To Cure Headaches.

"A hot bath, a stroll in the fresh air, shampooing the head in weak soda water, or a timely nap in a cool, quiet room will sometimes stop a nervous headache," writes Dr. R. F. Herrick, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "When overfatigued from shopping or sight-seeing a sponge dipped in very hot water and pressed repeatedly over the back of the neck between the ears will be found exceedingly refreshing, especially if the face and temples are afterward subjected to the same treatment. Neuralgia is caused not only by cold air, but by acidity of the stomach, starved nerves, imperfect teeth, or by indolence combined with a too generous diet. Heat is the best and quickest cure for this distressing pain. A hot natron, passed rapidly and deftly over several folds of flannel laid on the affected spot, will often give relief in less than ten minutes, without the aid of medicine. Hot fomentations are of equal value; though when the skin is very tender it is more advisable to use dry heat, nothing being better for the purpose than bags of heated salt, flour or sand, which retain warmth for a long time. Cold water, applied by the finger tips to the nerves in front of the ear, has been known to dispel neuralgia pains like magic. When caused by acidity a dose of charcoal or soda will usually act as a corrective. Sick headache is accompanied by various symptoms, and attacks usually come on when the person is overtired or below par physically. This is a disease of the first half of life, and often stops of its own accord after middle age. A careful diet is imperative in every case, sweetmeats and pastry being especially pernicious. "Eating heartily when very tired, late dinners, eating irregularly, insufficient mastication or too much animal food, especially in the spring or during the hot weather, are frequent causes of indigestion, causing headaches by reflex action."

SACRED CONFIDENCE.

NO WOMAN'S LETTER PUBLISHED EXCEPT BY REQUEST.

Mrs. Pinkham's Tender Relations With the Suffering of Her Sex—Women Who Cannot Hide Their Happiness.

There is a class of women who, from their own experience, sympathize with their suffering sisters, and in order that such suffering may be lessened, nobly put aside false modesty and in heartfelt gratitude publish to the world what every woman should know.

Mrs. W. L. Elliott, Liscomb, Iowa, is one of those women, and has requested us to publish the facts in her case, otherwise it would not be done, as all such evidence is treated in sacred confidence, unless publication is requested by the writer.

She says to Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish you would publish the circumstances of my case, in order that other women may be benefited by my experience."

"I doctored nearly all the time for two years. I spent several hundred dollars without receiving much benefit. Last June I wrote to you and described all my aches and pains. Such a long list as there was: headache, back-ache, bearing-down pains, terrible soreness, constipation, dizziness, feeling of extreme lassitude, irregularity and nausea; but you answered my letter and told me just what to do. I followed your advice."

"After taking eight bottles of the Vegetable Compound and three bottles of Blood Purifier, I am glad to write you that I have not enjoyed such good health for years, and I am able to do all my own work. I can surely sound the praises of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and a number of my friends are taking it upon my recommendation."—Mrs. W. L. ELLIOTT, Liscomb, Iowa.

Eventide.

Over the river the twilight broods,
And the trees on the current seem to swim,
And the orioles flash through the solitudes,
And the purple sky has a jeweled trim;
And a rattle stirs the heart of the woods
And the silence throats and the day grows dim.

HUMOROUS.

"Willack says his word is law at home." "He does? Well, if that is the truth, his wife is an Anarchist."

Hazel—I wonder why he has never said that he loved me? Nutte—Perhaps he has not dared to interrupt you.

Joe Coes—So she cast you off forever? Bill Dun—Yes; at last she said she would marry me when I was able to support a wife.

Police Justice—Did you recognize your assailant? Van Dusenp (indignantly)—Most ashamedly not!—they hardly belong to my set!

Egbert—They say that Chilson is going through his fortune awfully fast. Popson—Yes, I notice that he keeps his bicycle in excellent repair.

Friend—What does the doctor say? Patient—Oh, he seems to be in great spirits because he has the fever nearly down to where it was when he started.

Mamma—You know, Johnny, when mamma whips her little boy she does it for his own good. Johnny—Mamma, I wish you didn't think so much of me.

Friend—It must be awful to have the newspapers keep saying such things about you. Political Candidate—Yes, but supposing they didn't say anything at all!

Mrs. Warem—How do you like your new handkerchiefs, dear? Mr. Warem (a chronic fault-finder); Pretty well; but some of 'em's got the fringe in the wrong corner.

Professional Courtesy—"Crowded out to make room for more interesting matter," observed the gallant editor as he gave his seat in the car to the young woman with soulful eyes.

Cobwigger—Didn't you think it rather foolish for her to ask you if her hat was on straight? Merritt—No; it was on a railway train, and we had just come out of a long tunnel.

Critic—That villain in your story is a perfect masterpiece. Where did you get the character? Novelist—I imagined a man possessed of all the forms of wickedness which my wife attributes to me when she is angry.

"I may open my mouth a good deal." The mermaid glanced at the reflection of herself in the mirror, which every good-looking mermaid carries. "I may open my mouth a good deal, but I never put my foot in it."

