swimmers." have a choice of food. Halibut and cod are attracted a great distance by certain kinds of bait. Herring. when fresh and in good condition, are splendid bait for cod, but are of no use whatever if they have become stale from long keeping. Catfish, buffalo and oneor two varieties of the bass will bite bacon when they will pay no attention whatever to the luscious angleworm. The above and other facts which could easily be cited in proof have caused fishermen and scientists to come to the conclusion that the senses of smell and taste are both remarkably developed among the finny tribe.—St. Louis Republic.

All Kinds of Girls. The girls are running away with a poor fellow nowadays. With the bicycle girl, the golf girl, the tennis girl, the seaside girl, the hunting girl, the fishing girl, the riding girl, the rowing girl, the football girl, the fencing girl, the mountain climbing girl, the graduate girl, the new girl and the old summer girl, the youth of today lives in a never ending quandary. — Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Explaining His Remark.

"Do you mean to tell me, sir, that I have no proper regard for the truth?"
"I haven't said so, but I will say that if you went into politics the other side would have a busy time guessing between what you said and what you meant."—Detroit Free Press.

A Most Unreasonable Man.

The women in a North Atchison family think the head of the family is a regular old crank. He becomes furious when a crowd of women congregate on his porch and keep up a racket until late, and when young men call on his daughters and make no noise at all he does not like it either. - Atchison Globe.

The epidermis of a brunette is said to be one-tenth of a millimeter thicker than that of a blond.

In Russia a patent may be taken out at the pleasure of the patentee for three, five or ten years.