A letter from a lady at an inland watering place to her husband contains the following passage: "In your last epistle you sent me $50 and 1,000 kisses. I should be glad if, in future, you would send me more money and fewer kisses."

"Come, old man," said the kind friend "cheer up. There are others." "I don't mind her breaking the engagement so very much," said the dependent young man. "But to think that I have got to go on paying the installments on the ring for a year to come yet. That is what jars me."

Ostrich Outran the Cyclist.

Donald Menzies, a cyclist of Cape Colony, South Africa, had a peculiar experience recently. He was riding along the main road from Cape Town to Somerset, West Strand, when an ostrich, attracted apparently by what was in his eyes a novel vehicle, commenced to walk around the bicycle. After a few preliminary antics, the bird took it into his head to pace Mr. Menzies, and so long as it abstained from using its wings, the cyclist and the ostrich managed to run a dead heat. However, after covering about half a mile in this way, the ostrich utilized its stumpy wings and spurred away at record-breaking pace, leaving the cyclist far behind.—Self Culture.

Took 25 Years to Get His Money Back.

If we only could recognize them, probably we should be surprised to see how often a piece of money returns to us; and wouldn't it be interesting if we could trace their travels? A Vinhaven merchant has thought of this several times lately as he looked at his favorite pocket-piece. He stamped his name on it twenty-five years ago, when a young man working at Hurricane, and sent it out on its wanderings. He did not see it again until a few days ago, when somebody gave it to him in exchange for a bag of fruit. He does not plan to part with it again.—Lowiston (Mc.) Journal.

HIDE AND SEEK AT SEA.

Torpedo-Boat Practice with the Great White Cruisers.

Mr. Ernest Ingersoll describes "The Tricks of Torpedo Boats" in St. Nicholas. After telling what the boats are like and what they can accomplish, Mr. Ingersoll says: But to insure all these fine results, both officers and men must be taught how to manage and maneuver them to best advantage, as well as how to discharge the torpedoes they carry. Constant drilling is necessary; and lately one of these boats in our navy, the "Cushing" (so suitably named after the young hero of the civil war who destroyed the rebel ram "Albatross" by means of a rude torpedo-boat—one of the first actually used)—has been attached to the naval station at Newport, Rhode Island, in order to carry on this practice. One set of officers and men after another is instructed in handling her, and in the making and firing of her torpedoes; and they have plenty of fun along with the schooling.

The headquarters of this work is Goat Island, which separates Newport harbor from the outer waters of Narragansett Bay.

There is a searchlight which commands the harbor entrances and a wide circle of the bay. One or more warships are always there. Those searchlights also can be swung in any direction. Yet the Cushing arrived one night and first announced herself by suddenly blowing her whistle within pistol-shot of the inner wharf of the island—and it was not a dark night, either. A few afternoons later she went down the bay, and challenged every eye to be alert to see her return in the evening. It was bright moonlight—a time in which no such boat would attempt a serious attack—yet Lieutenant Fletcher, the Cushing's commander, crept within a third of a mile of the shore before he was detected. It would have pleased you to see her that night, as she came plainly into view—a long, low streak gliding silently and swiftly athwart the moonlit sea, rolling a silvery furrow back from her plow-like bow, and seeming more like some great fish with its back fins out of water than any sort of steamship.

But it is on dark and stormy nights that the practice becomes exciting. Groups of officers stand upon the rampart of Fort Wolcott, or upon the bridge of each monitor or cruiser, and strain eyes and ears to obtain some inkling of the torpedo-boat's presence, the long white beam of the electric searchlight sweeping right and left, up and down, and every man gazing along the path it illuminates for some glimpse of the little enemy. A swing of the beam southward brings out the grim walls and numerous cannon of Fort Adams, and shows every yacht and fishing-boat at anchor inside of Brenton's Point. The main channel, the Dumplings, the far away shore of Conanicut Island, Rose Island and its ruined old fortifications, the upper bay dotted with lazy sloops and schooners slipping down with the tide, are revealed one after another, as the powerful rays are turned slowly westward and northward until at last they are shining again in the Naval War College and Training School, and on the clustered shipping and wharves of the picturesque old town.

Look Out for the Voice.

You often hear boys and girls say words when they are vexed that sound as if made up of a snarl, a whine and a bark. Such a voice often expresses more than the heart feels. Often even in mirth one gets a voice or tone that is sharp, and it sticks to him through life. Such persons get a sharp voice for home use and keep their best voice for those they meet elsewhere. I say to all boys and girls, "Use your guest voice at home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you than the best pearl in the sea. A kind voice is a lark's song to a heart and home. Train it to sweet tones now and it will keep in tune through life."

Unconscious Humor.

It is not always safe to resort to set phrases when wishing to compliment. A story is told of a certain lawyer, extremely studious, but in conversation notoriously dull, who was showing off his newly built house. The bookworm prided himself especially on a sanctum he had contrived for his own use, so secluded from the rest of the building that he could pore over his books in private, quite secure from disturbance. "And this is capital," exclaimed the visitor, with unconscious irony. "You can read and study here all day, and no human being be one bit the wiser."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of
